Gratitude For America Urged From D. C. Pulpits

President's Wife, Daughter Lead Worshipers on Thanksgiving Day

By Martha J. Hall
Post Reporter

Gratitude for America's heritage of peace and freedom was stressed by clergymen yesterday as thousands of Washingtonians attended Thanksgiving Day church services.

Mrs. Truman and daughter Margaret led the Nation's Thanksgiving Day worshippers as they attended the morning service at the Washington Cathedral.

The Rev. Theodore O. Wedel, cathedral canon, said in his sermon that we give for three reasons—because we have to, in pity, and above all, in thanks.

He suggested that Americans, as they sat down before their Thanksgiving feasts, remember that they have the things which millions around the world cannot enjoy.

Enjoyment Not a Sin

"Enjoyment is not a sin," Canon Wedel concluded, "but ingratitude is."

At the fortieth annual Pan American mass at St. Patrick's Church, the Right Rev. John K. Cartwright, rector of St. Matthew's Cathedral, urged peoples of the hemisphere to "work and pray that all our world of men may be illuminated with faith in God."

Flags of the nations of the Pan American Union decked the church and Latin American and American diplomats attended the service. Chief Justice and Mrs. Vinson, Secretary of Interior Krug, presidential secretary Charles G. Ross and members of Congress and the judiciary were also present.

"We Have So Very Much"

The Eastern Hemisphere has been plunged into darkness of confusion and disaster for many years, the clergyman pointed out.

The other hemisphere, he said, has enjoyed peace and order—"order that is imperfect, peace that is under heavy menace, but still what the peoples of the dark hemisphere would call order and peace and would praise as a kind of paradise."

"We do not rejoice in the evils that beset humanity. But we cannot refrain from observing the contrast," he said. "We have so very much from God that to think of these things and not to thank

Truman Works 5 Hours Before Turkey Dinner

Greater Washington residents—those who stayed in town—passed a quiet and satisfying day over their Thanksgiving Day dinners yesterday.

All but President Truman, who put in 5 hours at his desk before crossing Pennsylvania ave. to his turkey dinner at Blair House.

Miami Express Engine Derailed At Wreck Scene

The locomotive of the Atlantic Coast Line's New York-to-Miami "Champion" express was derailed last night when it sideswiped one of 14 northbound freight cars previously derailed at Hamilton Crossing, about three miles south of Fredericksburg, Va.

Holiday traffic was tied up and two persons were slightly injured, officials said. The accident occurred on the Richmond, Fredericksburg and Potomac tracks.

The baggage car of the southbound "Champion" was reported damaged. The freight cars were en route to the Potomac Yards in Alexandria when they went off the tracks.

Crusade in Europe

Eisenhower Vowed Never to Let Enemy's 'Bulge' Cross Meuse

By Dwight D. Eisenhower

XX

On December 16, 1944, General Bradley came to my headquarters to discuss ways and means of overcoming our acute shortages in infantry replacements. Just as he entered my office a staff officer came in to report slight penetrations of our lines in the front of General Middleton's VIII Corps and the right of General Gerow's V Corps in the Ardennes region. The staff officer located the points on my battle map, and Bradley and I discussed the probable meaning.

I was immediately convinced that this was no local attack; it was not logical for the enemy to attempt merely a minor offensive in the Ardennes, unless of course it should be a feint to attract our attention while he launched a major effort elsewhere. This possibility we ruled out. On other portions of the front either we were so strong that the Germans could not hope to attack successfully, or there was a lack of major objectives that he could reasonably hope to attain.

It was through this same region that the Germans launched their great attack of 1940 which drove the British forces from the Continent, and France out of the war. That first attack was led by the same commander we were now facing, Von Rundstedt. It was possible that he hoped to repeat his successes of more than four years earlier. We had always been convinced that before the Germans acknowledged final defeat in the west they would attempt one desperate counter-offensive. It seemed likely to Bradley and me that they were now starting this kind of attack.

We called a number of the SHAEF staff into our conference room; among them were Air Chief Marshal Tedder, and Generals Smith, Bull, and Strong. The operational maps before us showed that on each flank of the Ardennes the bulk of a United States armored division was out of the front lines and could be moved quickly. On the north was the Seventh Armored Division commanded by Maj. Gen. Robert W. Hasbrouck. In Patton's army on the south was the Tenth Armored Division under Maj. Gen. William H. Morris, jr.

2 Divisions Ordered To Close In on Area

We agreed that these two divisions should immediately begin to close in toward the threatened area, the exact destination of each to be determined later by Bradley. This meant postponement of preparations for the attack in the Saar and we knew that General Patton would protest. His heart was set on the new offensive, which he thought would gain great results.

But to Bradley and me there now appeared to be developing the very situation that we had felt justified in challenging because of the location of our concentrations on the flank of the weak Ardennes front. We had always felt the risk to be justified by the conviction that in emergency we could react swiftly. The critical moment, in our judgment, was now upon us. In addition to directing these preliminary moves Bradley alerted all Army commanders in his group to be ready to provide additional units for the battle that he expected to develop.

We went over, again, the limit of the penetration that we could, if necessary, permit in that region without irretrievable damage to ourselves. This line covered the cities of Luxembourg and Sedan on the south, followed the Meuse River on the west and covered Liege on the north. Farther back than this we would not go, and we would of course stop the enemy earlier if possible.

One factor that caused us a special concern, even anxiety, was the weather. For some days our great air force had been grounded because of clouds and impenetrable fog. The air force was one of our greatest assets, and now, until the weather improved, it was practically useless. As long as the weather kept our planes on the ground it would be an ally of the enemy worth many additional divisions.

The morning of December 17 it became clear that the German attack was in great strength. Two gaps were torn through our line, one on the front of the 106th Division, the other on the front of the Twenty-eighth. Reports were confusing and exact information was meager, but is was clear that the enemy was employing considerable armor and was progressing rapidly to the westward.

Timing, Strength Surprised U. S. Leaders

In two important points the enemy had gained definite surprise. The first of these was in timing. In view of the terrible defeats we had inflicted upon him during the late summer and fall, and of the extraordinary measures he had been compelled to undertake in raising new forces, we had believed that he could not be ready for a major assault as early as he was. The other point in which he surprised us was the strength of the attack.

In the north the critical region was near Monschau, an area over which Gerow's American V Corps of the First Army was attacking toward the Roer dams at the moment the German offensive began. In Gerow's corps the veteran Second Division under General Robertson and the new Ninty-ninth Division under Major General Walter E. Lauer were initially struck by the German attack.

The Ninety-ninth was rapidly forced back in confusion. The Second Division met the issue with great skill and determination and during the ensuing three days fought one of the brilliant divisional actions of the war in Europe.

The German threw heavy attacks against the division but the Americans stubbornly refused to give way. It is doubtful, however, that the Second Division could have held out alone throughout the 36 hours before reinforcements reached its vicinity except for the courageous action of the Seventh Armored Division at St. Vith. Its battle at St. Vith not only divided the German effort in the north but prevented quick en-

Patton Wanted Germans To Get Out on a Limb

Gen. George Patton favored letting the Germans go all the way to Paris, after the Ardennes break-through, explaining: "Then we'll really cut 'em off and chew 'em up."

This is disclosed in today's instalment of "Crusade in Europe" by General Eisenhower.

French Agree To Voice on Ruhr Plants

Marshall's Offer Hailed as Step in Right Direction; Britain Concurs

Paris, Nov. 25 (AP).—France will accept quickly Secretary of State Marshall's offer of an immediate voice in supervision of Ruhr industries, a government spokesman said tonight.

The spokesman hailed as a "step in the right direction" the invitation to France, extended yesterday by Marshall, to take part in controlling Ruhr steel and coal industries even though the French zone of Germany has not joined the British-American zonal union.

France now is satisfied in at least one of her demands—the right to regulate German management in the Ruhr during the period before the peace treaty with Germany is formally written, the spokesman said.

Britain Concurs

A British Foreign Office spokesman said in London that Britain also has agreed to giving France membership in the present German coal and steel control groups. The Ruhr is in the British occupation zone.

Diplomatic circles viewed this as a big step in giving the French a greater voice in big power arrangements for the coordination of western Europe's resources. Such action was viewed in many quarters as essential if the French government is to be stabilized.

The Ruhr is a major issue in French politics. France has expressed worry about returning control of the great industrial heartland to the Germans remembering it as the source of Germany's power in two World Wars.

Just today the French government won a vote of confidence. Premier Henri Queuille's moderate government beat down the Communists in the National Assembly by a vote of 412 to 180. The Assembly, by that vote, tabled a Communist question on the fighting between police and Communists in Paris on Armistice Day. Non-Communists showed no desire to threaten the government over such an issue at a time like the present.

Stand Held Not Clear

The French government spokesman said Secretary Marshall's position toward French demands for international ownership of the Ruhr industries still is not clear enough for French comment. Marshall said yesterday the security requirements of France, to safeguard against possible future German aggression, will be covered in the eventual treaty with Germany. Marshall said security actually was not a problem during the period of occupation.

The French spokesman said France wants international supervision of industrial management by technical experts to be continued into the post-treaty period, possibly transferred to the international authority or the Security Office. France also wants the question of state or private ownership of the mills and mines held open until the peace treaty for Germany has been drafted.

The French contend that while no peace treaty for Germany is yet in sight, German production is growing rapidly and Germany's steel production already is greater than that of France. The French people, the spokesmen say, would be nervous at the sight of rebuilt Ruhr industries operating full blast under German trustee management, even with continued three-power control of the output.

Union Officers Agree On Terms to End Dock Strikes on Both Coasts

Pacific Dock Hands' Union Approves 15-Cent Wage Hike

San Francisco, Nov. 25 (AP).—Agreement on terms for a settlement of the 85-day-old Pacific Coast maritime strike was announced today by the CIO International Longshoremen's and Warehousemen's Union and the Waterfront Employers Association.

In a joint announcement, the ILWU and the WEA said they had reached an agreement which they will "recommend to their respective memberships."

They agreed upon a 15-cent hourly wage increase, effective upon work resumption. New vacation benefits include one week for men working 800 hours in the previous year and two weeks for those with 1334 hours to their credit.

The tieup, which began September 2, has cost an employer-estimated four million dollars per day. The longshoremen had asked for the 15-cent increase, with the employers originally offering 10 cents per hour.

The announcement described the new pact as "one based on complete good faith." Union and employer spokesmen joined in the prediction that "this contract and this new spirit can mean a new era for West Coast shipping."

(The announcement embraced only the longshore phase of the strike picture. Affected by the strike are the CIO Marine Cooks and Stewards, the Independent Firemen, the CIO Radio Operators and the Marine Engineers.)

Operations under the peace plan called for a three-year contract to 1951, National CIO contract underwriting and improved grievance machinery.

It was pointed out, however, that the agreement is conditioned only on ratification by memberships on both sides.

Agreement came as a result of compromises on both sides in the 15 days of negotiations and subcommittee settlements since November 11 when they reopened negotiations.

For months prior to the calling of the strike the union held the hiring halls as the principal issue. ILWU Chief Harry Bridges insisted operation of the hiring hall, with a union dispatcher, be continued unchanged. The employers demanded an impartial dispatcher instead. Recently the ship owners and union agreed on continuing things as they were on that issue, pending a court decision.

Less than two hours before the strike was called, the WEA said, Bridges presented 10 "strike demands." Among these was the

Membership Vote Scheduled in East Saturday on 13c Raise, Welfare Plan

New York, Nov. 25 (AP).—Ship owners and union officers agreed today on terms for ending the 16-day-old East Coast longshoremen's strike.

Before ships can start plying to and from the Nation's big Atlantic ports, however, some 65,000 union members must approve the terms accepted by their officers.

The members of the AFL International Longshoremen's Association vote Saturday on those terms. They include a 13-cent hourly wage raise, retroactive to August 21 when previous contracts expired, and a welfare plan of undisclosed scope.

The ILA's previous demand was a 25-cents-an-hour increase over the straight daytime pay rate of $1.75 hourly. The employers' previous top offer was 10 cents more an hour.

Strike Costs Millions

The strike began after the membership rejected a 10-cents-an-hour increase accepted by their officers.

Neary 30 million dollars worth of Marshall Plan cargo has piled up as a result of the strike. Unofficial estimates of the strike's total cost run into millions of dollars, but no official source was available on this Thanksgiving Day to make an authoritative estimate.

As a result of the agreement, the Cunard White Star Line announced the huge liner Queen Elizabeth will sail Sunday from Southampton, England, for New York. Her sister ship, the Queen Mary, will sail Wednesday.

About 1500 passengers have been waiting to sail aboard the Queen Elizabeth for more than a week. The company estimated the delay to this ship alone was costing $20,000 a day.

Approximately 250 vessels meanwhile remained strikebound at ports from Portland, Me., to Hampton Roads, Va.—the East Coast area of ILA membership.

Ching Announces Agreement

The strike has caused railroads to embargo movement of export freight to East Coast ports, forced the closing of some industries and idled thousands of railroad and other employes.

Today's agreement was announced at 3:35 a. m. (Eastern Standard Time) by the big boss of the Nation's mediators—Cyrus Ching, head of the Federal Mediation and Conciliation Service. Ching personally intervened in bogged down negotiations yesterday.

The terms were accepted by negotiating committees headed by Joseph P. Ryan, president of the ILA, and John V. Lyon, chairman of the New York Shipping Association, representing employers.

Ching said he was "hopeful" the ILA members would accept the agreement at balloting which will take place Saturday from 8 a. m. to 4 p. m. (Eastern Standard Time).

Retains "Shapeup"

The agreement, besides granting the 13 cents hourly increase and a welfare plan, includes the following:

(1) Retention of the traditional twice-a-day "shapeup" or work call, with the guarantee of 4 hours work for men called to work only once in a single day.

(2) Guarantee of a total of 6 hours work for those called to jobs at both the 8 a. m. and 1 p. m. shapeups.

(3) A 1-week paid vacation for those working between 800 and 1349 hours a year, and a 2-week paid vacation for those working more than 1350 hours a year.

(4) An increase of 19½ cents hourly in the present night, weekend and overtime pay rate of $2.62½, retroactive to August 21. (Earlier, the union had asked a

Taft Hints He May Quit Party Post

Senator Declares Act Bearing Name Doesn't Ban Strikes

Milan, Italy, Nov. 25 (U.P.).—Senator Robert A. Taft (R., Ohio) said today that he could not say anything on American domestic politics or make any decisions on his own position as a Republican leader "until I have consulted my party."

Asked specifically whether he would give up his chairmanship of the Republican Party policy committee, he smiled and said:

"Of course there is a possibility of my resigning."

Despite his ban on political talk during his vacation in Europe, Taft said of the future of anti-strike legislation:

"I do not want to talk American politics until I get back home. But I want to point out to you that the law which carries my name is not an antistrike law. Strikes are perfectly legal in the United States. Political strikes fomented by Communists are illegal, and I believe no labor man in the United States has any doubt about this."

He added:

"I have been impressed by the amount of activity and reconstruction going on everywhere in Italy. This country is certainly doing its share in the Marshall Plan."

Armed Man Gets $400 in Holdup of Childs Restaurant

An armed man held up Childs Restaurant at 600 N. Capitol st. shortly before 9 last night and ran off with an estimated $400.

A police lookout was broadcast for a dark complexioned, narrow faced, stockily built white man, about 5 feet 9½ inches tall, wearing a navy blue short coat and dark felt hat.

A spokesman at the restaurant said the man wore his coat collar turned up and kept his face averted during the holdup. He made his escape through the crowded restaurant and fled west on Massachusetts ave. nw.

CIO Leaders To Deal With Red Invaders

Are Given Almost Unlimited Powers; Durkin Is Defiant

Portland, Oreg., Nov. 25 (AP).—The CIO today gave its leadership almost unlimited powers to deal with Communists who have moved into small CIO unions.

Thus the convention delegates transformed into concrete action the jolting anti-Communist speeches that have made this convention one that will be long remembered in labor history.

By a standing vote roughly estimated at a 10-to-1 rating, the convention adopted a resolution which gives the CIO executive board power to take such action "as may be appropriate and necessary" to bring about effective organization of workers in industries where CIO unions have "failed."

Late today the convention beat down left-wing opposition again and raised the CIO's per capita tax from 5 cents a month to 8 cents a month.

The additional 3 cents will be earmarked as follows: 2 cents for the Southern organizing drive, and the other penny for general expenses of the national CIO.

The per capita tax is the amount paid to the national headquarters by every CIO union for each of its members.

The CIO claims to have more than six million members. On this basis, the additional 3 cents would bring in an additional $2,160,000 a year, of which $1,440,000 would go to the Southern drive.

James Matles, organizing director of the United Electrical Workers, spoke against the measure on the ground that his union has heavy expenses of its own. Walter Reuther, president of the Auto Workers, said if the Electrical Workers would "eliminate some of their extra-curricular activities" they would get along better.

Later, James Durkin, president of the Office and Professional Workers, issued a statement to the press, defying the CIO action on organizing.

He said his union's membership has determined its policies and leadership in the past and will continue to do so. He said the resolu-

Dutch Officials' Visit Augurs Early End to Indonesian Strife

By Ferdinand Kuhn, Jr.
Post Reporter

For the first time in almost a year, there is real hope in Washington of a settlement of the long and costly struggle between the Netherlands and the nationalist republic in Indonesia.

If the hope is fulfilled, it will mean the economic revival of one of the world's richest sources of raw materials, and also the release of large stocks of rubber, sugar, copra and other raw materials needed for European and world recovery.

Prospects of a settlement are regarded here as vastly improved by the return to Java this week of the Netherlands Foreign Minister, Derek U. Stikker, after a previous visit three weeks ago. On the earlier visit Stikker went alone and talked with Mohammed Hatta, the republic's Premier, whose government had just put down a Communist insurrection.

Stikker went back to The Hague with the feeling that the republic's government was shaky, but that a settlement was not impossible. Apparently he convinced his cabinet that it was worth trying.

Now he has flown to Batavia at the head of a delegation representing every important element of Dutch political life. He himself is a Liberal Party leader; he has brought with him Dr. Emanuel Sassen, the minister of overseas territories, a Catholic Party member, and with them are four prominent members of the Netherlands Parliament, including the Labor Party leader.

It has been described as the most impressive group ever sent by any country to seek an agreement with a dependent territory. The British never sent anything like it when they were negotiating their final settlement with India.

American officials are watching Stikker's progress with unconcealed interest and approval. When Stikker visited Washington briefly last month, Secretary Marshall left him in no doubt that the United States would like to see the long stalemate ended and a settlement reached.

Publicly, the State Department had to be discreet about its wishes, for the United States is one of the three members of the United Nations' "Good Offices Committee," set up to bring the Netherlands and the republic together.

Privately, however, officials here have been increasingly impatient because the political upheaval in the Indies was hampering economic recovery in Europe and all over the world. Washington also worried about the Communist danger in Indonesia and felt the best way to avert it was to begin car-

Virginia 'Blue Baby' of 13

Hopkins Will Test Boy to Find If Surgery Can Save His Life

A 13-year-old Mountain Falls (Va.) boy will travel to the Johns Hopkins Clinic in Baltimore on Monday to learn whether a delicate operation can save him from a probable early death.

Claude Sine, the son of Mr. and Mrs. Raymond Sine, was born a "blue baby." In cases similar to his, most children do not live.

The isolated mountain community in which Claude lives, about 8 miles from Winchester, is ready to raise the $600 the operation will probably cost—if an operation can save the boy.

A Johns Hopkins spokesman yesterday gave this account of young Sine's case:

Claude with born with a heart malformation, which meant that his body did not get enough oxygen from the blood. When this heart condition reaches the critical stage—in Claude's case, sometime before adulthood—the victim's skin takes on the blue tint.

On Monday, or as soon after that time as possible, the Hopkins Clinic will try to determine whether the surgical operation devised by Drs. Alfred Blalock and Helen B. Taussig will help Claude.

Some "blue baby" cases are not operable; in other cases, they can be operated upon, but the odds are against the victim's living to normal adulthood, the hospital said.

But in 800 cases treated by the Blalock-Taussig technique over the past four years, about 85 per cent improved after operation.

Front Extends 30 Miles

Nanking Claims First Round In New Battle Near Suchow

Nanking, Nov. 25 (U.P.).—Chinese government forces have won the first phase of a new, large-scale battle south of Suchow, the semi-official Central News Agency claimed today.

It said in a dispatch from Suchow that the Nationalists and Communists were throwing reinforcements into the fight along a 30-mile front between Suhsien and Linpi, 45 miles south of Suchow and 145 miles northwest of Nanking.

The Communists were pushed east of the Suchow-Nanking railway as a result of the Nationalists' capture of Suhsien yesterday, the agency said.

The government invited 22 foreign and Chinese correspondents to visit Suchow for two days, indicating the city is believed in no immediate danger. They left by plane from Nanking this morning.

The Red radio in western China claimed the Nationalists lost 11,000 men in captured, killed and wounded at Suhsien. It did not admit the fall of Suhsien.

Information Director Hollington K. Tong refused to comment on a statement yesterday by Secretary of State George C. Marshall that the United States will proceed cautiously in trying to help President Chiang Kai-shek's government.

Other officials said the statement showed the United States had not yet arrived at any China policy and that Marshall had not ruled out the possibility of greater aid to Chiang.

Sir Hari Singh, Maharaja of Kashmir, Is Unhappy in 'Land of Happy Valley'

An unhappy maharaja is Sir Hari Singh, hereditary ruler of fabled Kashmir's "Happy Valley."

There was a time when the maharaja—under supervision of a British agent—was monarch of all he surveyed in that high-incredible land of his, a land of legendary beauty, awe-inspiring Himalayan peaks and mirror-like lakes.

SIR HARI SINGH
The unhappy maharaja

Then the British pulled out of Indian Empire last year and left it up to the 500-odd princely rulers to choose for themselves whether to join Hindu India or Moslem Pakistan.

The maharaja of Kashmir, for the lack of a nail, nearly lost his princedom. The nail in this instance was a firm decision. Sir Hari Singh vacillated, and may-haps hoped to convert his duchy—approximately the size of Minnesota—into a sovereign State.

While Sir Hari hedged, wild Waziri tribesman raided and plundered his princedom from the northwest no-man's land. Pakistan irregulars attacked from the west, and revolt broke out all over. In sheer desperation, the maharaja acceded to India in October, 1947, and Indian troops were flown by air to Kashmir to beat off the attackers.

This week the United Nations' Security Council is taking up the case of Kashmir. Pakistan has protested the Hindu maharaja's accession to India on the ground that three quarters of Kashmir's people are Moslems. (The rest are Hindus, Buddhists, and Sikhs.) India has promised to let a plebiscite determine which way Kashmir will go—but India first wants to restore order.

Whatever the outcome of the Security Council debates and the Kashmir fighting, Sir Hari Singh will be lucky to come out of it all with his throne, his modern-plumbing palaces, his elephants, and his racing horses.

Like all the other princes, he has already lost the courtesy of a gun-salute. As ruler of the largest of India's princely states, though his people numbered but a mere four million, Sir Hari Singh rated the full 21 guns.

Lieut. Gen. His Highness Maharaja Sir Hari Singh, Grand Knight Commander of the Star of India, Knght Commander of the Indian Empire, Knight Grand Cross of the Royal Victorian Order, and Doctor of Laws, succeeded to the throne and title in 1925, when he was a polo-playing, tiger-hunting dashing man of thirty.

Sir Hari was the fourth maharaja in line of a dynasty founded in 1846 by humble-born Dogr Rajput with the assistance of the British overlords. As heir apparent, Sir Hari was a gay young blade, well established in London's sporty set and well known to the Continent's swankiest resorts.

When but 24, the princeling became involved in a badger game and was "discovered" in a compromising affair with a married woman in Paris. Sir Hari was mulcted for a reported $750,000 by his blackmailers. The case came to light in London six years later when the wife and husband who served as foils for the racket sued to get their share of the swag. For reasons of state, the judge prohibited mention of the maharaja's name. That worthy was referred to as "Mr. A." throughout the trial.

Sir Hari spent some 12 million dollars on his durbar—coronation—described as one of the most lavish and colorful of the twentieth century. He then settled back to building ultramodern palaces, racing his ponies, and acting something of a despot with his people.

Now 53, the heavily built maharaja is fleshy—haunch, paunch and jowel. He likes to wear Western-style clothes, often dons his lieutenant general's uniform. He recently sent his ailing son to the United States for a delicate operation.

Kashmir is hidden in the northernmost corner of the Indian subcontinent, bounded by India, Pakistan, Afghanistan, Russian Turkestan, Chinese Turkestan, and Tibet. The ancients celebrated in song Kashmir's shawls and silks, ibex and ooris. From time immemorial the Valley of Kashmir has been India's playground and health resort. Right now, though, it sn't doing Sir Hari Singh's health any good.

U. N. Council Asks End to Kashmir Strife

Paris, Nov. 25 (U.P.).—The United Nations Security Council appealed today to India and Pakistan to stop fighting in the princely state of Kashmir after Pakistan warned that the situation might develop into full-scale conflict.

Pakistan Foreign Minister Sir Mohammed Zafrullah Khan charged that Indian forces have advanced more than 50 miles in both the Ladakh and Poonch areas and have cut off the escape of 50,000 Moslem refugees into Pakistan.

India's Sir Cirja Bajpai claimed all Indian military operations in Kashmir have been defensive.

The Council appealed to both sides to help the U. N. Kashmir Commission decide on how to carry out a plebiscite in Kashmir, which is ruled by a Hindu, but has a predominantly Moslem population. Fighting broke out in the state when Maharajah Sir Hari Singh joined Kashmir with the Indian Commonwealth, although it borders chiefly on Kashmir.

Moderate Parties Reelect French Council Head

Paris, Nov. 25 (U.P.).—French middle-of-the-road forces combined today to reelect Gaston Monnerville, a Negro from French Guiana, president of the council of the republic, upper house of Parliament.

The Communists Marshaled only 19 votes against 199 for Monnerville. Gen. Charles de Gaulle's rally of the French People Party said the presidency was not one of its "objectives" and did not put up a candidate.

This overwhelming victory for the moderate parties was regarded as another sign of support for the stern anti-communist policies of Premier Henry Queuille. Monnerville ran as a nonparty candidate, but like Queuille he was a Moderate Socialist.

Commissions In Air Force, Army Offered

The Army and Air Force, striving to commission 40,000 additional men and women by June 30, 1949, now offer more ways to become an officer than ever before.

Under an expanded enlistment program, these two services have announced 11 major categories in which qualified persons—men and women, veterans and nonveterans—may become junior officers in Reserve or Regular components.

In the Army:

1. Veterans of any of the armed forces and enlisted men now on duty, between the ages of 19 and 32, can apply for immediate commissions as second lieutenants in the Officers' Reserve Corps if they have completed two years of college.

2. High School graduates—or men who can pass an equivalent educational examination—who are between 19 and 28, can enlist in the Army from civilian life for the purpose of attending Officer Candidate School.

3. By direct appointment, certain Regular Army enlisted men and warrant officers are commissioned from the ranks; selected men from the Regular Army and National Guard are given appointments to West Point.

4. Former World War II officers, who do not hold Reserve commissions, may apply for active duty tours and Reserve commissions.

5. Reserve officers may apply for return to active duty.

6. Distinguished ROTC graduates are offered Regular Army commissions; others may go on two-year competitive tours for such commissions.

7. Women are offered similar opportunities as men to become Regular and Reserve officers and to attend an Officer Candidate School for Women.

In the Air Force:

1. A one-year cadet school is available to train pilots; distinguished graduates receive Regular commissions.

2. Voluntary recall of 10,000 technical, professional and administrative Air Reserve and Air National Guard officers to active duty is anticipated.

3. An Air ROTC program similar to that of the Army is in operation.

4. Air Force Reserve commissions may be awarded men between 20½ and 26½ years of age who have two years of college and complete Officer Candidate School.

5. Qualified professional and technical specialists may receive commissions in the AFR from lieutenant to colonel.

Israel Grateful for U. S. Aid, Junior Hadassah Is Told

More than 1000 young women gathered at the Statler Hotel yesterday for the opening session of the three-day twenty-fifth annual convention of Junior Hadassah, the Young Women's Zionist Organization of America.

Principal speaker at last night's session was Selig Brodetsky of London, mathematician and deputy chairman of the board of governors of the Hebrew University at Jerusalem.

Eliahu Epstein, special representative of the provisional government of Israel to the United States, told members at the morning session that Israel was grateful to the President and Government of the United States for their aid to Israel and their assurances given to the General Assembly of the United Nations that the frontiers of Israel will not be changed without Israel's consent.

Discussing the United Nations solution of November 29, 1947, which gave the state of Israel its basis in international law he said, "Throughout the desperate 12 months we have found that was all the United Nations gave us."

Epstein emphasized the fact that Israel has no intention of losing control over the Negev and that it will be defended as Tel Aviv, Haifa and the Jordan Valley were defended.

The Israeli representative commended Hadassah and Junior Hadassah for their rehabilitation work in Israel, particularly for the Junior Hadahhas sponsored children's village of Meier Shfeyah which he called "a model of its kind."

Miss Ralene Levy of Staten Island, N. Y., national convention co-chairman, told the delegates that Israel is the same "type of real democracy which the founding fathers of our country strove to establish on these shores. And, as we commemorate today their first Thanksgiving Day, so we may also give thanks for the privilege of witnessing in our time the rebirth of the State of Israel dedicated to the same fundamental principles of truth and justice."

After the formal opening of the convention, delegates were served brunch in the Presidential Ballroom of the hotel with members of Junior Hadassah singing and dancing in the lull periods.

15 Members Resign From Siamese Cabinet

Bangkok, Nov. 25 (AP).—Fifteen of the 25 members of Premier Phibun Songgram's cabinet resigned today.

The resignations followed a move by the Siamese Parliament for a more efficient government and a cleanup of corruption among officials.

Bunche Urges Peace Call to Jews, Arabs

By John G. Rogers

Paris, Nov. 25 (NYHT).—Dr. Ralph J. Bunche, acting Palestine mediator, asked the United Nations today to affirm Israel's right to U. N. membership, and to issue a strong call to the Jews and Arabs to get together and negotiate an end of the Palestine war.

Dr. Bunche asserted that there is a "possibility . . . that the Palestine conflict may be quickly dissolved and reasonably settled." He emphasized that this was only a possibility.

He said that if the U. N. keeps a firm hand it is likely real warfare will not again break out in the Holy Land.

Dr. Bunche made his statement before the Political Committee of the General Assembly as that committee completed today its opening general debate on Palestine and turned to face specific consideration of seven different resolutions—most of them calling for a new conciliation commission designed to promote Arab-Jewish negotiation.

However, in the face of this, the Political Committee heard once again from the Arabs—Egypt and Lebanon in this case—that they would never negotiate with the Jews. Egypt added that the only negotiations possible would be between Arabs and the United Nations.

Hector McNeil, British Minister of State, told the committee that direct Arab-Jewish negotiations were extremely unlikely. Furthermore, he said, if they were held now they would be unfair because the current military superiority of the Jews would be like a club held over the Arabs.

A Russian proposal, introduced today, asks that all foreign troops get out of Palestine, and that the Security Council take action to see that there is no resumption of military operation in Palestine.

6000 Tons Flown 2d Time by Airlift

Berlin, Nov. 25 (U.P.).—American airlift pilots ate their Thanksgiving turkey on the run today as clear skies allowed them to fly 6116 tons of supplies into Berlin.

This was the second time the tonnage has gone over the 6000-ton mark since the airlift went into operation June 24. British and American pilots made 716 flights during the day to bring the grand total of airlift supplies up to 575,045 tons.

Between flights, the pilots ate their turkey at mobile canteens roller out onto the airfields while the planes were unloaded.

Italy's Largest Battleship Seized By Navy Creditor

La Spezia, Italy, Nov. 25 (U.P.).—Italy's largest battleship, the 35,000-ton Vittorio Veneto, was seized by a creditor today as security against a debt owed by the Italian navy.

The Italia Construction Co. of Leghorn, which seized the ship in lieu of several million lire owed by the navy, said it would sell it at auction if the government does not pay up in 10 days.

The Vittorio Veneto, built in 1940, was scheduled to be scrapped in accordance with peace treaty terms and recently was put on sale by the navy.

Police Seize Load of Arms, Ammunition

New York, Nov. 25 (AP).—Police today seized a truckload of arms and Ammunition in a Manhattan garage and arrested five men at the scene.

The five were charged with violation of the weapons law. Police said they denied knowing their crated load contained rifles, machineguns, ammunition and other weapons, claiming they were hired to haul the crates to New Brunswick, N. J., by a man whose name they did not know.

A large quantity of arms reportedly destined for Jewish forces in Israel was seized here several months ago. However, authorities made no immediate comparison in the two cases.

Those arrested today identified themselves as Bertram Koppelman, 22, Ephraim Gelhard, 22, and Ralph Gelhard, 25, all of Bound Brook, N. J.; Michael Dermier, 21, New Brunswick, and George L. Studley, New York.

U. S. Ready to Talk On West Alliance

By The Associated Press

The Truman Administration, with powerful Republican backing, made ready yesterday to begin crucial new talks looking toward an Atlantic alliance against expansion of Soviet power.

These discussions may begin here next June.

Britain, France, Belgium, the Netherlands and Luxembourg have been laboring in London seeking agreement on a draft of an agreement for submission to Secretary of State Marshall here.

Marshall told his news conference Wednesday that he assumes the United States will begin discussions shortly with these countries and Canada.

When the United States negotiators agree with the other countries on terms of the proposed alliance it is expected that a number of other countries will be invited to join in a full-fledged international conference to consider the question.

Whether the United States ratifies the proposed pact and just what military aid this country will give to the other nations are questions for Congress to determine finally.

But the alliance idea drew strong support yesterday from Representative Eaton (R., N. J.), top Republican foreign policy adviser. Eaton has been chairman of the House Foreign Affairs Committee in the Eightieth Congress and will be ranking minority member of the committee in the new Congress.

Eaton Urges Giving Arms

The United States, he told reporters, should stand ready to supply arms and technical advice to friendly western European nations "if they need it and if we have it to spare."

It would be "the last calamity of our age," he said, if western Europe should fall under the domination of Russia.

Strong support for military, as well as economic aid, for western Europe came, too, from a committee of the Chamber of Commerce of the United States.

"The Soviet threat to the security and structure of western society" is the "most dangerous and baffing known to modern history," said a review issued by the chamber's committee on international political and social problems.

"What the Kremlin seems to respect is force and only force," the committee added.

Submitted for possible action by the chamber as a whole later, the report was prepared under the chairmanship of Clem D. Johnston of Roanoke, Va.

Russians Must Be Convinced

Moscow's leadership must be convinced, the report said, of two things:

1. That the United States will avoid both aggression and the path which leads to appeasement.

2. That it will develop not only its own means of defense, but will assist the ECA (Economic Cooperation Administration) nations to help themselves economically and militarily.

Meanwhile, it said, "businessmen, and other citizens, must continue to address themselves to the correction of any social, economic and political weaknesses in the American system, actual or potential, upon which Communism may feed."

As for defense pacts, the committee said that "regional and other collective arrangements for individual and collective self-defense are in accordance with the purposes, principles and provisions of the charter of the United Nations."

It recalled that last June the Senate went on record for the Vandenberg resolution advocating that the United States take part in such pacts as are based on self-help and mutual aid and which affect this Nation's national security.

Dutch Officials Visit Indonesia

rying out Queen Wilhelmina's promise to give the islands the same kind of freedom Canada has within the British Commonwealth.

Pact Signed on Destroyer

Last January, after many false starts, an agreement was signed aboard the American destroyer Renville, providing that a United States of Indonesia be set up at the end of an undetermined interim period. The U. S. I. would comprise most of the 3000-mile-long archipelago, as far east as, but not including, the huge and primitive island of New Guinea.

The U. S. I. would be made up of a number of states, of which the Republic of Indonesia would be one. The republic, formed at the end of the Japanese occupation, then included the central block of Java, the richest and most populuous of all the islands, as well as the smaller island of Madura and parts of Sumatra.

The Renville agreement called for a series of successive steps, beginning with the evacuation of Netherland and republic troops from each other's territory, and followed by the setting up of an interim government, the delineation of the various states a plebiscite, and then a constitutional convention.

Only when the last step had been taken would the Netherlands give up its sovereignty over the Indies and bring the United States of Indonesia into a union with the Netherlands, linked only by a common crown.

Each Side Accuses Others.

The first of these requirements, the evacuation of troops, was carried out, but no progress was made toward the others. Each side charged the other with violations of its agreements. The republic bitterly resented a Netherlands blockade which prevented any trade to and from the Republic's territory. The Dutch, for their part, feared that any supplies brought into the republic, and any sales of goods from the Republic, might help to arm the Communists.

The republic is expected here to make at least two important conditions in the talks with Stikker and his colleagues. One is that the blockade be ended; the other that the present government of the republic be recognized as the government of one of the states of the coming United States of Indonesia. In other islands the Dutch have already set up representative governments, some of them made up of anti-Netherland and pro-Republican officials.

Guarantees Expected

The Dutch, on their side, probably will want assurances, first, that the Communists be kept under control, and second, that the republic will not try to force its hold upon areas beyond its present boundaries.

Probably compromises will be needed, with concessions from both sides, before there can be an agreement. But officials here now believe both sides genuinely want and need a settlement—the republic, because it is suffering acutely from the Dutch blockade; the Dutch, because they are alarmed at the inroads of communism in Asia and at the economic losses caused by continued strife.

Reasonable Men in Saddle

For the first time, it felt here, reasonable men on both sides are in the saddle. Hatta, the republic's leader, has outlawed communism and has defeated an armed rebellion without help from the outside. Stikker, the Netherlands' chief negotiator, is a liberal businessman whose philosophy is something like that of the late Wendell Willkie. The old colonial-minded officials no longer determine Netherland policies.

These are some of the reasons why there is good hope here, and why good news may come from far-off Indonesia before long.

Junta Names Cabinet of 13 In Venezuela

Caracas, Venezuela, Nov. 25 (U.P.).—The military punta that overthrew President Romulo Gallegos yesterday in a bloodless coup named a provisional cabinet of eight independents and three military leaders today to run oil-rich Venezuela.

The 11 will serve under acting President Lieut. Col. Delgado Chalbaud, former Defense Minister and a member of the three-man junta that led the army-backed revolt.

[Col. Jorge Marcano, attached to the Venezuelan Embassy in Washington as chief of military missions in United States, was appointed Minister of Communications in the provisonal government. The Associated Press said he left New York by plane Thursday for Caracas.—Editor's Note.]

Caracas, the capital, returned slowly to normal. Most stores and plants were opened for business, and public offices, except the Interior Ministry, functioned as usual.

But schools remained closed for the second day and soldiers continued to guard communications, utilities, newspaper offices and other strategic points.

The official radio urged throughout the day tha the people remain to their jobs. The army guaranteed workers their recently won social gains.

(The New York office of the Crole Petroleum Co. said it had received word that workers in its Venezuelan fields were reporting to their jobs. The company, a subsidiary of the Standard Oil Co. of New Jersey, expected to resume normal operations by 7 a. m. Friday.)

Eurasian War Plan Ascribed to Russia

Paris, Nov. 25 (AP).—Gen. A. G. L. McNaughton of Canada told a select French audience this week some Russian leaders may be thinking of a combined European-Asiatic threat to North American security.

The text of the address Tuesday to a private meeting of French military men was released by the Canadian United Nations delegation today.

He said "it is clear that the only possible source of trouble which could threaten the safety of North America would be from some combination of forces in Europe and Asia which had extended its dominances to the oceans to the west, to the east and to the north."

McNaughton, wartime commander of Canadian forces, is Canada's atomic expert and representative on the U. N. Security Council.

He said "those who hold these views might envisage their attainment" by one or more of these means:

1. Possession of the atom bomb or another weapon of mass destruction.

2. Weakening the United States, Britain, France or other countries through "political disturbances, financial depression or unemployment."

3. "More probably," by improving Soviet power relative to the rest of the world by reason of quarrels and disputes between nations which would bring "turmoil and distraction" in vital areas such as the eastern Mediterranean. This was an obvious reference to Palestine.

McNaughton said Canada's policy "should war come, is to insure we and our potential allies are in a position to win and win quickly." He said that is one of the reasons the United States and Canada are about to negotiate a North Atlantic military alliance with the Brussels allies—Britain, France, Belgium, the Netherlands and Luxembourg.

Retail Food Costs Drop Slightly for Second Month

The retail cost of the family "market basket" of farm food products dropped slightly in September for the second straight month.

It cost $701 in September compared with $704 in August. The record high was $709 in July.

The typical "basket" as set up by the Agriculture Department, contains enough farm food to feed a family of three for one year. It is based on average prewar purchases for the period 1935-39.

Dutch Bar Newsmen From Indonesia Talks

Batavia, Java, Nov. 25 (U.P.).—Netherlands authorities today barred Dutch correspondents from visiting Jogjakarta, completing the blackout of news from the Republican capital.

Foreign correspondents were officially barred yesterday.

The order was issued on the eve of the renewal of Dutch-Indonesian negotiations which were expected either to bring peace to Indonesia or to lead to a remobilization of Dutch and native forces.

The move evoked a strong rebuke from a Republican spokesman who said the "big question now is why the Dutch desire to cut off the Republic from contact with the outside world."

The influential Dutch daily paper Nieuwsgier described the news ban as "the worst thing that can happen."

Japs Pen Poems

'Cold Moon . . . Is Now Here,' Tojo Writes

Tokyo, Nov. 25 (AP).—Four of the seven Japanese leaders condemned to hang for war crimes have sent poems to their families since hearing their sentences.

Tokyo newspapers published the poems today.

Former Premier Hideki Tojo wrote:

"The cold moon,
"Many eras it has lighted,
"And is now here."

Gen. Kenji Doihara, who has boasted of his exploits in China that "To say my name in China is like saying tiger—people pale," wrote:

"Esteemed am I,
"Born into the world like a bubble.
And dissipating like the dew."

From Ken. Iwane Matsui, convicted of the "rape of Nanking:"

"Thinking back
"Over a lifetime of over 70 years
"Regrets are long.
"I have reached the green mountains (death).
"Now to picnic in the other world."

Gen. Akiro Muto, chief of staff to Gen. Tomoyuki Yamashita in the Philippines:

"Falling leaves of autumn
"Go the way
"As they are blown."

Tokyo newspapers quoted Tojo's wife as saying she is resigned she will never see her husband again. She last saw him on the day he was sentenced, November 12.

Mrs. Tojo said the former Premier smiled at her and said:

"My fate that I should become this way was decided 65 years ago when I was born. Only I did not know it because I was a simple man."

Dutch Girl Plots Own Murder, Gets Friend to Kill Her

Enkhuizen, Holland, Nov. 25 (U.P.).—Pretty Annie Rolls, 16, plotted her own murder.

She wanted to die from knife wounds, bound to a stake in the fields outside this quiet Dutch village.

For her murderer she selected Matthie Huisman, 15, her schoolboy sweetheart. They walked together to the appointed place, Annie undressed herself and then ordered Matthie to tie her to a stake.

Matthie took out his knife and stabbed her to death.

This was the story Matthie told police a few days ago. They didn't believe him until yesterday, after Annie's funeral, when they found her diary. In it was this passage:

"I shall be murdered and Matthie will help me."

Civilian Aid Is Held Vital to 'New' Army

Chicago, Nov. 25 (Spl.).—The Army's sharp break with tradition in dealing with its soldiers can succeed only with sympathetic civilian help, Brig. Gen. C. T. Lanham said today.

General Lanham, head of the Army's troop information service, spoke before the twenty-eighth annual meeting of the National Council for Social Studies.

An Army, Lanham said, is necessarily "the antithesis of everything held dear by a democratic community." It is totalitarian, he said, and its leaders must be "vested with great power" and therefore "subject to the corroding and corrupting influences that attend personal power." Its men must acquire the habit of discipline, "a process unfavorably known as regimentation."

These facts, Lanham said, have made the military services subject to criticism from many civilians and to fears that it might come to dominate the political structure.

"These very real fears," he continued, "have repeatedly led us in previous times of peace to reduce our Army to a state of impotence, wall it up in isolated and forgotten garrisons handed down from frontier days, and then wipe it from our minds and, I am afraid, from our consciences.

"An Army cannot thrive on Burke's prescription for the colonies—salutary neglect. An Army abandoned by the clergy, ignored by education, pilloried by the press, and forsaken by the civil community will inevitably degenerate professionally and rot morally. This has happened before. We must not let it happen again, for in addition to the social evils implicit in such miasmic conditions, our military weakness invites external forces to destroy the very values we had sought by this deliberate policy to safeguard."

Since the international situation requires that a large army be maintained, made up of large numbers of young men, Lanham said, "we must see that this substantial period of their lives is not spent in a civic valuum, in an educational wasteland, in a moral slum."

He called for those in his audience to help in returning these men to their homes "as self-respecting, mature citizens, strengthened by self-discipline and fortified in the democratic faith by living and forking with men of all creeds, of all origins, of all economic and educational levels."

There is no substitute in warfare, Lanham said, for the moral factor, the "will to win." Therefore, he said, "I contend that the foundations of our national power reside ultimately in the virutes of our Government and in those educative processes that bring to our people an understanding of that shining philosophy upon which our country stands."

The Army, Lanham said, seeks these four major objectives in its work of educating and informing the soldier:

1. "To foster the dignity and integrity of the individual soldier in contrast to that traditional anonymity that crushes the spirit, that leads a soldier to refer to himself as a dogface, a GI. Man can suffer no greater indignity than loss of his identity."

2. "To bring to our young men an understanding and an appreciation of the American ideal; to nourish that ideal, and to build an abiding belief in the future of our country and the democratic process."

3. "To provide an answer to the soldier's eternal and inevitable question: 'Why?' We base this on the fact that the American soldier can be led but not driven and to lead him he must have an adequate and an intelligent explanation of the things he is called upon to do."

4. To keep the men of the Army aware of the great national and international issues that confront us from day to day in order that each man may understand the vital interest those matters hold for him as a soldier and as a citizen."

Of the soldier overseas as a representative of America, Lanham said he was handicapped by his youth and inexperience. But he pointed to a deeper fault.

"There can be no question," he said, "that the wartime soldier and the occupation soldier were in large measure politically illiterate. It is equally true, I think, that our young men are no match dialectically with the sophisticates of Europe. Unhappily, when driven into an intellectual corner, they turn too often for defense to our physical abundance, to our radios, our automobiles, our washing machines, our electric refrigerators, and ultimately and triumphantly to the American bathroom.

"It is unfortunate that we are not more skillful advocates of the philosophy we live by, not because we are in danger of being converted to other ways of life, for our studies show that the impact of European peoples upon the American soldier has merely intensified his devotion to his own country, but because the peoples of Europe are bewildered by men who appear indifferent to the political and philosophical bases of the most powerful nation in the world."

Speaking of the new mode of discipline, Lanham conceded that it has been labeled "mollycoddling" by some critics outside the Army as well as inside. But he said these critics apparently were "bemused by that brittle counterfeit of discipline which is based on fear. We seek the tougher, more enduring discipline that is rooted in understanding. Nothing short of this has ever suceeded with the American soldier and nothing ever will."

Churchill Says Eire Must Pay To Enjoy Empire Privileges

London, Nov. 25 (AP).—Prime Minister Attlee said today Britain will recognize that Eire is outside the commonwealth though still having an especially close relationship with it.

But Conservative Leader Winston Churchill at once declared in the House of Commons that his party would oppose this acquiescence "in arrangements which leave southern Ireland in full enjoyment of any advantages there may be in being connected with the British Empire and Commonwealth without any reciprocal obligations of their own toward them."

The Dail (Irish Parliament) is enacting laws to sever the last legal link with the crown.

Attlee told the Commons that "the United Kingdom will not regard this legislation by Eire as placing Eire in the category of foreign countries, or Eire citizens in the category of foreigners."

He said Irishmen in the United Kingdom and colonies may be registered as British citizens if they wish.

circlement of the Monschau position.

The great stand of the division had not only badly upset the timetable of the German spearheads; its gallant action had been most helpful to the Second Division at the vitally important Monschau shoulder until the First Division, under Brig. Gen. Clift Andrus, and the Ninth, under Maj. Gen. Louis A. Craig, came up to its support. Thereafter, with these three proved and battle-tested units holding the position, the safety of our northern shoulder was practically a certainty.

Germans Advance Rapidly in Center

The German's advance, in spite of his failure at Monschau, was very rapid through the center of the break-through. As the advance continued it gradually began swinging to the north and northwest, and it was evident that the enemy's objective lay in that direction. We believed that his first purpose would be the capture of Liege. We reasoned that even if he had the more ambitious objective of Antwerp he would have to depend partially upon supplies he might capture at Liege.

So we were particularly careful about Liege, where there were vast quantities of every kind of vital supplies, including fuel and food. However, we were determined that the enemy would be stopped short of that point, and in the outcome he never got close to Liege.

On the 17th Bradley ordered the XVIII Airborne Corps from reserve to the front with Bastogne its original destination. General Middleton, then in Bastogne, saw the great importance of the spot and urged preparation to hold it. He conferred with Bradley by telephone, and although he stated that the place could soon be surrounded, recommended that it be held. It became necessary to divert the Eighty-second Airborne Division to the north toward Stavelot, so the 101st, with detachments of the VIII Corps, became the defenders of Bastogne.

Developments were closely examined and analyzed all during December 17 and 18. By the night of the 18th felt we had sufficient information of the enemy's strength, intentions and situation, and of our own capabilities, to lay down a specific plan for our counter-action. On the early morning of December 19, accompanied by Air Chief Marshal Hedder and a small group of staff officers, I went to Verdum, where Generals Bradley, Patton and Devers had been ordered to meet me.

'Present Situation An Opportunity'

As the conference started, with every one around a long table, I remarked: "The present situation is to be regarded as one of opportunity for us and not of disaster. There will be only cheerful faces at this conference table." True to his impulsive nature, General Patton broke out with, "Hell, let's have the guts to let the —— —— —— go all the way to Paris. Then we'll really cut 'em off and chew 'em up." Every one, including Patton, smiled at this one, but I replied that the enemy would never be allowed to cross the Meuse.

It was arranged for Patton to concentrate his attacking corps of at least three divisions in the general vicinity of Arlon and from that point to begin the advance toward Bastogne. I personally cautioned him against piecemeal attack and gave directions that the advance was to be methodical and sure. Patton at first did not seem to comprehend the strength of the German assault and spoke so lightly of the task assigned him that I felt it necessary to impress upon him the need of strength and cohesion in his own advance.

The German attack had quickly gained the popular name of "Battle of the Bulge" because of the rapid initial progress made by the heavy assault against our weakly held lines, with a resulting penetration into our front that reached a maximum depth of some 50 miles.

This kind of battle places maximum strain upon an army in the field, from the highest general to the last private in the ranks. Its destructive moral effect falls most heavily, of course, upon the troop units that are struck by the attack. Confronted by overwhelming power, and unaware of the measures that their commanders have in mind for moving to their support, the soldiers in the front lines, suffering all the dangers and risks of actual contact, inevitably experience confusion, bewilderment, and discouragement.

Commanders Carry Heavy Burdens Also

In a different way, the pressure upon higher commanders is equally great. No matter how confident they may be of their ultimate ability to foil the enemy and even to turn the situation into a favorable one, there always exists the danger, when the enemy has the initiative, of something going wrong.

The history of war is replete with instances where a sudden panic, an unexpected change of weather, or some other unforeseen circumstance has defeated the best-laid plans and brought reverse rather than victory. It would be idle and false to pretend that the Allied forces, in all echelons, did not suffer strain and worry throughout the first week of the Ardennes attack. It would be equally false to overemphasize the extent and the effect.

Early in the battle, on December 22, I issued one of the few "Orders of the Day" I wrote during the war. In it I said:

By rushing out from his fixed defenses the enemy may give us the chance to turn his great gamble into his worst defeat. So I call upon every man, of all the Allies, to rise to new heights of courage, of resolution and of effort. Let every one hold before him a single thought—to destroy the enemy on the ground, in the air, everywhere — destroy him! United in this determination and with unshakable faith in the cause for which we fight, we will, with God's help, go forward to our greatest victory.

The Battle of the Bulge was, in the end, a victory for the Allied armies. General Eisenhower had forced the enemy to commit his last reserves to battle, instead of withdrawing them to prepared positions behind the Rhine. Before the battle was over, however, it had alarmed the Allied world. Field Marshal Montgomery had held an unfortunate press conference which echoed back and forth across the Atlantic. The incident caused General Eisenhower "more distress and worry than did any similar one of the war."

These were the basic problems of Allied command. During the same days, General Eisenhower was forced to threaten General deGaulle with a stoppage of all his military supplies unless he accepted the general strategic plan around Strasbourg. Both these incidents are reported for the first time in the next installment of "Crusade in Europe," which will be published here tomorrow.

This is a condensed serialization of Dwight D. Eisenhower's "Crusade in Europe." It contains highlights of the book published by Doubleday & Co. Copyrighted by Doubleday & Co., Inc.

THE NEW YEAR'S FRONT—Map shows how First and Third armies launched the Ardennes offensive in January, 1945, driving the Germans back from the "bulge" they had created in the American front (broken line) General Eisenhower was determined to stop the enemy short of Liege, where there were vast quantities of supplies. The limit of penetration that could be permitted without irretrievable damage was the Meuse River, but the enemy never got that far

Senators Aid Monopolists, Patman Says

Representative Wright Patman (D., Tex.), yesterday accused a Senate subcommittee of waging "a propaganda drive against the anti-trust laws."

The subcommittee, headed by Senator Homer E. Capehart (R., Ind.), is investigating the economic effects of the Supreme Court's recent decision outlawing basing point pricing practices in the cement industry.

Patman and Capehart have clashed publicly several times over the investigation. His latest blast was issued by the publicity division of the Democratic National Committee.

Patman charged that the inquiry was aimed at diverting public attention from the "obvious fact" that the Supreme Court decision was a ruling against "conspiracies to fix prices in violation of law."

In addition, he accused big steel concerns of launching a vast propaganda drive to create an impression that "it was not the big firms against whom the decision was directed but rather small business which would suffer as a result of the Supreme Court decision."

Patman accused Capehart of seeking to "tear down the last obstacles which now stand against the march of monopoly toward the complete control of our economy."

Churchill Aide Hails Book by Eisenhower

London, Nov. 25 (AP).—Winston Churchill's number one wartime military aide says the book, "Crusade in Europe," is "worthy of its great author"—Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower.

In a review written for Friday's Daily Telegraph, Gen. Lord Ismay says the book has "a particular lesson for us all at the present time since it shows how strong, proud and independent peoples can be harmoniously united in the fight for freedom with irresistible effect."

Ismay was chief of staff to the British Minister of Defense, a post which Churchill held as well as the Prime Ministry.

Previous reviews in some sections of the British press complained that Eisenhower's book was "a blow at British-American friendship and understanding." One such review said it accorded "chilly praise" to Viscount Montgomery, British army leader, in contrast to an "extravagance of bouquets" handed to some American generals.

Reader "May Miss Drama"

Ismay said, however: "Americans often accuse us of understatement. 'Crusade in Europe' is almost British in this respect, and in the midst of the simple, straightforward narrative, the reader may well miss some of the drama."

He said there are passages in the book "which may well be the subject of argument."

There may be criticism, for example, Ismay said, "that too much prominence is given to American forces and too little to the British."

"We must remember, however, that Eisenhower's story does not start in earnest until 1942, by which time we had already been fighting for over two years and were stretched to the limit in theaters of war which are outside the scope of his book.

"It must also be remembered that although at the start of Overlord (the cross-channel operation) British and American forces were practically 50-50, at the end of the campaign there were nearly four times as many American divisions in Europe as British."

No Intention to Belittle

Ismay said "no one who really knows the man (Eisenhower) could entertain for a single moment the idea that he had any intention of belittling the British effort."

On this point the military correspondent of the Sunday Times wrote last Sunday: "One is forced to the conclusion that Eisenhower considers the war was really won by America and that every American view was right and every British idea wrong."

Ismay said no one acknowledged more generously than Eisenhower himself that "we had thrown into the struggle our last man and our last shilling."

10-Month Union Pilot Strike Against National Airline Ends

The 10-month strike of union pilots against National Airlines is over.

The walkout, which stemmed from a pilot's discharge after a landing crackup in 1946, was settled late Wednesday after prolonged negotiations which reached the White House level.

Details of the settlement were not announced in the joint statement by G. T. Baker, National's president, and David Behncke, head of the Airlines Pilots Association. They said, however, that both parties agreed to drop counter claims for damages totaling $11,750,000.

James M. Landis, former Civil Aeronautics Board chairman who mediated the dispute, said the 135 union pilots would go back to work "as promptly as safety requirements permit." Since the walkout started February 3 the airline has maintained its operations along the Eastern Seaboard with independent pilots.

After early mediation efforts failed, President Truman appointed a fact-finding board last July to investigate the strike. That board said National violated the Railway Labor Act and recommended reinstatement of the pilots. This recommendation was rejected by the airline.

The presidential board, however, did succeed in paving the way for settlement of a strike by mechanics and clerical workers which preceded the pilot walkout.

Landis said the agreement in general provides for the same working conditions prevailing before the strike began. The original dispute involving the discharge of Pilot Maston G. O'Neal will be submitted to the National Mediation Board for arbitration.

Further problems, however, are in prospect for the airline. Last September the CAB announced plans for hearings on proposal to turn over National's routes and equipment to other transport companies. These hearings are due to start next month.

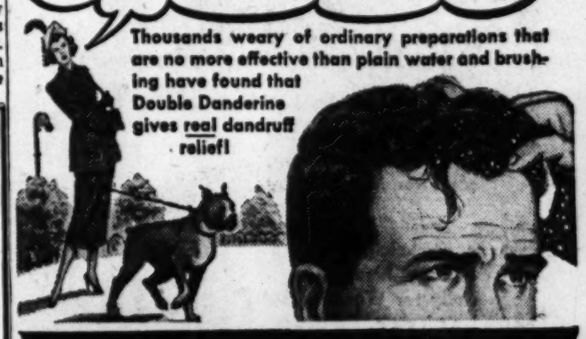
I HATE DANDRUFF!
Thousands weary of ordinary preparations that are no more effective than plain water and brushing have found that Double Danderine gives real dandruff relief!


Double DANDERINE GUARANTEES DANDRUFF RELIEF
Kills dandruff-causing germ*-on contact!
Refreshingly fragrant and easy-to-use, it contains an ingredient used by many hospitals. Provides amazing relief, even in some of the most severe cases.
Dandruff is a stigma, both socially and in business. By hurting your looks and your popularity, it does you great harm. That's why finding really effective relief is important.
You cannot get this relief by using ordinary preparations that simply remove loose dandruff. Plain water and brushing will do that. To get real relief from the most common kind of dandruff you must destroy the germ which authorities explain is its cause. And Double Danderine actually kills this germ on contact!
That's why we say Double Danderine guarantees dandruff relief. Try it. If you're not completely satisfied, return the empty bottle and your money will be refunded.
*Pityrosporum Ovale, the germ which leading authorities say is the cause of the most common kind of dandruff.

15-Cent Raise Won by Dockworkers in West

wage issue. The union wanted a 16-cent per hour increase, which would raise the base pay to $1.82.

When the strike was called, the employers withdrew all offers. They announced they would not negotiate with unions whose officers refused to sign non-Communist affidavits as required under the Taft-Hartley law. Bridges and Hugh Bryson, head of the marine cooks and stewards, would not sign such affidavits. They still haven't signed.

A month ago, CIO President Philip Murray sent trouble shooters Allan Haywood and R. J. Thomas West in an effort to end the strike. The CIO representatives proposed underwriting of a contract by the national organization. But no progress was made then.

Two weeks ago, A. E. Roth, representing the San Francisco Employers Council, offered a formula for settlement of the strike. Again, Haywood came out as Murray's representative.

Under the formula, it was agreed the employers and union would hold negotiations until midnight Sunday, November 20. At that time, if no agreement were reached the latest offer of the employers was to be submitted to the union rank and file for a vote.

Shortly before midnight, however, a joint announcement by both sides said the "clock had been stopped," meaning negotiations would continue although the negotiation committee theoretically was not in session.

AVC Unit Balks Anti-Communist Amendment

Cleveland, Nov. 25 (AP).—The national planning committee of the American Veterans Committee balked today at putting an anti-Communist amendment in the group's constitution.

Instead, it passed a resolution instructing the leadership to "clean out and keep out members of the Communist Party from our ranks."

The amendment was proposed by the Maryland delegation.

LONG MEETING ENDS—Federal Mediator Cyrus Ching (left) talks with Longshoremen's President Joe Ryan in New York. Early yesterday they announced that an agreement had been reached for ending the 16-day-old dockworkers strike. They had been in a huddle for almost nine hours

Express Slow-down to Stop

In Halifax it was reported that longshoremen there will breathe easier if United States dockworkers accept the terms. If the Halifax men work ships diverted to that port the ILA calls it strike-breaking. If they refuse to work diverted vessels, local officials say they're subject to heavy Canadian government fines. The stevedores left their legal status on the question up to the Canadian Federal Arbitration Board.

The dockworkers' agreement followed promise of another easing development in New York's disrupted labor picture.

A union spokesman said tonight a threatened strike of Hudson and Manhattan railroad trainmen "is definitely off."

Local 1060 of the Brotherhood of Railroad Trainmen withdrew its strike plans after the company said it will postpone firing 11 station agents.

The men were to have been discharged Saturday in a general reshuffling of personnel to cut operating costs. The union had scheduled a strike for 12:01 a. m. Saturday.

The railroad said in a statement the firings were postponed at the request of Federal Mediator Ross Foran "to give him ample opportunity" to seek settlements.

Officials of the AFL Brotherhood of Railway and Steamship Clerks announced yesterday they will order members to call off a "work slowdown" against the Railway Express Agency at midnight tonight.

The slowdown was in protest against discharge of 13 employes. It has caused the agency to embargo almost all rail and air express shipments in and out of the metropolitan area.

However, there was no indication of an end to a strike called by a local of the AFL teamsters union which affects about one third of the city's general trucking.

Printers Here Get 'Final' Wage Offer

Publishers of the four Washington newspapers have made their "last and final offer" to the printers union, Peyton R. Evans, executive secretary of the Washington Publishers Association, said yesterday.

Evans issued a statement commenting on an announcement by James J. O'Connor, president of the Columbia Typographical Union (AFL) No. 101, saying that the union officers and the scale committee would urge members of the union to reject the publishers' offer as inadequate.

The printers' union is set to meet on the proposal at 2 p. m. Sunday in Pythian Temple.

Evans said that, "even though the publishers believed that the previous offer had been more than adequate under existing circumstances, they had agreed to make the final offer in an effort to settle the present negotiations.

"The $5-a-week increase which was not accepted by the union committee," Evans said, "would bring the day scale to $2.57 an hour or $90 a week for day work, $95 for night work, and $100 for the third shift. And all shifts are 35 hours a week at straight time."

Evans said the hourly rate of $2.57 is "practically the highest rate paid in the United States and exceeds the hourly rate paid to members of the same union by the Washington book and job plants who receive $88.50 for a 37½-hour work week." Evans pointed out that the job shop scale was fixed at "recently concluded" negotiations.

At the outset the union asked the publishers for a $15 -a-week increase on all three shifts.

Queen Elizabeth Passengers Wildly Celebrate Dock Peace

Aboard the Queen Elizabeth, Southampton, England, Nov. 25 (AP). Apparent settlement of the dock workers' strike in New York and announcement that the Queen Elizabeth will sail on Sunday, 11 days late, set off an almost hysterical Thanksgiving celebration among the passengers today.

The noisiest demonstration was in the tourist class where some of the 500 passengers, mostly emigrants, were almost destitute.

Many had only about $20 when they embarked and some had only $8 left today to get them to destinations in the United States.

Settlement of the strike meant a reprieve from the line's order for all aboard to go ashore by Friday or Saturday. It also saved the Cunard Line the trouble of a possible "sit down" strike by some 900 of the passengers who objected to finding hotel accommodations ashore.

The ship's food stores had been almost depleted by the 1500 passengers of all classes who had lived at the line's expense since Friday night or Saturday.

But to make the day one of genuine Thanksgiving the line served turkey with cranberry sauce, chestnut stuffing and mince pies tonight.

News of the settlement of the strike spread from stem to stern of the huge ship and started a cheering celebration about 8 a. m.

Half-dressed men and women poured out of their cabins and paraded up and down the passageways or massed in excitement around the bulletin boards where notices soon were posted that the Queen Elizabeth will sail at about 8 a. m. Sunday. Some were laughing, some in tears.

A Cunard Line spokesman said the sailing was delayed until Sunday to fill up vacancies left by persons who had found other means of travel. Passengers who applied were given shore leave until Saturday. Special trains were arranged to return those from London who already had left the ship.

The Queen Elizabeth will call at Cherbourg Sunday also to pick up about 600 more passengers there.

The delayed departure cost the line about $20,000 a day.

The Queen Mary, a sister ship, will leave Wednesday, a week late. Another Cunard liner, the Parthia, will leave Liverpool Sunday, one day late.

Peyote Condemned

Doctors Ask End to Indian Alcohol Ban

By The Associated Press

An American Medical Association committee said yesterday that laws prohibiting the sale of alcoholic drinks to Indians are "worthless" and should be abolished.

Present laws are "so easy of circumvention" that they serve no purpose, the three-man committee said in a report.

The committee deplored what it termed the "unfortunate addiction to alcoholic excess among many Indians, particularly young men."

The committee also urged that peyote be outlawed nationally as a habit-forming drug.

It deplored recurrent budget cuts experienced by the Bureau of Indian Affairs in recent years and noted "a lack of consistency on the part of Congress in meeting its financial obligations to the Indian."

The recommendations were embodied in a report to Secretary of the Interior Krug by Dr. A. J. Chesley, secretary of the Minnesota State Board of Health; Dr. B. J. Branton, former president of the Minnesota State Medical Association and director of the Willmar Clinic, and Dr. W. F. Braasch, Rochester, Minn.

The report said the use of peyote or mescal button, a narcotic cactus grown in the Rio Grande area, has spread gradually from Indians of the Southwest to tribes in the Northwest.

"Unfortunately, the Indian Bureau permitted its use several years ago on the grounds that it was part of an Indian religious ceremony.

CIO Leaders To Act on Reds

tion is "an unwarranted and unjustifiable attack on our union and a threat to the autonomy and independence of all unions."

The resolution doesn't mention communism, and in fact by its language would apply to weak right-wing unions as well as those on the left.

But President Philip Murray left no doubt of what was mainly in his mind.

He said: "I'm not going to protect small cliques of men whose interests are promoted and propagated by the Daily Worker and the Communist Party."

He said these cliques "maintain political organizations, captive organizations, and don't fulfill their mission of organizing the unorganized."

He particularly attacked the leadership of the Office and Professional Workers Union, which opposed the resolution. A delegate from the United Public Workers also spoke against it.

Murray said that after the executive board investigates the Office and Professional Workers, he hopes the board—in justice to white collar workers of the country—will ask its officers to resign.

Today's action apparently does not affect left-wing elements of the two biggest CIO unions that oppose Murray's policies—the United Electrical Workers and the Longshoremen's Union. Those unions could hardly be accused of "failing" to organize their industries.

Murray made a passing reference to these two unions today, without naming them.

He said "most of the time of this convention has been consumed by the representatives of little organizations who have done nothing to build their unions, protesting against the policies of the CIO.

Then he said: "With the exception of two unions, the combined strength of the people opposing CIO policies is not over 82,000 members."

Replying to a question by Julius Emspak, secretary-treasurer of the Electrical Workers, Murray made it clear that the resolution does not empower the executive board to revoke charters of unions.

John Stanley, former secretary-treasurer of the Office and Professional Workers, said his union "has nothing to be ashamed of," that it has opened up new organizing fields among white collar workers, and is stronger than ever "despite defections."

Earlier the convention adopted without opposition a mild resolution on wages. The statement says it is essential that wages be "ever increasing," but it avoids a specific demand for a fourth round of postwar increases. The effect of the statement is to leave it to each of the CIO's 40 unions whether or not to demand higher wages in 1949.

Emil Mazey, secretary-treasurer of the United Auto Workers, took a somewhat stronger position than the resolution but didn't oppose it. He declared: "The workers of this Nation must have substantial wage increases." And, he said, they should have them without price increases. This is the same position Walter Reuther, president of the UAW, took in a speech here last week.

The convention will end Friday after election of officers. Murray seems certain to be reelected without opposition for his ninth year as president.

Today the delegates heard a speech by Walter White, executive secretary of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People. He urged that organized Negroes and organized labor stick together to work for President Truman's program in Congress.

Turkey Day At the Mission

The Washington Post

FEAST — Turkey dinners, with all the trimmings, were served to 86 men yesterday at the Central Union Mission, 613 C st. nw.

On a quiet holiday marked by bright, mild weather, Greater Washington residents yesterday ate their Thanksgiving turkey and fixin's and spent their afternoon relaxing with the family.

Most of those who left the city for holiday family visits seemed to be making it a weekend, as the railroads, airlines and other transportation agencies reported light travel following a Wednesday afternoon exodus.

But while most of the area's private and Government employes relaxed either here or at distant homes, there was one Federal officeholder who put in five hours of work yesterday.

That was President Truman, who was at his desk shortly after 9 a. m.—about an hour later than on a usual weekday—in the almost deserted White House.

No Interruptions

He worked steadily until almost 2 p. m. through a small mountain of papers, with no visitors or conferences to interrupt him.

Even when he put on his new gray fedora and a long dark overcoat and walked across Pennsylvania ave. to his temporary home at Blair House he carried a leather briefcase filled with "homework," the United Press reported.

"He's leaving because he doesn't want us to have to work," said an aide.

Joined by Mrs. Truman and daughter Margaret, the President had a light lunch at 2 p. m. The traditional turkey dinner came later, at 7 p. m., with Mrs. Truman's mother, Mrs. D. W. Wallace, and a few close friends joining the family around the board.

Few of the President's fellow citizens who were in town followed his Spartan work schedule, and most of them were content to stay at home. Even motorists were not much in evidence on nearby roads, the American Automobile Association reported.

Servicemen "Dig In"

Thousands of servicemen who remained at military installations, dug into the traditionally plentiful holiday meal provided for them.

The community shared its Thanksgiving turkey, and the fixin's, too, with the less fortunate both here and abroad.

At the Central Union Mission, 613 C st. nw., for instance, about 85 men without homes where their day could be enjoyed ate their fill after attending religious services in the mission's chapel. Some 25 other men staying at the mission had their turkey dinners after the others were through.

Those who answered the appeals of the Governors of their States set a mythical plate at their tables for a "silent guest," donating the money that would have been used to fill the plate to feed destitute children here and in other countries.

District residents who invite such "silent guests" to dinner during the season's holidays should send their donations to the American Silent Guest Committee, 8 West 40th st., New York 18.

The United Nations Appeal for Children will administer the funds, 75 per cent of which will go toward food for children in Europe and Asia, while the remainder will help youngsters here, it was explained by Mrs. Lester Neuman of 2815 Brandywine st. nw., the representative here.

Despite higher prices, the District consumed more of the traditional Thanksgiving birds than ever, according to Fred Kalker, chairman of the merchants and manufacturers' poultry division.

While total supply was shorter this year, the fact that dealers wound up with a "clean market" and carried virtually no turkey over the holiday indicated a larger consumption than in past years, Kolker explained.

A considerably shorter supply from the Midwest was partly filled out by more birds from Virginia, Maryland and other Eastern areas, he said.

While stores, business houses and Government offices will reopen today, the schools in the area will remain closed. For the school children and for those who are bridging the one-day gap to the weekend by taking today off, the Weather Bureau predicted a mild day with a maximum of 58 to 60 degrees, and increasing cloudiness. Yesterday's high was 52 degrees at 2:20 p. m.

Pet Turkey Sits At Family Dinner And Eats Turkey

North Windham, Me., Nov. 25 (AP).—Like a lot of people Darline, the turkey that survived Thanksgiving, was stuffed tonight—figuratively that is.

The 15-year-old hen turkey, a household pet of Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Connolly, helped the family do justice to the holiday dinner. Darline sat right up to the table with the folks—in a special, backless chair.

"She ate some turkey," Connolly said, "but she ate a lot more of the mashed potatoes, and she drank an awful lot of water."

But Darline didn't get as far as dessert.

"I guess she had too much of the other things," said Mrs. Connolly.

ABC Board to Hold Hearing On 'Distressed' Liquor Sales

The District Alcoholic Beverage Control Board will hold a public hearing on two proposals by local liquor wholesalers for changing sales policies. It was disclosed last night by Commissioner Guy Mason.

The board is expected to schedule a hearing on a proposal for prohibition of sale of "distressed merchandise" here at reduced prices. The wholesalers contend brokers buy such goods in other areas and sell here at prices undercutting standard levels used by authorized wholesalers.

The wholesalers have pointed out that the brokers pay only $100 license fees each year, while they pay $1500 a year and also a tax on stocks on hand.

The second proposal to be considered asks elimination of an ABC requirement that prohibits sale of tax-free liquors by wholesalers here. At present, embassies, in order to gain tax-free benefits, purchase their stocks from dealers in nearby States where such sales are not restricted.

Scott Nearing to Speak

Scott Nearing, author and lecturer, will speak at 7:30 tonight and again at 9 in the third of a lecture series sponsored by the World Events Committee at the YMCA, 1816 12th st. nw. His first talk will be on "Who Wants War," the second on "Seeds of Destruction."

FAO Delegates Eat Turkey at Farm Tables

Wilmer Garber, hog farmer of Prince William County, Va., felt "more hopeful about the United Nations Organization" yesterday after he shared his festive board with P. C. Ma of China, A. Holegabro-Holme of Denmark and John Dempsey of Ireland.

The Woodbridge farmer and his kin were one of 60 "typical" farm families in Maryland and Virginia who shared their Thanksgiving dinners with some 130 delegates to the United Nations Food and Agriculture Organization.

Garber found that "the fine time we all had just showed how wonderfully well people from different countries can get along, if they try and understand each other."

Similar sentiment was expressed by a dairy farmer from Montgomery County, Md., whose family played host to Erik Uhl and Miss Erna Peterson of Denmark.

"If we did more of this friendly getting together so we'd understand each other better, we'd have less war and more peace," in the opinion of Lawson King of Gaithersburg.

King said yesterday's dinner experiment made him think there ought to be an exchange between countries of persons in all walks of life. "It would be cheaper than war," he said.

His guests, amazed at the plenitude and variety of American food, were particularly impressed with the size of King's 24-pound gobbler.

One FAO delegate, who ate plenty of extra trimmings but no turkey was Dip Narain Sinha, vegetarian from India, a guest at the Thanksgiving spread of Miss Edith Rogers, dairy farmer of Fairfax County, Va.

The FAO guests were said to have shown great interest in farming techniques explained and demonstrated by their American hosts.

Woman Shot, Special Officer Is Suspended

The special police commission issued to William L. Johnson, messenger in District Commissioner John Russell Young's office, was suspended yesterday following the critical shooting of a 20-year-old woman at her home Wednesday night.

The commission, issued in March, 1947, for three years, authorized Johnson, 38, of 1528 2d st. sw., to work as a special officer at night at the Majestic Dance Studios, 1632 U st. nw.

Johnson is charged with assault with a dangerous weapon, and out on $1500 bond, in connection with the shooting of Miss Adele Herbert, 1003 New Jersey ave. nw. Miss Herbert, wounded in the abdomen, is at Freedmen's Hospital.

Police said both Johnson and Miss Herbert have maintained the shooting was accidental, occurring when Johnson came for his gun, which he had kept at her home, before going to work at the dance studios.

Thanksgiving Services Draw Thousands to D. C. Churches

Him would be an outrage," he continued.

The dignity of man, he said, rests solely on the fact that man is a child of God. "Faith in God's purpose for us is therefore the need not only for the soul's salvation but for the peace and order of society, Msgr. Cartwright declared.

"Those who are entrusted with great responsibilities and opportunities of service should remember that in the long run they can foster man's wider values only by helping to enhance his sense of dignity by realization of the faith which is the heart of our civilization," he said.

He urged that "those who minister to the temporal needs of an exhausted world shall be the friends of those who minister to the eternal needs."

Only when the world is "illuminated with faith in God" will the world of man shine forth from all its nations and peoples with the brightness of a universal thanksgiving, he concluded.

The Most Rev. Amleti Giovanni Cicignani, apostolic delegate to the United States, presided and the celebrant of the mass was the Most Rev. Patrick A. O'Boyle, archbishop of Washington.

Critical of Injustices

At Calvary Methodist Church, the Rev. Orris G. Robinson said we should be thankful for the comforts and freedom of America. At the same time that we rejoice in these things, he said, we ought to be constructively critical of our injustices to save ourselves from the devastations which have come to the rest of the world.

Speaking at a union service at Chevy Chase Presbyterian Church, Dr. Edward O. Clark, pastor of Chevy Chase Baptist Church, declared that the Protestant tradition of the worth of human personality is a part of the heritage of democracy.

"Our forefathers," he said "builded wisely this ship of state when they builded a wall of separation between church and state. Now there are those who would break down that wall of separation. They even presume to denounce our Supreme Court for upholding that honored American heritage.

"We have a priceless heritage in the principles of freedom of education, in the press, and in worship. Well may we dedicate ourselves to hold fast to this great heritage, which finds its rootage in our Protestant Christian faith," he concluded.

Rabbi Norman Gerstenfeld of the Washington Hebrew Congregation told a union service of downtown churches at Mount Vernon Place Methodist Church that the first settlers came to this country when Europe was in the midst of bloody religious conflict. Their settlement in this land was a repudiation of the old world, he said.

"We thank God not only for the fruit of the soil but for the fruit of the soul which strengthens the freedom of conscience and ethical will of free men seeking a better world," he stated.

At First Baptist Church, Dr. Edward Hughes Pruden reminded the congregation of the hardships and sacrifices out of which the Nation was born. "It would be a sad day for America if our accumulating material prosperity should ever make us soft or incapable of the courage and fortitude which our forefathers displayed," he said.

He recalled that the early settlers in America were refugees and urged that the Nation persevere in its efforts to share democratic ideals and principles with all mankind.

"This is a time for all men of serious mind and universal good will to recognize that only in a return to the God of our fathers is there any real hope for the future of he world," Dr. Pruden concluded.

'Burn Team' Fights To Save Plucky Boy

There is no home emergency treatment for severe body burns, Casualty Hospital specialists emphasized yesterday.

Case in point was spunky Michael Rector, 4, of 613 Elliott st. ne., still clinging to life last night two weeks after suffering third-degree burns over 70 per cent of his body. Normally, physicians said, if one third of the body is burned, death follows.

They still held out no hope the boy would survive; took no personal credit for their nowadays routine care, but were quick to praise prompt action of the lad's parents in speeding him to the hospital without home treatment.

Says He Was Set Afire

The boy had run home a week ago last Friday, screaming that he was "burning up." Playmates, he said, put matches to his clothes in a nearby garage. His father, Everett, 35, auto mechanic, enveloped the boy in a bedspread to suffocate the flames, and took him to Casualty Hospital.

It was all he could do; any more would have been wrong, physicians said. Home applications of greases and burn salves only deter hospital treatment, they said.

Michael's condition was recorded as "still critical" last night as he lay swaddled in pressure pack bandages, 8 to 10 inches thick, that cover him from shoulders to ankles. He's the wrapped-up product of the hospital "burn team" that took over when he was carried in by his father.

How 'Burn Teams' Work

"Burn teams," almost standard procedure for emergency hospitals, represent the medical profession's coordinated treatment of severe burn cases, Casualty's medical chief of staff said.

They function on the principle that a severe burn is a major wound, requiring total body treatment as well as injury site care. This concept, the specialists said, was recognized largely after World War I, and is credited with burn therapy advances in life-saving techniques of World War II.

The teams, comprising one or more doctors and a nurse, take over the case the moment the patient enters the hospital. Their working room is the surgically clean aura of a hospital operating room, since the prime consideration is to reduce the dangers of infection of the highly susceptible victim.

Whole Body Treatment

Whole body treatment, previously secondary or neglected entirely, is started immediately, physicians said. This consists of reducing pain, largely with opiates; shock care and administration of blood plasma.

Blood plasma, followed later by whole blood transfusions, is needed in severe burns because of the loss of blood fluids by "white hemorrhage" accompanying second and third degree burns. The colorless fluid oozes out of injured capillaries of the burned area, depleting the blood's nutrient supply, it was explained.

In many cases, physicians said, it is necessary to "feed" the patient intravenously with salt, sugar, or protein solutions to stave off starvation of the blood's food. In convalescence, the patient is fed a diet high in proteins to replenish "white hemorrhage" loss.

In Injured Area

"Burn teams" secondly treat the injured areas, with minimal contact with the raw wound. Clothing is cut away, washing is confined to an anti-infection minimum, and surgical removal of destroyed tissue is employed cautiously, the physicians said.

The wound is then covered with a gauze saturated with boric acid ointment or petrolatum (vaseline); covered with layers of dry gauze, and padded above with 8 to 10 inches of surgical waste (cottony waste similar to that used by mechanics to wipe up oil drippings). The whole is bandaged with elastic gauze, its pressure being distributed evenly to the wound surface by the surgical waste padding.

An important development of modern burn therapy, the hospital chief of staff said, is that redressing is withheld as long as possible, generally for about eight days. Purpose of this, he said, is percentage-wise—the fewer dressings, the less danger of infection. Also to reduce danger of "cross-infection," burn patients isolated from other patients, he said.

Get Victim to Hospital

Burn specialists' advice to laymen is simply to get the victims to the hospital. They don't want to be hampered, or the patient endangered, by the home use of salves, ointments, or by such old-time measures as soaking burn wounds with tea-water (still held by many people as the proper first-aid treatment for burns).

Ideal covering for a badly burned victim is a freshly-laundered bedsheet, they said. Little Michael's father grabbed up the bedspread, a happy choice under the circumstances, they explained.

A "rule of experience" determination for severe burns lists the following diagnoses: Burns covering up to 10 per cent of the body surface, patients will recover; between 20 and 30 per cent, serious, and above 30 per cent, "practically always fatal."

Dose of His Own Medicine...

WHIPPING BOYS TAKE THE WHIP—English boys in Horsley Hall overpower Eric Wildman, a manufacturer of whipping canes, whom they wrestled to the floor and gave seven licks with his own cane. Wildman, 27, who calls himself president of the National Society for the Retention of Corporal Punishment in Schools, had just concluded a lecture in favor of whippings.

Eccleshall, England, Nov. 25 (AP).—Eric Wildman, who makes canes for whipping schoolboys, was recovering tonight from a dose of his own medicine.

He tried to sell his canes to the wrong school and got himself caned by six husky students who were put up to it by their own headmaster, Robert Copping.

Copping, 28, runs Horsley Hall, a progressive "self-expression" school where the pupils do as they please and never get punished.

Wildman, 27, runs a company which makes whipping canes for schoolmasters. He also calls himself president of the National Society for the Retention of Corporal Punishment in Schools.

He came to grief last night when he accepted a lecture bid at Copping's school. He had just explained that "a most reasonable punishment is six (strokes) of the best," administered "in the place that seems to have been provided by nature for that purpose."

While he spoke, a student sneaked behind his chair and tipped it over. Other boys dashed to the scene. One sat on Wildman's head, another pinned his ankles and a third drew up his coat. Then a strapping 16-year-old administered seven strokes to the place provided by nature—and with one of the 20 choice Malacca canes Wildman had brought with him to illustrate his lecture.

Copping said today he had arranged the incident with his pupils beforehand. He tipped off newspapermen and photographers.

He said he hoped Wildman would take legal action "because it will give us an opportunity to state in detail in the public courts what a disgraceful state of affairs it is."

Corporal punishment is common in British schools.

Met Requests Press to Ban 'Gag' Pictures

New York, Nov. 25 (AP).—Edward Johnson, general manager of the Metropolitan Opera, suggested today that news photographers ignore "episodes obviously designed for the purpose of personal publicity" at the opening Monday night.

In a letter to newspapers and magazines Johnson recalled pictures that were taken at the opening of the 1947-48 season. One showed Mrs. Betty Henderson, cafe society figure, with her legs resting on a table in the opera cocktail lounge.

Johnson wrote that "such photographs tended to lower the prestige of the institution and, of even greater importance, were used to the discredit of the Nation, having been widely reproduced abroad for propaganda purposes."

This year's opening, from the arrival of the guests to the end of the performance of Verdi's "Otello," will be televised by American Broadcasting Co., the first time an entire opera performance ever has been televised.

Infra red lighting, invisible to the audience, will be used throughout the performance for television purposes.

Md. Sending 29 to Chicago 4-H Congress

Baltimore, Nov. 25 (AP).—Maryland's contingent of top 4-H Clubbers, 29 strong, will leave tomorrow for Chicago to see what national honors they can pick up this year.

At the 4-H Club Congress they will get into contests ranging from frozen food preparation to maintenance of tractors. On hand will be 1600 other 4-H members and their leaders from most of the States and from 18 foreign countries.

The theme of the congress this year is "Creating Better Homes Today for a More Responsible Citizenship Tomorrow." While in Chicago the 4-H boys and girls will attend the international livestock exposition and the national farm show.

Already in Chicago for the national 4-H livestock judging contest is the Free State team composed of Helen Gent of Towson, John Flanagan of Cockeysville, Robert Prigel of Glen Arm and Carl Anderson of Whitehall.

The University of Maryland's livestock judging team also is in Chicago for the intercollegiate judging contest. Members are H. Louis Bitter of Baltimore, Carl Emerson of Washington, Richard Greenwood of Walkersville, Steve Kahoe, jr., of College Park, Francis White of Washington, Lewis O. Myhre of Lakewood, Ohio, and Edwin Statter of Baltimore.

The 29 club members and the fields in which they won State recognition are:

Florence Duke of Clinton, leadership; Mary Louise Young of Middletown, frozen foods; Henry Holloway of Darlington, soil conservation; John Murray of Princess Anne, meat animal contest; John Wysong of Forest Hills, leadership; Mary Ellen Stone of Leonardtown, leadership; Ruth Ellen Ifert of Middletown, food preparation; Pauline Wessel of Laurel, food preservation.

Jane McCauley of Hagerstown, clothing; Clara Jarvis of Kennedyville, clothing; Rose Ann Wilson of Cumberland, room improvement; Barbara Long of Cumberland, girl's record; Mildred Candy of Church Hill, leadership and achievement; Eleanor Dorsey of Huntington, leadership and achievement; Frank J. Burke of Reisterstown, demonstration; Brooke Conaway of Woodstock, leadership; Arthur Cook of Frederick, achievement.

Samuel Everett of Church Hill, Eastern Shore dairy contest; William C. Penner, jr., of Randallstown, demonstrations; Betty Linton of Grayton, leadership; Rosie Lee Montgomery of Ijamsville, garden contest; James R. Mosley, jr., of West Friendship, safety contest; James Pfefferkorn of West Friendship, better methods contest; Seth K. Schnebly of Hagerstown, leadership; John West of Sudlersville, poultry raising contest, and Paul Lutz of Middletown, tractor maintenance.

Emergency Police

Two of the orders affecting the Police Department issued Tuesday by the District Commissioners are altogether commendable. In this category are the revision of height and age requirements for new members of the regular police force and provision for the hiring of 80 additional policewomen, but we are still unalterably opposed to the—contradication in terms—civilian police provision.

Five feet seven inches seems to us an ample height for policemen, and raising the maximum entrance age to 33 will by no means endanger the physical efficiency of the department. Both these changes should assist recruiting, which has been lagging. The upped age limit may have an added beneficial effect in bringing to the force men of greater maturity. The 80 new policewomen will serve in jobs comparable to those held by WACs in the Army. They will release men from clerical duties, and thus will effectively augment the strength of the department. Although overglamorization should be avoided, we concur with the suggestion of a contemporary that an appropriate name for the lady police would be "Women in Law Enforcement Service," abbreviated "WILES."

A third order approved by the Commissioners is the formation of a civilian police reserve corps for use in emergencies. We have already stated our strong opposition to this on the ground that it is unnecessary and would result in a half-trained band of armed civilians. Our qualms have not been relieved by the Commissioners' cryptic explanation that they "want to prepare for any emergency." What sort of emergency do they envisage? Police Superintendent Barrett has already given one answer in his announced intention to make use of the reserves during the presidential inauguration. To regard such an occasion as an "emergency" seems to us to debase the currency—especially when ample help is available from other cities to maintain order during the inaugural. The reserve corps will be justified only by its performance. That means long and thorough training—plus use restricted to occasions in which regular law enforcement agencies are demonstrably inadequate.

Cabinet Team

Chairman Nourse of the President's Council of Economic Advisers is taking on a new job. He becomes the head of a legislative planning committee consisting of five members of the Cabinet: Treasury, Commerce, Labor, Agriculture and Interior, as well as Chairman McCabe of the Federal Reserve Board. Other departmental heads may be added to this list if occasion demands. The purpose, it appears, is to develop a program for fighting inflation in line with the recommendations that President Truman proposed to the Eightieth Congress and to fit new and old spending measures within an anti-inflation framework.

The incoming Congress will, no doubt, prove much more receptive to the anti-inflation program than its predecessor, which, under Republican domination, rejected most of the President's suggestions. Policies, however, should change with times and conditions. And not only is there need for revision of the program in the light of changed conditions; it is important to make sure that the President's chief advisers are prepared to support it. Some of them were more than halfhearted in their advocacy of certain parts of the 10-point anti-inflation plan presented to the last Congress, and their disinterested, often critical, attitude had considerable effect in defeating presidential aims. Moreover, it is essential to lay out a time schedule for introducing measures to deal with inflation problems. The President in his last appeal made the mistake of putting all his suggestions in one bundle—a method of procedure that is not calculated to produce results.

The selection of Dr. Nourse to head the Cabinet team is evidence that the Council of Economic Advisers will play a more decisive part in helping to mold the executive-legislative program than it has heretofore. The chief danger of the new arrangement is that it may result in changing the character of the Council, supposedly a body engaged in objective analysis of economic trends, to an agency for furthering the political aims of the Administration. Fortunately Dr. Nourse is an economist who can be relied upon to avoid the pitfalls of making his knowledge a subservient tool of political propaganda.

So long as Dr. Nourse is in a position to guide the thinking of the policy-makers, the establishment of closer contacts between the Council and the President's chief political advisers not only will serve the latter and help to iron out conflicts of opinion but will also give the council itself the prestige needed to make it a more effective body.

Negative Labor

Organized labor is not being very helpful in the formulation of an alternative to the Taft-Hartley Act that will safeguard the public interest.

At its annual convention the AFL passed a resolution declaring "the public welfare as well as that of management and labor is paramount . . . The economic health, safety and welfare of the Nation must not again be placed in jeopardy by the irresponsible action of anyone." A good deal of praise has been bestowed upon the AFL for this acknowledgment that the interests of all should take precedence over the demands of the few. Unfortunately there was a significant lack of positive recommendations from the convention for dealing with crippling strikes of the kind that are currently strangling our foreign trade. The convention called, instead, for repeal of the Taft-Hartley Act and prompt reenactment of the Wagner Act. After its adjournment, to be sure, President Green said the AFL would not oppose some provision aimed at settling Nation-wide strikes, but he gave no hint as to the kind of restraints he had in mind. "We seek," he said, "to establish lasting peace between management and labor on a basis completely fair to both." These are fine words, but they convey no assurance that a return to the one-sided Wagner Act would usher in the industrial millennium of Mr. Green's dream.

President Murray of the CIO has also attracted favorable comment by his guarded, indirect admission that the Wagner Act is not perfect. In a recent broadcast in which he, too, called for immediate restoration of the Wagner Act in place of the Taft-Hartley Act, he stated that "if any improvements are to be made (i.e., in the Wagner Act), suggestions for those improvements should come from both labor and management." This vague pronouncement does not warrant any great amount of optimism concerning the willingness of the CIO leadership to support legislative proposals for dealing effectively with emergency situations.

It is significant that both the AFL and the CIO specific recommendations for dealing with labor problems are chiefly negative in character. Organized labor knows quite well that it wants to be rid of those provisions of the Taft-Hartley Act that hamper union activity, and it is quick to detect flaws in positive proposals for strengthening the one-sided Wagner Act whose deficiencies are a matter of record. Mr. Murray says flatly that he cannot at the moment "comprehend any legislative enactment that would prove more successful than the Wagner Act," utterly ignoring the demonstrated failure of that measure to protect the interests of management and the public. He is also opposed to any use of injunctions in labor disputes, to court interference with picketing, to any sort of compulsory arbitration, to legislative prohibitions of secondary boycotts, to Government intervention in jurisdictional strikes, to the closed shop ban. In short, he is a believer in laissez faire principles so far as unions are concerned, but at the same time an advocate of Government action to control prices (excluding, of course, control over wages). Indeed, he is looking forward to another round of wage increases, while urging imposition of an excess-profits tax as a means of providing living-cost relief without interfering with industrial expansion. To sum up: Mr. Murray's plans for settling labor problems are very simple: control the activities of the other fellow and leave labor free to get all it can by a form of unregulated collective bargaining that is a guarantee of industrial turmoil.

Given this program, it is impossible to envisage any effective system of putting an end to industrial disputes that threaten the national welfare. Only those determined optimists who always discover a silver lining, however dark the cloud, can extract much comfort from the grudging acknowledgment that there may be room for improvements in the discredited Wagner Act.

Tax Exempts

The current upturn in prices of tax-exempt bonds is generally attributed to a widespread belief that a Democratic victory means not only a continuance of the easy-money policy of the Truman Administration, but possibly higher income taxes on individuals in the upper income brackets and heavier corporation taxes. Although prophecy is a treacherous business, it is a pretty safe bet that the present policy of supporting 2½ long-term Government bonds at par will not be abandoned, with the result that the rising trend of interest rates will be arrested and bond prices in general will remain high.

In that event, low interest rates will encourage the financing of public improvements with cheap borrowed money. If, in addition, predictions of heavier taxation of individuals in upper-income brackets, who are the chief source of private investment capital, should be realized, the incipient signs of a flight to tax exempts might reach major proportions. Furthermore, such a flight would be assisted by any increases in corporation income taxes that made alternative industrial investment opportunities less attractive to the public.

The possibility of an accelerated flight into tax exempts is extremely disturbing in view of heavy prospective Government expenditures that might necessitate increases in taxes to cover budget deficits. The danger is that Congress in a search for new sources of revenue would follow the politically easiest road of putting the major part of the burden on already heavily taxed groups and defeat its own ends by overstimulating capital financing in the tax-free municipal field.

Admittedly our States and cities could use huge amounts of capital in financing new improvements. The rapid growth of many communities during the war years together with war-enforced suspension of essential public projects has greatly increased the pressure for funds. Nevertheless, these undertakings call for the services of men and materials in limited supply, and would compete with rearmament and recovery. To divert an excessive proportion of such resources to municipal use would not only add to the tax burdens of borrowing communities, but deprive productive industries of capital needed for essential expansionist programs. The present situation again underlines the need for a long overdue reform; namely, abolition of tax-exemption privileges.

Unfunny Funnies

Almost the only point of agreement about the so-c'led "comic books" that flood the newsstands is that they are not funny. But their risibility, after all, is not involved in the least in the raging dispute about their social role. The question is, do they contribute in some way to juvenile delinquency, and if so, how much? On this issue the opinions range from one extreme to the other.

In Dayton a survey of children's reading habits—apparently the only one so far to inquire into comic book readership—shows that 96.5 per cent of the boys and 94.7 per cent of the girls in the 8-14-year group read comic books. Obviously, the same proportions of Dayton's younger generation are not and will not turn into juvenile delinquents. It seems to us, on the basis of these figures and other clear evidence, that comic books do not make young criminals by themselves, and blanket condemnation of them is quite unjustified.

As a matter of fact, when all who read comic books are added to those of whatever age who read newspaper comic strips, the total must come pretty close to the entire reading population of the United States. And while our criminal group is larger than it would be in an ideal world, it does not approach the size of the comic audience. All of which proves, if anything, that action pictures have an almost universal appeal. Indeed, we think that only those parents who do not deign to peruse their newspaper comics should be allowed to object if their offspring find some satisfactions in gobbling up comic books by the fistful.

However, the very universality of appeal of the picture-story technique places an equally heavy responsibility on those who employ it. For this reason the effort of some comic book publishers to evolve a code of what is desirable and undesirable content is all to the good. What disturbs us, and should disturb the publishers even more, is that less than half of the publishers have subscribed to the code—a not very restrictive one in the first place. For if the makers of comics do not accept responsibility, the community will certainly do so.

The public is increasingly aroused in the certainty that comic books of the juicier sort, though but one possible factor, do in some measure contribute to juvenile delinquency. At the moment about 50 cities have taken action to ban the sale of objectionable comic books, and others are considering similar action. The handwriting is on the wall, and the comic-makers will misread it at their own peril.

According to a news item from London, the Colonial Office has discovered that 3 per cent of the British people think the United States is still a British colony. Three per cent comes to about 1,440,000 persons who are supposed to hold this curious belief. We have a horrible suspicion that the figure is based on a public opinion poll. Perhaps, therefore, it ought to be dismissed as palpably inaccurate. Maybe the questionees answered affirmatively because they thought to please the Colonial Office. Maybe . . . but why try to explain it away? There it is, and we can hear John Hancock whirling dizzily in his grave.

From what we have heard sometimes about how American foreign policy is made in London, not a few Americans may likewise share this belief. On the other hand, a Mr. J. Parnell Thomas, an American of Irish descent and thus immune from the taint of British colonial mentality, seems to think Washington is a colony of the Soviet Union. Moscow, though, is busily telling everyone in Europe that the Marshall Plan is a scheme to turn that whole continent, including Britain, into an American colony.

The great variety of views on display make it possible for every man to be his own colonial expert. There is an advantage in this we had not heretofore seen. With enough cross-fertilization of all these beliefs that every country is in some measure a colony of and in some measure a suzerain of every other country, the truth begins to emerge: no country is fully sovereign and independent. Every one is an integral part of an interdependent world. We think these Britishers in the 3 per cent group may be less benighted than appears at first glance. They may not know it, but their anachronistic misbelief is close to a subtle modern reality far broader than the formal political relationship between Great Britain and the American States.

"Church And State"

Your November 17 editorial, "Church and State," was a masterpiece and its logic irresistible. It is seldom that the principle of the separation of church and state is as clearly and forcefully enunciated in harmony with the American ideals of government as you stated it in that editorial.

When the public school system was adopted, under the sponsorship of Horace Mann and his associates, a definite understanding prevailed under the general tax plan that no citizen should be taxed to support the teaching of religion, whether agreeable to or opposed to his persuasion. Since all citizens were taxed, it was agreed that no one's religion should be taught to the children in tax-supported schools. The public schools belonged to the state, and the state was to remain neutral upon the subject of religion.

You are correct in your deductions that it is not "a wise public policy" even to have the public school authorities sponsor and foster the teaching of religion to the children on "released time," "off school property." While this plan does not involve any liability of tax money, it does engender other difficulties in which the public schools should not get involved.

In certain localities, where there are large groups of Jewish and Christian children attending the public schools, and the various divergent sects are separated, and the nonreligious groups are segregated into a separate group and are exempted from religious instruction, embarrassing situations are frequently incurred. I could cite several cities where "the released time" off school property had to be abandoned by the teachers and the school boards in order to maintain tranquility in the functions of the public schools.

President U. S. Grant laid down a clear cut principle when he said, "Leave the matter of religion to the family altar, the church, and the private school, supported entirely by private contribution. Keep the church and state forever separate."

Entrapment

Am I the only one of your readers to have had a slightly queasy feeling on reading of the multiple exploits of the Police Department's "one-man vice squad?" One certainly wonders how one man can turn up so many "perverts" in such rapid succession unless by some means or other he incites perversion. When one finds the same crusader against vice appearing against a woman he lured to disrobing in a hotel room, one gets somewhat more than queasy.

The entrapment of predatory criminals is one thing. The entrapment of persons who had no intention of molesting anyone until enticed by a representative of the law is quite another. In such cases the agent of the law himself breaks down the citizen's restraint and converts a mere suppressed inclination into an overt act. Who among us is so pure of heart as not to realize that the life of a civilized man is a struggle to maintain balance between impulse and restraint, difficult at best, and for some more difficult than others? Shall the law assume that some individuals are bound to fail, and make it impossible for them to succeed?

Aside from the evil of entrapment, one may doubt the Police Department's ability to suppress "immorality," and one may wonder whether these efforts might not better be devoted to preventing predatory crime—such as, shall we say, our notorious gambling racket, which is also a vice squad problem.

"Petty Harassment"

I have no special feeling for or against the proposed charter for Montgomery County, but I do feel that The Washington Post has made a thoroughly intemperate and unwarranted charge when in its editorial of November 17, it accuses those seeking to enjoin the election of the new county commissioners in January as "stooping to mere obstructionism of the pettiest sort." The right of the counties to which you refer "to draft home-rule charters and submit them to the people for approval" certainly does not authorize the inclusion in such charters of provisions inconsistent with the constitution of the State.

Like your editorial writer, I have not examined the constitution, but I am sure that if the facts are as stated in the press, any county official would be recreant to his trust who participated in, or recognized the results of, an election so apparently violative of the constitution until the courts have passed upon the issue.

I think the county officers are pursuing the only proper course in presenting the matter for judicial scrutiny by seeking the injunction. F. W. BROWNE.

Accident Pictures

Please do not think that all of your readers agree with the criticism of the pictures you published of the boys killed in the sand trap.

I personally know of several mothers, as well as myself, who read and discussed with active preschool children this accident, and the pictures you published were invaluable to illustrate the dangers in just such activities.

Bloom's Standards

Drew Pearson reports that Representative Sol Bloom of New York is opposed to further aid for the Chinese Republic until President Chiang Kai-shek cleans out "corruption."

I don't remember any similar statement from Mr. Bloom during the years we were supplying the corrupt and brutal leaders of the Soviet Union with arms and other supplies.

Do Mr. Bloom's high standards apply only to anti-Communist governments? B. P.,

Excess Profits Tax

Although an "excess profits" tax sounds as if it recaptures exorbitant profits from big business, it is, in the light of economic theory and practical experience, an inefficient, unjust, and inflationary tax. An "excess profits" tax does not deserve the support of liberals, and its advocacy by Phillip Murray in his annual report as president of the Congress of Industrial Organizations is probably the result of erroneous advice. Those persons who desire the taxation of excessive profits should, after an examination of the tax, agree that this tax does not live up to its name.

Typically, an excess profits tax imposes a high rate of tax on corporation profits in excess of a "normal" absolute amount, or in excess of a "fair" percentage return on capital invested. The "normal" absolute amount is usually stated in the tax law as being the profits earned in some "normal" year, or an average of years. The "fair" rate of return on invested capital is a legislative judgment, and sometimes is stated to vary inversely with the size of the enterprise, the smaller firms being permitted a larger percentage return on capital invested before tax, and the larger firms a smaller rate of return.

The tax is, as is sufficiently obvious from the description, a very complicated and difficult tax to administer. What, for instance, is a normal year? A fair rate of return? The amount of capital invested? Should a machine tool firm be treated the same as an electric power plant? What about growing firms, stable firms, declining firms.

If a large bureaucracy were set up to determine, in the case of each of the 400,000 corporations in this country what was really fair and normal, some measure of justice could be achieved, but at the expense of a staggering administrative cost and an invitation to corruption. Any blanket statement in the tax law defining what was "normal" and "fair" would probably result in a penalty for the risky enterprise and a bonus for the safe one. At best, it will permit the corporation that has normally gouged the public the liberty of continuing its normal ways. An excess profits tax applied to the diverse business situations in America could hardly do justice to each firm.

Wasteful and uneconomic spending is encouraged by an excess profits tax because the corporation would rather make uneconomic expenditures than pay the tax. For example, advertising budgets could be increased, wasteful business methods permitted, excessive salaries to executives encouraged, high prices paid for raw materials. The profit motive would be perverted. No corporation which could find a better use for the money from the point of view of the managers of the corporation would pay the money to the Government. In addition, the tax could be evaded or minimized in those circumstances in which a corporation had interests in more than one taxpaying unit.

An excess profits tax is anthropomorphic, chastising the incorporeal corporation, instead of the human recipient of excessive profit. Since all taxes must eventually be borne by people, not by corporations, ideally a greater measure of justice can be achieved by taxing the people directly. One cannot judge the income, the dependents, or the deductive expenses of an individual from the fact that he owns stock in a large corporation instead of a small one.

The likelihood of corporations reducing prices to minimize their excess tax payment is small, but even if price reductions were widespread, it would be largely counterbalanced by "gray" markets, since the price system performs the function of rationing goods.

An excess profits tax might, of course, encourage corporations to grant a larger fourth round of wage increases than otherwise, but this would hardly help to raise the real wage of the worker. MONROE BURK,

Oil In The Election

THE MISERABLE, petty practice of Congressmen who compel their employes to kick back part of their salaries or who put names on the congressional payroll of those who perform no service should be exposed. Representative J. Parnell Thomas of New Jersey is involved and now similar charges have been brought against Representative Alvin O'Konski of Wisconsin.

But this does seem petty indeed alongside the need for investigation of what may well be a scandal of major proportions. Ever since the middle of the summer rumors have persisted that the oil lobby would spend millions of dollars to defeat President Truman.

Their interest was in the vast wealth of tideland oil which they are now exploiting. President Truman has stood firm for keeping the oil in the tidal waters under Federal jurisdiction. He has been backed by national defense chiefs who have argued the acute necessity for military reserves.

On the other hand, the Republican platform called for turning over the tideland resources to the States. Therefore, it was essential to major oil interests to insure Truman's defeat.

How was this to be done? One way was to underwrite a revolt in the States of the normally solid South. In a close election the electoral votes of three or four Southern States might provide the margin between defeat and victory.

In August hints came from the Democratic National Committee that oil interests in Texas were providing unlimited funds for the Dixiecrat revolt. The issue of the President's civil rights program, which had engendered deep and genuine feeling throughout the South, was a convenient battle front.

THE REPORT of expenditures by the Dixiecrat Party shows nothing out of the way with respect to oil. But such reports, and this is true not merely of the Dixiecrats, have tended to encroach more and more on the realm of fiction.

Comparatively at least, the Dixiecrat campaign was not a costly one. There were many sources of revenue, including the large utility companies. Perhaps the oil interests did not have to come through with any big amounts; the persistent rumors may be baseless.

But we have a right to know all that can possibly be known. This whole matter is vitally related to national security and the future of a resource that is rapidly wasting.

This need not be a partisan political investigation. It is too big for that. Republicans of the conviction of Senator Charles Tobey of New Hampshire should be willing to join with Democrats to do the digging into what may well be a sordid piece of political business.

One of the newly elected Democratic Senators, Robert Kerr of Oklahoma, has his own oil company. The Kerr-McGee Co. is drilling in the Gulf of Mexico about 12 miles off the coast in the open sea. Before they were overwhelmed on November 2, Republicans were proposing to investigate reports that Kerr had spent $400,000 in his primary race and would spend that much or more in his drive to defeat the Republican candidate, Ross Rizley.

THE FARTHEST operation attempted in the marginal sea is that of Magnolia Oil Co., an affiliate of Socony Vacuum, which subsequently abandoned operations 28 miles out in the Gulf of Mexico off Iberia Parish, La. The Humble Oil Co., an affiliate of Standard of New Jersey, is 7 miles out. The Superior Oil Co. has struck oil at 9000 feet, 17 miles out.

The public is entitled to know the status of the great treasure of oil that lies under the tidal lands, for the Supreme Court has held that those lands belong to every citizen. If oil 8000 or 9000 miles away in the Middle East is vital to our security, then how much more vital is the oil on our doorstep.

The Supreme Court decision was, however, limited to the tidelands off California. Specific suits must be filed by the Federal Government to recover possession of the lands off Texas, Louisiana and other States.

At one time Attorney General Tom Clark announced that a suit would be filed covering the Texas marginal lands. There were loud outcries from prominent Texans who filed in to protest to their fellow Texan, Clark.

In dealing with the States on the tidelands issue, the Federal Government has been more than reasonable, particularly on the problem of State revenues from this source. If the public's property is to be safeguarded, action is essential on Capitol Hill and in the Department of Justice.

Sugar Quota

If Secretary Brannan sets the highest sugar quota allowed by law, he will evidence that the Administration has both the will and the courage to ease prices in an orderly way, to increase food supply and most important of all to follow the policy of benefiting the many—in this case 140 million Americans who eat or use sugar—rather than giving Government assistance to a very small and uneconomic industry at the expense of the whole country.

'The Rape of Poland'

A Communication

MR. FERDINAND KUHN has written on November 14, an informative and interesting review of the efforts of the "brave and honorable fighters for human freedom," the exiled political leaders of the Polish and Hungarian peasants. Therefore it is a matter of regret that he—an interpreter of international news for your readers—appears to have been in a flippant mood when he wrote his review of The Rape of Poland by Stanislaw Mikolajczyk. His attitude suggests that either he has been very carefree in relation to the "context" of the events under consideration or that his views suffer from the subjectivism that he ascribes to the former Prime Minister of Poland and Hungary.

To begin with, it is obvious to the reader of The Rape of Poland that Mikolajczyk was not undertaking the task of telling the "whole truth" about the downfall of Poland. That would have been unpalatable to those responsible for the policies which brought about the present situation behind the iron curtain, to say nothing of the interpreters of international affairs who assisted in their acceptance by the public.

Mikolajczyk was not writing history in the strict sense of the term, but merely giving an account of events for the general, and supplying a record of first-hand information for future historians, abstaining from evaluation of the "context" and the ill-conceived opportunism of the powers that sealed the fate of Poland as well as of all eastern European nations.

For the reader, Mikolajczyk's account not only does not create the impression of the bitterness and passion ascribed to it by Mr. Kuhn but, on the contrary, exhibits remarkable restraint in the face of the mess that the leaders free from "inveterate faults" made of Europe in general and of Poland in particular—the leaders who are making the world suffer the consequences of their utter incapacity to comprehend and deal with the Soviet system. The Rape of Poland does not touch upon this aspect of the matter even though Mr. Mikolajczyk had every right in the world to do so.

MR. KUHN seems to imply opprobrium in saying that Mikolajczyk believes that Stalin "intends to conquer the world." One wonders, is this something so startling, or is Mr Kuhn one of the interpreters who fail to be impressed by the meaning of events or to comprehend the fundamental dogma of the Soviet system repeatedly reaffirmed of late by Soviet official circles as unconditionally binding on all Communists.

In relation to the Katyn massacres, Mr. Kuhn accuses Mikolajczyk's government of accepting completely the Nazi version that these were Polish officers done to death by the Russians. Thus even at this time Mr. Kuhn appears to accept the Soviet version. The fact of the matter is that the Polish government knew right along that the officers were in Russian hands and that instead of being allowed to participate in the fight were being liquidated in one manner or another before the Nazis publicized the discovery of the graves. The rest of the evidence is of a corroborating nature; that Mikolajczyk did not name some of his sources of information is due to the fact that the fate of individuals now under Soviet rule is involved.

Mr. Kuhn goes on to say that Mikolajczyk "does not explain why the Polish government rushed publicly into the best-laid propaganda trap of the war." Does Mr. Kuhn actually believe that a democratic government involved in a desperate struggle could ignore the fate of the bulk of its officers and at the same time retain its hold on the people? Moreover, what is so objectionable in a request that the matter be investigated by the International Red Cross so as to justify the stand taken by the Soviet government?

Is not Mr. Kuhn aware yet that this stand was one of the "warmonger" variety that Mr. Vishinsky has made so familiar of late? Has not Mr. Kuhn ever wondered why the Soviet government did not avail itself of the numerous opportunities during and after the war to have the matter cleared by an impartial international body? Imagine the ammunition that such a step could have supplied against the Polish "reactionaries." Perhaps Mr. Kuhn is in a position to supply his readers with the names of the Germans that have been accused or condemned by the international tribunal for the massacre of the Polish officers.

THAT MR. KUHN should repeat at this time the Moscow line after the methods of the Soviets in all their variations have become public property is evidence of subjectivism on his part to say the least. That the Soviet Union was then engaged in the liquidation of the Polish democratic elements should have become intelligible to him a long time ago. The use made of the affair as pretext to break relations with the Polish government was another step in the same direction.

In the light of developments since then, does Mr. Kuhn actually believe that the Soviet Union would have tolerated under any circumstances a democratic Polish government? That the break came sooner than originally planned and was used for the purpose of covering the brutal preparations for the future control of Poland does not alter things in the least.

The treacherous treatment accorded by the Soviets to the Polish underground forces is another instance of the systematic liquidation of the elements which stood in the way of Communist control. Yet even then, instead of evaluating the situation properly, the powers persisted in the policy of appeasement. They accommodated the Soviet scheme by accepting what Mr. Kuhn quite unconcernedly calls "the ill-fated coalition government there."

Mikolajczyk participated in it not because he did not appreciate the fact that the powers had bargained away the possibility of reasserting the independence of Poland, and not because he expected the Soviet to change its attitude and methods, but because the forces representing the people within the country requested him to return and make a desperate attempt to check the plans of the Communist conspiracy by leading the resistance of the Polish peasantry.

ACCORDING to Mr. Kuhn, the "error of avarice" on the part of the Poles has been their refusal to accept without hesitation the secret deals of the powers which sanctioned another partition of Poland and their failure "to show good will" toward the Russians in the process. For an interpreter of international affairs who ascribes to others "distortion of the truth" to write such things at the present stage of developments is really nothing short of amazing.

Historical evidence already shows that when it comes to the dealings with the Soviet Union the leaderships of the countries now behind the iron curtain have an incomparably better record than those of the powers that dominated the affairs of the United Nations. Under the circumstances, some of Mr. Kuhn's evaluations amount to adding insults to injury at a time when the Polish democratic forces and the internationally united peasantry under the leadership of Mikolajczyk—instead of indulging in recriminations—are straining every effort to assist in repairing the damage and frustrating the plans of militant communism against the democratic institutions and peace of the world.

C. D. KOJOUHAROFF, Ph.D.
Washington.

Anyone who has seen the ruins of Warsaw with his own eyes can hardly be "flippant" in writing of the Polish tragedy. It cannot imply "opprobrium" to quote another man's warning that Stalin "intends to conquer the world." And it does not connote a swallowing of "the Moscow line" to say that the tactics of the London Poles were often exasperating and occasionally wrong.

The story of the Katyn massacre is a case in point. The Mikolajczyk version of this wartime horror is accepted by now as correct, and I do not quarrel with it in saying that the Poles walked into a propaganda trap at the time.

They did exactly what Dr. Goebbels wanted them to do. It was Goebbels who first made the story public, with the clear object of driving a wedge between Russia and Poland, and thereby between Russia and its western allies. The Poles rushed into print with an appeal for an inquiry by the International Red Cross, knowing that any inquiry in Nazi-occupied Poland would have to be conducted under Nazi control. The Nazis promptly appealed to the same source.

A few days later the Soviet government broke relations with the Polish government-in-exile. Goebbels was overjoyed. As Wallace Carroll has written in "Persuade or Perish," his admirable and authoritative account of wartime propaganda: "The Katyn massacre must be counted as a classic of propaganda warfare. Goebbels . . . had achieved his first major objective—the severance of Soviet-Polish relations . . . The dissension which was permitted to arise over the Katyn massacre was still to the advantage of defeated Germany after the war."

Dewey Repeats He'll Not Seek State Post Again

New York, Nov. 25 (AP).—Gov. Thomas E. Dewey arrived here by plane from an Arizona vacation early today, and reasserted that he does not plan to run for the governorship again.

Asked by newsmen at La Guardia field about recent reports he planned to seek reelection in 1950, Dewey said:

"I made the statement the day after the election that I would not run again, and I will let you know if I change my mind."

Asked if he had any senatorial ambitions, the Governor said he had no comment.

County Group Cold to Voting Strength Shift

Spokesmen for the delegation to the Maryland State Legislature from Prince Georges and Montgomery Counties indicated yesterday they will not support a Baltimore City bid for reapportionment of voting strength.

But even though Prince Georges and Montgomery might add two delegates each to their present representation through a plan devised by Baltimore legislators, it seemed apparant they would shun the scheme. Delegations from the two counties have opposed such proposals in the past.

Under present law, Baltimore City is restricted to 36 delegates. Through a proposal which is expected to be introduced when the Legislature convenes, Baltimore would add eight more delegates and some of Maryland's smaller counties would lose delegates.

Senator L. Haroldr Sothoron, Prince Georges Democrat and Democratic majority leader in the State Senate, conceded that Baltimore City is entitled to more representation in the Legislature but added:

"The countjes fear Baltimore City may eventually seize control of the entire State."

Sothoron said he hoped something could be worked out that would be satisfactory to both the city and the counties.

The 1950 census is expected to bring an influx of 51 more delegates from the counties which would render the Baltimore City vote even more impotent.

If their first plan is defeated, Baltimore delegates hope to have an alternative plan which would freeze the allocation of delegates as they now stand.

"I would favor this," said Sothoron.

Sothoron and the six Democratic delegates from Prince Georges voted against a reapportionment plan at the last legislative session.

Republican members of the Legislature in Montgomery County indicated they, too, look with disfavor on the Baltimore City plan.

Roy Tasco Davis, the county's Senator, said the general sentiment of the delegation at the last session was against an increase in membership and said he had not learned of any change in attitude.

A. R. Lofstrand, jr., chairman of Montgomery County's six-man Republican delegation to the House of Delegates, said the county delegation could not commit itself until it had read the proposal but admitted similar proposals in the past had been voted down by its members.

Steam Calliope To Take Part In Inaugural

What is believed the only steam calliope outside a museum will participate in the inaugural parade here January 20, Melvin D. Hildreth, general inaugural chairman, said yesterday.

Zack Perrill, owner of Cole Brothers Circus, he said, has agreed to send the old-time steam-puffing instrument from Louisville, Ky., to render "The Missouri Waltz" and "My Old Kentucky Home" as eight dapple-gray horses pull it down Pennsylvania ave.

The last steam calliope Washington saw was in 1934 in the city's last circus parade, Hildreth said. Calliopes nowadays, he explained, are air operated, the old steam variety having become almost extinct.

The callioped songs, Hildreth said, will be in honor of Missouri-born President Truman and Kentucky-born Vice President-elect Barkley. A three-man calliope crew will come here with the calliope; a "long-lines" horse driver, a calliope-musician, and a fireman to keep up the steam.

Other developments yesterday in inaugural celebration plans were these:

Carl Paul Jennewein, New York sculptor who did the sculpture for Arlington Memorial Bridge, was commissioned to design the official inaugural medal. The medals will contain bas-relief of the President on one side and a symbolic design on the other, according to Mrs. Nellie Tayloe Ross, medals committee chairman.

Plans were announced by William Armstrong, general service committee chairman, for use of approximately 1200 Boy and Girl Scouts and members of veterans organizations in uniforms as ushers, grandstand supervisors, attendants and assistants in first-aid and ambulance stations during Inaugural Week.

General Chairman Hildreth named Joseph S. Evans, jr., former head of the New York Herald Tribune's London bureau and now on leave as a Democratic National Committee staff member, as executive secretary to the Inaugural Committee. Evans will set up office in Room 132, Tariff Building, 7th and E sts. nw.

Tells How to Secure A Mastery of English Quickly

An interesting new booklet offered free to men and women who want to secure a real mastery of the English language tells of a "fool-proof" method for studying English usage without attending classes. The plan, as described in this little book, has been worked out by Grenville Kleiser, who has helped thousands of students to a better command of English.

According to the publishers, this world authority uses no involved rules of grammar or rhetoric, but presents a simple, straightforward, inspiring method that secures real results in very short time. Thousands of users of this method, they say, have gained increased power to express themselves in fluent, convincing, clear-cut English and so have improved their possibilities of social and business advantages.

To acquaint more men and women with the advantages of improving their understanding of English, the publishers, Funk and Wagnalls Company, have printed full details of this speedy, pleasant method in a booklet which they will send to anyone who requests it. The address is Funk & Wagnalls Company, Dept. WP-1126, 153 East 24th Street, New York 10, New York. A penny postcard will do. There is no charge for the booklet.

Matter Of Fact

By Joseph And Stewart Alsop

Good News For Once

THE DECISION is now apparently up to Secretary Marshall. If he yields to the President's urging to stay on at the State Department, it seems likely that the high command of our foreign and defense policy, including Undersecretary of State Robert A. Lovett and Secretary of Defense James V. Forrestal, will remain unchanged. But Marshall is known to be intensely anxious to lay down the gigantic burdens he has borne for so long. And if he will not consent to withdraw his resignation, changes may be in order all along the line.

Such is the simplest way to state the uncertainties of the situation as it is reliably reported to stand after the President's meeting with the Secretary. From this meeting, however, has emerged certainty on a very different kind of point, that is perhaps almost as important as the staffing of the second Truman Administration.

In brief, when the President urged Secretary Marshall to continue in harness, he also took indignant note of the barrage of slander being directed against his chief foreign and defense officials. Every one knew that he would assure Secretary Marshall of his high confidence and deep admiration and gratitude. But it is particularly significant that he included Undersecretary Lovett in this expression of his sentiments, since members of the President's own entourage have joined in spreading the word that Lovett was guilty of "disloyalty" during the campaign.

THERE IS of course not a word of truth in the innumerable stories that Lovett has spoken slightingly of the President, that Secretary Forrestal refused to contribute to the Democratic National Committee, and so on. The sources of these stories either aspire to Lovett's and Forrestal's offices, or wish to see them replaced by more pliable officials, or desire to undermine the bipartisan foreign policy.

But the President is, after all, human. There are those who have access to him who repeatedly acted as bearers of these tales for reasons of their own. In the terrible strain of the campaign, when he was carrying on his fight almost alone and unaided, it would have been natural for Truman to listen to the tale-bearers. The greatest credit is due, both to him and his closest personal adviser, Clark Clifford, that on their different levels they kept their sense of proportion and understood where the truth really lay.

As so often happens, there was doubt about this because the President was misrepresented by some of those around him. The first sign that these men were unjustly attributing their own defects to their chief was given at Key West, when Truman named John Foster Dulles to head the American delegation in Paris in Secretary Marshall's absence. This was done although Truman is convinced, rightly or wrongly, that Dulles did not play quite fair during the election. Particularly, the White House thinks that Dulles used information derived through bipartisanship in foreign policy to help Gov. Thomas E. Dewey with his rather silly statement on the Italian colonies.

AT KEY WEST, the President was therefore urged to pass over Dulles, and to name Mrs. Roosevelt or some other delegate to replace Marshall. But he did not hesitate. He saw at once that larger issues were involved, and he reasserted American unity by naming Dulles.

The two episodes together plainly suggest that Truman has successfully survived a personal triumph that would have turned the head of any man with normal human vanity and human pettiness. The effect of the triumphs has been increased by those who have been eagerly exhorting him in the language of George II's mother, "George, be a King." But he has evidently preferred to listen to the voices of his own good sense and his wiser advisers, telling him, "Harry, be a President."

In these times, when the growth of Government imposes such swollen responsibilities on Government's leaders, the mere mood of a President is a world factor of prime importance. That is why these two seemingly trival episodes are singularly good news.

On the other hand, if Secretary Marshall will not forgo his hoped-for retirement, even for a few months, the whole question of the foreign and defense high command will still be open. The President must also solve the problem of injecting badly needed energy and progressivism into the domestic side of his Administration (by the simple expedient of appointing a few officials who genuinely agree with his own announced views). And while the news of Truman's mood is good, the future of the second Truman Administration will remain in doubt until its make-up has been officially determined.

ALAN McAFEE SHOES FROM LONDON

When McAfee makes shoes . . .

Good shoes are made slowly. The fine leathers are drawn tightly over the last and are left there long enough so that the pulled fibers settle down in their new position. Then they keep the shape through long wear.

That is only one detail. The selection of the leather, the treatment, the sewing that demands a skilled craftsman—these are fundamentals with McAfee shoes.
So the name has winged its way around the world and is accepted by well-dressed men as the name in shoes.

23 Escape as Plane Flames at Landing

Los Angeles, Nov. 25 (U.P.).—A Trans-World Airlines Constellation burst into flames during a landing at the Municipal Airport today and the 18 passengers and 5 crew members leaped and scrambled to safety through an emergency door.

All miraculously escaped with only bruises and sprains, although the big four-engined transport was destroyed.

Several small children were handed down to those who had reached the runway. The crew prevented panic by coolly directing the exit from a rear door, waiting until all passengers were safe before they left the plane.

The first passengers to leave the plane had to jump 10 feet to the cement below. They found a ladder for the others.

The Civil Aeronautics Board in Washington ordered an immediate investigation. The CAB said it particularly wanted to check a report that the Constellation caught fire in the air.

The chief pilot, Capt. Evan Lewis, 44, Pacific Palisades, Calif., said the plane made a normal landing before it caught fire on the runway.

But police reports said Lewis first radioed the control tower that a wing caught fire in the air, and the CAB said it had a report that one radio listener heard the report. Both Lewis and the control tower denied there was any such message.

The airliner landed just before dawn in a heavy fog, which kept spectators and officials from seeing just when the fire broke out.

Two minutes after everybody got off, the flames burst into the plushy cabin. Nothing but charred wreckage was left.

The airplane was a total loss. Most of the baggage was reported saved and none of the mail destroyed.

The TWA plane that burned at Los Angeles left the Washington National Airport at 6 p. m. Wednesday, carrying a full load of 51 passengers.

TWA officials said only two of the passengers leaving Washington went all the way to the West Coast. They were named as R. W. Noel of Altadena, Calif., and Lieut. F. C. Sullivan of Englewood, Calif.

TWA said Lieutenant Sullivan, stationed at the Pentagon, suffered a scratched hand.

Most of the passengers leaving here were destined for Chicago or Kansas City, TWA said. The crew changed at Kansas City.

HURT—Dr. W. A. Scharffenberg of Leland Memorial Hospital examines William Schmitt, 21, of Laurel, who was injured in the crash of his small passenger airplane yesterday at Queens Chapel Airport

Laurel Pilot In Hospital

A holiday ride in a two-seater airplane came to an abrupt halt yesterday and the pilot-owner landed in the hospital with minor injuries.

Just after taking off from Queens Chapel Airport, in Chillum, a Taylorcraft "side by side" two-passenger airplane owned and piloted by William Schmitt, 21, of Laurel, went into a stall, witnesses said.

A passenger, Hank Fricke, 25, also of Laurel, was uninjured but Schmitt was pinned in the wreckage and had to be pulled out by field attendants, according to Manager William Henderson of the airport.

Schmitt was admitted to Leland Memorial Hospital with a concussion and superficial lacerations of the face. His condition was described as good.

Andrews Field Plane Collision Kills Two and Injures Four

Two men were killed early yesterday and four others injured—one an Arlington man—in a freak airplane crash at Andrews Air Force Base.

Shortly after midnight, during rain and fog, a B-25 light bomber just landing crashed into the side of a C-45 light cargo plane which had landed a few minutes earlier and then turned back up the runway, mistaking it for a taxiway.

The dead were aboard the C-45, en route from the Craig Air Base near Selma, Ala.

Also on the C-45 was Col. Merrick, Bayer of 4617 S. 2d st., Arlington, in "fair" condition at Walter Reed Hospital with a fractured femur.

First Lieut. Bernard M. James of Catonsville, Md., copilot of the C-45;

Pfc. Chester R. Nicoll, 18, of Providence, R. I., who died at Bolling Air Force Base Hospital about two hours after the crash.

Only one person aboard the C-45 escaped without injury, a passenger, Pvt. G. S. Sullivan of Fort Knox, Ky.

In addition to Colonel Bayer, others injured on the cargo plane were identified as Capt. Leo Keating, pilot, of Stewart Air Force Base, Newburgh, N. Y., in fair condition at Walter Reed Hospital with a fractured femur and other injuries, and Capt. Robert F. Kavanaugh, 35, Army Corps of Engineers, of Fort Francis E. Warren, Wyo., in Bolling Hospital with a fractured pelvis.

Only one person on the B-25 was injured seriously enough to require hospitalization. He was Lieut. Col. John E. Murray, 34, of Edgewater, Md., treated at Bolling Hospital for a fractured right ankle and abrasions.

Colonel Murray and all other officers aboard the B-25 are Air Force personnel stationed at the Pentagon, and were returning from a reconnaissance requirements conference at Topeka, Kans.

With Murray on the plane were the pilot, Col. William E. Elder of 2812 16th rd. South, Arlington; Maj. Fred L. Rennels, copilot, of 3360 S. Wakefield st., Fairlington; Maj. L. E. Wine of 5161 Fsher rd., Temple Hills; Maj. Joseph J. Pellegrini of 1010 Fowler st., Falls Church; Col. Joel E. Mallory of 5113 1st st. North, Arlington, and Tech. Sergt. Bronishaw A. Ostaszewski, crew chief stationed at Bolling Field.

Letters Ask 1947 Donors To Aid Chest

The first of a series of letters to last year's Red Feather campaign contributors, who have not contributed this year, will go in the mails today in a Community Chest effort to reach this year's goal of $4,566,790.

The drive, originally scheduled to end November 4, was extended to December 3 on Wednesday, when reports showed the campaign was still more than a million dollars short of the goal.

The letters, signed by Chauncey G. Parker, general campaign chairman, will urge the former contributors, missed this year by volunteer solicitors, to mail in their gifts and also to ask their friends and business associates to contribute.

"Because your contribution last year indicates your genuine interest in the welfare of our community, and for less fortunate neighbors, I am appealing to you to send in your contribution by return mail. . . . Won't you make your pledge for an amount commensurate with our increased goal, one as large as you can make it for the 104 agencies, for a whole year," the letter asks.

Several blank pledge cards will be mailed along with the letter, which will also ask:

"In addition to sending in your own contribution, won't you do one more thing for us? If any of your neighbors or business associates have not been asked to subscribe, won't you pass along one of the blank cards enclosed and ask them to mail their gifts to headquarters at 1101 M st. nw., zone 5."

Following a "holiday" extending from Thanksgiving Day through Sunday, thousands of volunteers who have worked since early October will go back to their assignments, completing their soliciting by December 3, when the last progress report will be made.

Hot Licks Lads Pine for a Plot

By Richard L. Coe

"A SONG IS BORN," at Keith's, has real promise, which it sometimes achieves, but on the whole it's disappointing. Too labored effort has been poured into a familiar script; too little time is spent with as dazzling a group of musicians as money can buy.

Danny Kaye is the central figure of this one, but along with him you get such folk as Benny Goodman, playing a part as well as tootling his clarinet; Tommy Dorsey, Louis Armstrong, Lionel Hampton, Charlie Barnet, Mel Powell, the Golden Gate Quartet, the Page Cavanaugh Trio and Buck and Bubbles. Plus that lot, you get Virginia Mayo and Technicolor.

From such a lineup you expect much. There's no reason why Danny Kaye shouldn't be playing a fairly straight part; if he chooses not to give out with his peculiarly frantic songs and darts, that privilege is his. Even in a role so comparatively restrained as this one, he's still amusing. But why hogtie him with an endless plot and why let that plot get in the way of all the jam sessions one might have enjoyed?

You do get some sweet moments with the gilt-crusted lads the profligate Sam Goldwyn has employed, and those moments are good, zingy fun. When the boys let loose with their dazzling specialties the screen sways happily. But the rewards aren't enough for too many arid stretches.

"A SONG IS BORN," an RKO Picture produced by Samuel Goldwyn, directed by Howard Hawks, based on a story, "From A to Z," by Billy Wilder and Thomas A. Monroe, songs by Don Raye and Gene De Paul. At Keith's.

It's Really "Ball of Fire"

This plot is virtually the same Producer Goldwyn used for Gary Cooper and Barbara Stanwyck in his "Ball of Fire." In that happy comedy Gary and a batch of professors were working on a dictionary, but got stuck when it came to modern slang. They were accidentally helped out of the dilemma by Miss Stanwyck, a gangster's moll sought by the police.

"A Song Is Born" takes the same situation, with the profs doing a musical dictionary without knowledge of "American folk music." Miss Mayo crops up when Professor Kaye tours the nightspots, where he already has latched onto the aforementioned jazz giants. This time, though, the trick doesn't work; bebop and its cousins take longer time to illustrate, time which the scriptwriters refuse to give. Many of the first version's scenes and ideas are strictly followed (to the inevitable comparisons with the seven dwarfs), but the pace is slow and forced.

It's a real shame, too, for it points up that no matter how much potential talent can be splurged into a picture without a good script, the odds are against success. Granted, this idea might have looked good on paper, but it illustrates Hollywood's sorest lack—good, imaginative writers—whose success always depends on the production end being willing to take a chance.

Anonymous Script Writer

That the script was patched together is tacitly admitted in the screen credits: "Based on a story," you're told, "'From A to Z' by Billy Wilder and Thomas Monroe." Evidently whoever did the "basing" didn't care for the credit and the studio preferred to pull in the currently topflight name of Billy Wilder.

The plot is pushed into the background for such interludes as "Anitra's Boogie" (yes, Grieg's Anitra), "Redskin Rhumba," "Stealing Apples," "Daddy-O," "I'm Getting Sentimental Over You" and "Blind Barnabas" (the Golden Gate Quartet's grand in that one), but you get far too little of Lionel Hampton, Mel Powell and Louis Armstrong—only a flash of him. And though Buck and Bubbles wander in, that's about all those amusing dancers do.

All this is the more surprising when you consider it flies the Sam Goldwyn banner. That knowing showman rarely unveils a fizzle, but he comes too close for comfort with "A Song Is Born."

IN HONOR OF LASSIE, the Capitol is sponsoring a contest for boys and girls up to 15 years of age . . . The prize is a shepherd collie from Schmid's fabulous pet emporium on I st. . . . Youngsters should write a letter of 25 words or less telling why they'd like to own a dog like Lassie . . . Entries should be sent to the Contest Editor, Loew's Capitol Theater, and be postmarked not later than midnight December 4 . . . The best letter will get the dog; the 10 runners-up will get passes to Lassie's latest, "Hills of Home," which, by the oddest chance, is scheduled for the Capitol beginning the 9th . . . For more dope on this, seek out blanks in the Capitol lobby or from some grocer who specializes in dog food.

HE THREW A SEVEN—Edmond O'Brien has just thrown and Robert Stack looks interested in this scene just before the bombs came in the Warner's "Fighter Squadron." This film is a yarn about the Air Force pilots based in England during World War II

Strictly Rat-a-tat-tat

Air Movie Gives Warner Bill That 'Well-Rounded' Look

By Orval Hopkins

IF YOU raised your boy to be a zoomie, "Fighter Squadron," which is at the Warner, is for you. Or him. Let's make it you and/or him. Anyway, the film is practically an Air Force recruiting puff, consisting of great gobs of excellent, authentic wartime shots through which is strung a slim and not particularly objectionable plot. There is some rather offensive business having to do with the camaraderie which I'm told the fly guys gave full leash to in the war days, and a quite cute portrayal (by Tom D'Andrea) of an Army sergeant. It's more like a man acting like a sergeant than it is like a sergeant, but it's kind of fun anyhow.

The other actors are Edmond O'Brien, very satisfactory as the head man of a fighter squadron; Robert Stack, hardly satisfactory at all as one of his pilots; Henry Hull, convincing enough as an Air Force general, and some others including Mickey McCardle, who played fullback for Southern California a couple of years ago and whom I couldn't spot at all.

There is, as I say, a minimum of plot, the principal undertaking apparently being to show how the views of young fliers with combat experience made themselves felt in high places with resultant changes in top level policy, which, in turn, added up to saved lives and a shortened war. It all seems plausible enough and is given considerable momentum by the generous interlarding of Air Force war films. Seton I. Miller wrote and produced the movie; Raoul Walsh directed it and kept the heroics to a pleasant minimum.

Also at the Warner is a short subject produced by the American Transit Association and entitled "Driven to Kill." Lowell Thomas does the narration and points out in a not at all thundering way that your car should not be "driven to kill." The film depicts a man who is handsome, moderately successful, in love with his wife, kind to his children, but a cool, thoughtless, dangerous person when he's at the wheel of his car. He drives too fast—not at a screaming pace, but just 15 or 20 miles over a safe speed. He takes chances. He passes when he shouldn't, he drives too close to the car in front. Finally it happens. He is in a terrible accident, and the other guy—not he—pays with his life.

It's a quite effective presentation and I commend it to anybody who drives a car. The movies have been giving us material like this for years, but only in driblets. There ought to be more. It's one of the best things Hollywood does.

Your old friend Bugs Bunny is also at the Warner with a cartoon in which he is transported to a locality where there are bodies of water called Turhan Bay and Veronica Lake. And Bugs, threatened by an enormous scimitar, cracks, "Wait a minute, Doc, Let's don't be splitting hares." He's wonderful.

"FIGHTER SQUADRON," Warner Brothers release written and produced by Seton I. Miller. Additional dialogue by Martin Rackin. Photographed by Sid Hickox and William M. Cline, Maj. Joseph Perry, USAF, technical director. Technicolor by Natalie Kalmus. Directed by Raoul Walsh. At the Warner.

31 YEARS OF FAIR DEALING

'Wool Hat Man' Posts $500 For Ambush Slayers of Negro

Atlanta, Nov. 25 (AP).—"A wool-hat man from south Georgia" posted a $500 reward today for the ambush slayers of a Toombs County Negro, saying he believed in "white supremacy" but not in "murder and lynch violence."

Editor Ralph McGill of the Atlanta Constitution announced the money was left with him to be paid upon the "arrest and conviction" of the killers of Robert Mallard Saturday night.

McGill said the man described himself as a longtime supporter of Gov. Herman Talmadge and Talmadge's father, Eugene, and asked that his name be withheld "for the time being."

The reward poster was described as a "wool hat man . . . a believer in white supremacy, although a violent opponent of the Ku Klux Klan."

"This is a white man's country," he was quoted as saying, and therefore the law is the white man's law. He wrote it. It is important that he lives by it. . . . No decent white man, no real 'wool hat Georgian' will support murder and lynch violence."

("Wool hat man" is a term used roughly to refer to rustic Georgians, among whom the Talmadges rallied political strength. It harks back to rough, home-made hats worn in frontier days.)

The 42-year-old Mallard was shot on a lonely road 20 miles from Lyons, Ga., as he returned with his wife, child and two companions from church services.

Toombs Sheriff R. E. Gray said he expected to make two or three arrests by the end of the week.

Geographic Group To Award Medal To Dr. La Gorce

Philadelphia, Nov. 25 (AP).—Dr. John Oliver La Gorce, associate editor of the National Geographic Magazine, will be awarded the Henry G. Bryant gold medal on December 6 by the Geographical Society of Philadelphia.

The medal will be presented on behalf of the society by Harold E. Stassen, president of the University of Pennsylvania.

Dr. Gilbert Grosvenor, editor of the magazine and president of the National Geographic Society of Washington, who received a similar award several years ago, will be guest of honor at the award ceremonies.

Turover to Be Speaker At Jewish Center

Cornell Upsets Penn, 23-14, for Ivy League Title

This Morning

With Shirley Povich

BASEBALL'S WORST-KEPT secret since it was revealed back in 1939 that you can't steal first base, popped out of the bag yesterday with the official announcement that one Lou Boudreau of the Cleveland Indians was the most valuable player in the American League last season.

POVICH

The findings of a committee of baseball writers in the eight American League cities gave Boudreau a big edge over his closest challenger, Joe DiMaggio, but the Nation's fans beat the committee to that verdict months ago. Boudreau received 22 of the 24 first-place votes and the shocking item is that there were as many as two baseball writers who were so astigmatic as to conclude that DiMaggio was the more valuable guy.

All Boudreau did was outhit DiMaggio by more than 50 points, give the Indians a shortstop job that hasn't been matched in a generation, bring Cleveland its first pennant in 28 years, win a World Series despite the fact that Bob Feller lost both his starts, and generally demonstrate that he was the hottest article in the league. He was so burdened by his managerial responsibilities he could merely register his best season of his career, competitively.

THE YANKEES couldn't win a pennant with DiMaggio, the Indians couldn't have won it without Boudreau. When the pennant had to be won in the play-off game with the Red Sox, it was Boudreau who banged out that home run and those three other hits, and rightly judged young Gene Bearden to be the pitcher who would baffle the Red Sox. He didn't exactly make a wrong guess on Feller for the series opener, either. Feller held the Braves to two hits and was licked, 1-0.

It was Boudreau who installed the Indians' famous pickoff play at second base. Not until the Indians' strategy got a World Series setting did their pick-off play become famous, but Boudreau had been using it for years. He challenged the Cleveland pitchers to use it, and found Bob Feller a willing collaborator after declaring: "All it takes is a pitcher with guts, who isn't scared he might make a wild throw."

Boudreau didn't duck any of the responsibilities in leading the Indians to a pennant. There was the day when he was on the bench nursing a hurt ankle with the Yankees in town. Cleveland was trailing in the ninth and needed a pinch-hitter desperately. Boudreau didn't dally. He grabbed up a bat and announced, "This is a spot where the manager belongs," he said, and promptly broke up the game with a two-bagger.

THE GENIUS of Boudreau's tactics in the World Series against the Braves bordered on the inspirational. He benched Walt Judnich in the final game and rearranged his outfield to move Thurmond Tucker into center. Two drooping fly balls into short center that would have spelled victory for the Braves were caught by the fleet Tucker, the only outfielder on the Cleveland roster with the kind of foot to make those putouts.

Boudreau gave his Cleveland lineup many a fast shuffle during the season to keep the Indians up there. He alternated Robinson and Judnich at first base, and even had Johnny Beradino at the job against certain kinds of pitching. His outfield was never set until Dale Mitchell came along in midseason and clinched the leftfield job, and it was Boudreau who held out against the attempt to release Larry Doby.

And all the while Boudreau was leading the club in hitting, assigning himself the important third-place spot in the batting order and confounding the league's pitchers with his ability to hit all kinds of stuff from his unorthodox crouch. Only Ted Williams was a more-feared man at the plate, and the statistics will probably show that Boudreau was the most dangerous clutch hitter.

FOR BOUDREAU is wasn't all fun, either. Ever since he came into the league he has been operating on weak ankles, broken down from too much basketball in his college days. He isn't one of the fast men of the league, in fact, he's one of the slowest, but that fact could never be guessed by the ease and grace with which he gets over the ground at shortstop, making the hard plays look easy and the impossible ones look only a little bit tough.

He found an excellent collaborator these last two seasons in Joe Gordon at second base, an acrobatic guy who could get to the bag nicely, or get a throw to Boudreau. There may have been more proficient shortstop-second base combinations, but they are not of recent memory. And certainly there were never any more spectacular than Boudreau-Gordon.

The poll of the baseball writers that the Most Valuable Player award to Boudreau doesn't quite restore the public faith in polls, however. As Zero Mostel said indignantly after the bombing of Pearl Harbor: "Wotinell is Pearl Harbor doing in the Pacific, anyway?" What we're asking is: How come Boudreau got only 22 of the 24 votes?"

Late Rally Wins . . .

60,031 See Browns Humble Dons, 31-14, for 12th Straight

Los Angeles, Nov. 25 (U.P.).—The Cleveland Browns, conserving their energies for a "gang-up" phase of their schedule in which they play three tough opponents in eight days, cleared the second hurdle today when they came from behind to defeat the Los Angeles Dons, 31 to 14, in a terrific second-half surge.

It was their twelfth straight All-America Conference victory this season, keeping them as the only team in professional football which has yet to taste defeat.

A partisan crowd of 60,031 fans at Memorial Coliseum had their hopes for a major upset smashed as the brilliant Browns ran across two touchdowns and added a field goal in the third period to break a 14-14 halftime tie.

Brilliant in defeat was the plucky Los Angeles Halfback Glenn Dobbs, who turned in the day's most brilliant runs and also passed well.

Two deadly passes as the second half opened shoved Cleveland into the lead to stay. Edgar (Special Delivery) Jones took the first for 29 yards and Lavelli grabbed another for 12. Graham sneaked over from the 1 to score.

Stopped on the Los Angeles 29, Lou Groza widened the Cleveland margin a few moments later when he kicked a field goal from the 35.

The Cleveland defensive unit added the final tally when Cliff Lewis intercepted a pass on the Los Angeles 19 and Tony Adamle romped to a touchdown on the next play.

Docusen Wins TKO

Stockton, Calif., Nov. 25 (A.P.).—Bernard Docusen, 144, of New Orleans, won the feature bout of the Thanksgiving Day card here this afternoon with a technical knockout in the seventh's round over Shamun McCray, 146, of Cleveland. Docusen won all seven rounds before the fight was stopped.

Hamilton Admits Pitt Offer, Holds Up Decision

By Bus Ham
Post Reporter

Capt. Tom Hamilton of the Naval Academy admitted last night that he has received an offer from the University of Pittsburgh to become its director of athletics.

In a telephone conversation with Hamilton, this reporter got the impression that Hamilton will make a decision about the Pittsburgh offer shortly after the Army-Navy game in Philadelphia Saturday.

"No decision has been made, and right now I am thinking only in terms of beating Army," Hamilton said.

Door Still Open

But Hamilton's remarks did not close the door on the possibility that he will succeed James (Whitey) Hagan, who resigned under fire last July as the athletic head at Pitt.

Pitt, once one of the Nation's top collegiate teams, made a noteworthy comeback this season after several years of mediocre play.

Pitt won six, lost three this season. Among its victims were Indiana, Purdue and Penn State. In its final game, Pitt sprang one of the year's major upsets by ending Penn State's undefeated string, 7-0.

Hamilton, an inspirational figure, unquestionably is the type of leader that Pitt would like to have in its rebuilding program.

Unhappy About Publicity

Hamilton was not happy about reappearing in the public prints at this particular time.

"I hope we don't have to go through another experience like that Commissioner business," he said, "and all of us here at the Naval Academy are concentrating on beating Army."

Hamilton's reference to "that commissioner business" was a report in February, 1947, that he would resign at Navy and become commissioner of the All-America Conference of professional football.

Hamilton was head football coach at Navy at that time. Last summer he became Navy's director of athletics, turning the football coaching job over to George Sauer from the University of Kansas.

Buffalo Nips Rockets, 39-35

Chicago, Nov. 25 (A.P.).—The Buffalo Bills after trailing the Chicago Rockets at the quarter, half, and three-quarters roared back with two touchdowns in the final four minutes to take a free-scoring 39-35 All-American Football Conference decision in Soldier Field today before 6305.

Buffalo's decisive touchdowns in the fourth quarter were made on two long runs. One came when Chet Mutryn took Ernie Lewis' punt on the Buffalo 10 and handed the ball to Rex Bumgardner, who raced 90 yards along the side line. On the other, Vic Kulbitski recovered Chuck Fenenbock's fumble on the Buffalo's 39 and sped 61 yards.

The Rockets made a last-minute bid with a pair of long passes, the second of which sent End Lafayette King across the goal line from Buffalo's 25.

Marches of 86 and 61 yards, each highlighted by a long pass, Jess Freitas to Julie Rykovich and Freitas to Chuck Fenenbock, gave Chicago two scores in the opening starter. The Bills tallied once when Tomasetti plunged across after Geodge Ratterman had completed a 63-yard pass to Bumgardner.

In the second period Ratterman passed 33 yards to Al Baldwin to score but Chicago recovered a Buffalo fumble on the 5 and Kellagher plunged to match it. In seven plays the Bills then marched 61 yards to a touchdown and a halftime score of 21-19.

Gridder Rolls Up 326 Yards, 42 Points In 92-7 Debacle

El Paso, Tex., Nov. 25 (U.P.).—Fullback Fred Wendt cracked the all-time record for rushing today as his Texas Mines team scored every time it got the ball to smash New Mexico A. and M., 92-7, in the worst massacre since Apaches roamed this area.

Some 12,000 Thanksgiving Day fans watched Wendt score six touchdowns and kick extra points to run his rushing total to 1383 yards for the season, 102 yards more than the 1281 set by little Doc Mobley of Hardin-Simmons in 1942.

Wendt picked up 326 yards in 25 carries with runs of 55, 52 and 49 yards climaxing his greatest personal triumph.

Caps Down Warriors, By 81-73

Special to The Post

Philadelphia, Nov. 25.—The undefeated Washington Capitols put on a second-half rally to score their eleventh straight Basketball Association of America victory, defeating the Philadelphia Warriors, 81-73, here tonight before 5,134 fans.

With the score tied at 68 and eight minutes remaining, Horace (Bones) McKinney dunked a field goal and immediately thereafter Fred Scolari counted on a pass from Bob Feerick to put the winners ahead, 72-68. It was all Washington from there in.

Trailing 47-33 as the second half opened, Washington, with Leo Latkevick, Feerick and McKinney doing the tallying, rallied with its first scoring burst and cut the lead to 54-49. Katkevick then broke through on a dribble-in after a steal to make it 54-51.

From there on the lead seesawed until McKinney's goal put the Caps ahead. The Warriors' Joe Fulks sunk two fouls and the winners' John Norlander scored from underneath to make it 56-53.

The Warriors took their last vide lead when Sadowski countered with a field goal and foul for 61-54.

Fulks of the losers was the game's top scorer with eight field goals and 12 fouls for 28 points. Sadowski, also for the Warriors made 20 and McKinney led the Caps with 18.

It's Official Now— Boudreau Voted Best

By Jack Hand

New York, Nov. 25 (A.P.).—Lou Boudreau, player-manager of the world champion Cleveland Indians, has been named most valuable player in the American League for 1948.

It was strictly "no contest" although the voting closed before the World Series. In fact, the 24-man committee of the Baseball Writers Association, didn't even know Cleveland had won the pennant when it gave Boudreau a 22-2 margin in first-place votes over Joe DiMaggio of the New York Giants.

Ed Burns of the Chicago Tribune, the portly retiring president of the writers' organization, made it official. He announced the final total of the votes taken during the last week of the season. Figured on the basis of 14 points for first, 9 for second and so on down to 1 for tenth, Boudreau scored 324 points.

Dimaggio, winner in 1939, 1941 and 1947, was second with 213 on the basis of his fine performance that kept the Yanks in the race until the end. Ted Williams of Boston, who lost to DiMaggio by one point last year, was third with 171. Not a single first-place vote was cast for Teddy, who won the batting championship.

Vern Stephens, whose home-run bat helped Boston force the first tie playoff in league history, was fourth with 121, and Bob Lemon, Cleveland's 20-game winner, was fifth with 101.

Boudreau had a remarkable year that made the actual voting a foregone conclusion. Playing 152 games at shortstop, he hit .355, second only to Williams' unofficial .369. Some called him the best shortstop since Honus Wagner.

Lemon, a change-over infielder, was the only pitcher in the first five. Joe Gordon of Cleveland and Tommy Henrich of New York, former Yankee teammates, tied for sixth, with Gene Bearden, the Indians' World Series hero, eighth.

Detroit's Hal Newhouser, winner in 1944 and 1945, was ninth, and Eddie Joost, the sparkplug shortstop of the amazing Philadelphia A's, was tenth.

Cards Trip Lions, 28-24, For 8th in Row

Detroit, Nov. 25 (A.P.).—Stalled on the ground, the Chicago Cardinals scored twice on passes, once on Jerry Davis' 69-yard punt return and again on a pass interception today to beat the stubborn Detroit Lions, 28 to 14, in a National Football League game.

A Thanksgiving morning crowd of 22,957 fans saw the Cardinals take their eighth straight victory and their ninth in 10 games this season, gainng half a game on the Chicago Bears in their race for Western Division honors.

Davis, who returned three kicks a total of 180 yards on sparkling open field runs, galloped 69 yards for a touchdown with Detroit's second punt of the game.

Johnny (Red) Cochran raced 33 yards with an intercepted Detroit pass to set up Chicago's second score, a 9-yard end sweep by Halfback Elmer Angsman.

And in the last half Quarterback Ray Mallouf passed twice to End Mal Kutner for the two Cardinal touchdowns that represented the difference—once for 25 yards and again for 45.

Detroit, piling up rushing yardage on Fullback Camp Wilson's smashes through the middle of the big Cardinal line, scored both its touchdowns on passes. Fred Enke pitched 25 yards to End Johnny Green in the opening period and Clyde LeForce tossed 15 yards in the final period to Bill Dudley.

Wilson gained 125 yards by himself—more than the Cards team rushing total.

GW High Downs W-L In Mud, 16-0

By Herb Heft
Post Reporter

A gambling George Washington High, disdainful of a wet football and sloppy underfooting, cashed in with a 16-0 victory over Washington-Lee yesterday in the northern Virginia championship game before 12,000 fans in Alexandria.

Lateraling, double lateraling, handing off and passing as if the ball had handles, the victorious Presidents ran circles around the helpless Little Generals of Arlington.

Like a greased pig, the ball squirted out of the clutch of Little General ball carriers six times. And two other times, seemingly easy passes slipped away from W-L receivers.

After being outplayed for a quarter and a half, the Presidents leaped on two opportunities for two touchdowns four minutes before halftime. And just for safety's sake, G. W.'s eager-beaver End Billy Smith tackled Bruce Hillenbrand in the W-L end zone

Dean Leads Big Red to 1st Crown In 9 Years

By Herb Altschull

Philadelphia, Nov. 25 (A.P.).—Cornell University's wrecking crew dynamited all the defenses Pennsylvania could build today and blasted to its first Ivy League gridiron title in nine years with a 23 to 14 victory over the Quakers before 78,000 fans at Franklin Field.

It was a superbly-drilled Cornell team that took everything Penn had to offer and dished out more in the form of a whirling demon named Bob Dean.

Cornell Rushes 187 Yards

Cornell hadn't beaten Penn since 1939, but it went after this one with an utter disdain for the records.

There was little question about Cornell's superiority. Church Bednarik, the All-American center, and Bernie Lemonick, a brilliant sophomore guard, kept the flood gates closed most of the way with some sterling defensive work. But that was nowhere near enough.

Most of the fireworks came in a five touchdown first half. Cornell scored the first time it got its hands on the ball, marching 55 yards in eight plays within 5 minutes.

It was Dean who did the scoring on that one, cracking off his left tackle for 5 yards.

Penn surged back on a 73-yard touchdown march after the kickoff.

Ray Dooney, a hard-working and effective fullback for Penn, ate up most of the yardage through center but he took to the air with an 8-yarder to End Bob Sponaugle for the tally.

Herb Agocs made good on the extra point try.

Two Quick Scores

Then, in less than 2 minutes Cornell added two more touchdowns, the first in the dying seconds of the first period as Lynn Dorset hoisted a fourth-down 27-yard pass to End Johnny Rogers, culminating a 76-yard drive.

As the second quarter opened, Penn's Bill Rhoads bobbled the ball on his own 36 and End Russ Schuh grabbed the pigskin before it hit the ground and scored standing up for Cornell.

Penn closed the gap to one touchdown three minutes later, following a 58-yard quick kick by Dooney. Cornell punted to its 26 and after two thrusts at the line by Dooney, Red Bagnell fired eight yards to Carmen Falcone for the score. Again, Agocs converted.

That was all the scoring except for Dean's game-clinching field goal midway through the final pe-

'Can Go Where It Damn Pleases'

Navy 'Won't Make Liar' Out of Halsey

Annapolis, Md., Nov. 25 (A.P.).—The Navy football team has pledged itself "not to make a liar" out of Admiral William F. "Bull" Halsey.

The famous World War II task force commander's name came up frequently as the brigade of midshipmen held its traditional pre-Army-Navy game pep rally.

"Bull Halsey once said that the Navy can go where it damn pleases," Coach George Sauer told the cheering midshipmen.

"And we are going to go where we damn please against the Army Saturday in Philadelphia," he added.

Scott Emerson, Navy cocaptain and tackle, chimed in to say that the Tar football team "is not going to make a liar out of the admiral."

"Beat Army" was emblazoned in electric bulbs over the portals of Bancroft Hall, academy dormitory, and a huge bonfire was lit on the drill field as the 3200 midshipmen held their traditional rally.

Tecumseh, Indian figurehead in front of Bancroft Hall, was appropriately belligerent in a coat of red, yellow and blue warpaint, and his pedestal was decorated with a "Fry Army" sign.

The lowly plebes were in on the fun, too. For the first time in their short lives as midshipmen they are allowed to attend a hop—the Beat-Army dance for all classes.

Fake Ducats Cashed at Bowie Track

Bowie, Md., Nov. 25.—Counterfeiters have been at work at the Bowie race track. Thomas J. O'Hara, mutuel manager, disclosed today. Seven altered mutuel tickets were discovered yesterday and Bowie officials believe they were the work of a gang from New England where a score or more of bogus tickets were cashed during the Lincoln Downs meeting which ended a week ago.

The seven tickets, all of the $5 denomination, were cashed for $91.

Although the counterfeiting was discovered yesterday, the transaction occurred Tuesday, the tickets being cashed on Inheritance in the sixth race.

In reconstructing the case, O'Hara stated that the tickets were originally purchased on the No. 1 horse, Meetmenow, and then altered into a No. 8.

Employes of the American Totalizator Co., makers of the ticket vending machines, believe that the counterfeiters invariably buy No. 1 tickets, since they are the easiest to alter.

Immediately after purchasing the tickets, and before the race is actually run, the person takes the tickets to a rest room or some other secluded spot where ink eradicator is applied, employes believe.

Then, they report, the person waits until the end of the race and applies the appropriate number.

Some of the employes subsequently expressed surprise at the relatively insignificant amount of money netted by the transaction. The tickets cost $35 at their time of purchase, and after being altered were redeemable for only $91.

L. Ed O'Hara, general manager of the track and brother of the mutuel manager, took exception to the totalizator company's contention that the tickets should have been discovered at the cashier's window. He said the counterfeiting was 'almost perfect."

The track will be reimbursed the $91 by the totalizator company, which has an agreement with all race tracks that it will make good the losses on counterfeit tickets.

Picou Comes Back With 3 Winners

By Walter Haight
Post Reporter

Bowie, Md., Nov. 25.—Isadore Bieber's Palestinian, a son of the mud-loving Sun Again, was an easy winner in the 25th running of the $10,000 Endurance Handicap, Thanksgiving Day feature, watched by a crowd of 19,000.

Jockey Nick Combest coasted the chestnut colt into the wire five lengths ahead of C. E. Tuttle's Double Brandy. The latter was a half length in advance of Brookmeade Stable's Gnu, ridden by Apprentice Clarence Picou.

Although Picou's backers picked up only the crumbs of third money in the handicap, the youngster rode three winners in previous races to bring his total for the meeting to 25.

Palestinian, in winning his fourth straight and his seventh race, returned a $3.20 mutuel to his legion of backers. The race brought a minus pool of $1071.50 in the show betting.

The day's handle reached $1,337,466, highest this year in Maryland. Bowie's record of $1,400,000 and some change was set here on closing day last year.

Combest lost no time getting Palestinian to the front. When the break came, the colt darted past Gnu and Fugitive to take command and he lead every jump from that point to the wire. Fugitive and Galloping Gus made mild bids to get to the front-runner and weakened.

Gnu was shaken up by Picou to make his bid, but Combest simply let out a notch on Palestinian. Double Brandy, far back for a half, rallied gamely to close with a bold rush, but the move was good only to take the place from the weary Gnu.

Palestinian was clocked in a creditable, under the conditions, 1:46 2/5 and took down earnings of $8225, to bring his season's total to $24,025.

Both favorites and long shots had their innings on the program. Picou, after his shutout of yesterday, began on his right foot. He booted H. M. Simpson's Cessation home to win at $22.

In the second race, E. B. Townsend's Barefoot Lad was the winner at $15.40. Those who played the 3 and 6 combination in the daily double collected a $236.60 mutuel.

What's New With Picou? Here's His Play-by-Play—

BOWIE, Md., Nov. 25.—What's new with Picou—his day, play by play;

First Race—Took Cessation, owned by H. M. Simpson of Washington, to the front at the break and stayed there, winning by four lengths to the tune of a $22 mutuel. Winner No. 23 for meeting No. 1 for day.

Second Race—Allowed Helen Dear to settle into stride while in center of track, took her to inside in stretch and brought her along strongly but was third, beaten by 3½ lengths.

Third Race—Sent Theodore to the front soon after the break, rated the 3-year-old nicely, roused him to stave off challenge of Count Display and won easily at $8 mutuel. Winner No. 24 for meeting, No. 2 for day.

Fourth Race—Hustled Mad Pass into daylight lead early, rated her in front, went to whip when challenged in stretch but his filly could not resist final drive of Jobie and she was tiring at end.

Fifth Race—Rated Going Away closest to pace of May First, sent him to front in the stretch, looked back and took him in hand, winning by eight lengths at $5 mutuel. Winner No. 25 for meeting, No. 3 fod day.

Sixth race—After breaking Gnu alertly, he took the colt under steadying restraint, sent him to the outside, went into drive but Gnu weakened under the pressure and was weary third at the end.

Seventh Race—Rated Rex Romanus in fourth position during early stages, placed the gelding to a drive after a mile but his mount failed to respont and was a beaten off sixth in the field of eight.

'Skins, Terps Were Thankful Practice Ended

Thanksgiving Day was just another practice day for the Washington Redskins and University of Maryland Terrapins yesterday, but both squads were free in time for special dinners.

After a morning drill at Griffith Stadium, the 'Skins went their separate ways for turkey and the trimmings with wives and friends. They'll work out again this morning before leaving at 5:40 p. m. for their Sunday date with the Chicago Bears.

Center Al Demao, one arm dislocated and unable to make the Chicago trip, was active enough with one hand to win the Tribe's chow championship for the day. He and his wife dined with the John Adams', after which the "Tree" reported: "Al ate for more than 1½ hours."

Such couples as the Joe Tereshinskis, Bob Nussbaumers and Tom Farmers enjoyed family dinners while bachelor members of the team were almost all invited out. Sammy Baugh, Dick Todd and Harry Gilmer split a drumstick with Stockholder Leo DeOrsey.

Out at College Park the Terps, who had enjoyed their turkey on Wednesday night, ended a lengthy drill at 5 p. m. with a steak dinner. Maryland leaves for Saturday's game with West Virginia this morning at 10 a. m. It will travel by train to Uniontown, Pa., remain there overnight, and finish the 25-mile trip to Morgantown by bus tomorrow morning.

Navy Junior Varsity Wins

Annapolis, Md., Nov. 25 (AP).—Davey Jones was a hero instead of a nemesis to the Navy today. Jones threw two touchdown passes in a comeback by the Navy junior varsity football team which beat the North Carolina junior varsity, 20-12. It was the sixth win in eight games for the Navy.

Score by periods:

Navy J. V.	0	0	6	14	—20
North Carolina J. V.	0	12	0	0	—12

Navy: Touchdowns—Stinson, Eichison, McNally. Points after touchdowns—Willis (2).
North Carolina: Touchdowns—Koonts, Biedsoe.

17,000 See Howard Beat Lincoln, 19-12

Coach Eddie Jackson's Howard University Bisons yesterday defeated their ancient rivals, the Lions of Lincoln, 19-12, before 17,000 on a muddy Griffith Stadium gridiron.

It was the forty-third renewal of the famed classic of the colored Intercollegiate Athletic Association.

As the scoreless first period closed, Sandy Green, 205-pound Bison fullback, started a rally which led to the first 6 points early in the second quarter.

From the Bison 43, he drove straight through center 15 yards to the Lincoln 28. This set up the initial touchdown, a bullet pass, Chuck Ross to Nick McClain, in the end zone. Hillary Thompson failed to convert from placement.

The Lions ran the kickoff back to their 28-yard line and started an offensive to even the count. Receivers Les Smith, Jim Cooke and George Harmon carried the oval to the Bison 2. "Joltin'" Joe Harris, former Cardozo star, plunged over. A pass, Smith to Cooke, failed to convert.

Lincoln went to the front when Alex Parker's punt was blocked and recovered on the Bison 25 by Cooke. George Harmon went off tackle in three successive plays to score, but his placement failed by inches.

Then Chuck Ross tied up the count at 12-all with a beautiful 40-yard pass that Hillary Thompson took over his shoulder in the end zone. Harry Thompson was roughed on his conversion try. He tried again. Again he failed. So the half ended, 12-12.

The Bisons went into the final period on their own 43. Sandy Green started the winning surge with a 15-yard gain through center to the Bison 28, but Howard was penalized 15 yards for illegal use of hands.

A pass, Ross to Bill Abrams, carried to the Lions' 14. Again Green went like a bullet through center to the 8-yard stripe, and Abrams went off tackle to the Lions' 2.

Trinidad Wins 90-Pound Title

Trinidad Boys Club romped off with the Boys Club of Washington 90-pound football title yesterday on the Ellipse, scoring in every period for a 42-0 rout of Merrick Boys Club.

While approximately 50 parents and friends of the two teams looked on, Tommy Mayton led the victors scoring with three touchdowns. He reached pay territory twice on end runs of 40 and 20 yards, and the third time it was an off-tackle slant of 35 yards.

End Cecil Charles tallied two touchdowns and a pair of extra points, 13 of the points coming on passes from Quarterback Chris McCabe. McCabe also passed to Johnny Knight for a 6-pointer.

riod. The Big Red, with Dean ramming the line for 32 yards, drove from its 20 to the Penn 13. Dean dropped back and place-kicked the field goal from the 20.

Cornell thus wound up its greatest season under the tutelage of George (Lefty) James with eight victories and a single loss—a 27-6 decision to unbeaten Army.

With Bednarik playing the finale of his brilliant Penn career, Penn found itself on the short end of a score for the third straight time this year. After winning its first five, the Red and Blue bowed to Penn State (13-0) and Army (26-20) before losing to Cornell.

Thomason Passes VMI to 33-7 Victory Over VPI

Missouri Is 21-7 Winner in Finale

Columbia, Mo., Nov. 25 (AP).—Quarterback Bus Entsminger engineered Missouri to three first half touchdowns and a 21 to 7 football victory over the Kansas Jayhawks today. The triumph gave the Tigers undisputed possession of second place in the Big Seven Conference.

With a record Missouri homecoming crowd of 32,000 in the stands, the Tgers had to call on all their defensive strength to stop a pair of Kansas drives in the second half before whipping the Jayhawks for the first time since 1945.

The fifty-seventh game of the traditional series was played on a fast field under clear skies. Many of the spectators had shed their top coats before the final play of the bitterly fought game.

Entsminger scored two of Missouri's touchdowns. He smashed over guard from the two-yard line after a drive from the Kansas 48 for the first touchdown early in the opening quarter, and went across from the one-yard marker in the second.

In between the Entsminger touchdowns, the Tigers' hard running Dick Braznell whipped around the Jayhawks' right terminal 10 yards for a marker.

Bertuzzi Bucks Over

Kansas didn't score until the final period, when Halfback Dick Bertuzzi made it in two tries from the two-yard line. But Kansas was in complete charge of affairs for most of the final two periods.

Missouri	14	7	0	0	—21
Kansas	0	0	0	7	— 7

Touchdowns—Entsminger (2), Braznell, Bertuzzi. Points after touchdown—Dawson (2), K. Sperry.

Mt. Vernon Romps, 26-0, Over Fairfax

Mount Vernon won the Fairfax County high school football championship yesterday with a 26-0 victory over Fairfax before 3000 fans at the loser's stadium.

Charlie Thomas was Mount Vernon's pacemaker, passing to two touchdowns and bucking over for a third. It was Mount Vernon's eighth straight victory after two losses this season.

A Thomas-to-Page Thompson pass clicked for a 65-yard touchdown on the second play of the game. Ray Everitt's 6-yard plunge climaxed a 90-yard scoring march in the second quarter. The Mounts drove 49 yards to a third-period touchdown with Thomas bucking over center from the 1. A 23-yard Thomas-to-Sheldon Craig netted the last touchdown just before the final gun.

for two points in the third period.

The victory was G. W.'s tenth in its 25-game series with W-L. The Little Generals have won 12 times, with 3 other games having resulted in ties. The Presidents, who won 32-7 last year, gained a second leg on the Ol' Oaken Bucket, traditional prize of the winner.

Heroes of the G. W. triumph were Bobby Via, who helped set up both touchdowns, Teddy Potts who scored one and Eddie Johnson, who passed to Don Hanback for the other. Earl (Tubby) Dixon, 230-pound tackle, who booted both extra points, and Ends Smith and Pete Wedel were G. W.'s defensive standouts.

Jack Gilfillan and Hillebrand, who sparked a W-L drive to G. W.'s 7 before it fizzled in the first quarter, carried the offensive load for the Little Generals. Tackle Jack Sievers stood out on defense.

G. W.'s first scoring chance came in the second quarter when Via intercepted a Biff Johnson pass and sprinted 23 yards to the Little General 47. A Potts to Smith jump pass ate up most of the yardage in the drive to the three. Then Potts slanted through right guard and slid on his chest over the goal line.

A few moments later, Biff Johnson fumbled and G. W.'s Sol Block recovered on the W-L 13. Potts passed to Via on the 7. And then an Eddie Johnson toss to Hanback in the right flat tallied.

The victory was the sixth straight this season for the Presidents and ended a five-game streak of the Little Generals. G. W. wound up with an 8-1-1 record, its best since 1935 when it won 10 out of 11. W-L suffered three losses and one tie, and scored seven victories.

Wake Forest Romps, 38 to 0

Columbia, S. C., Nov. 25 (AP).—The Wake Forest Deacons trounced the University of South Carolina Gamecocks, 38-0, here today with a furious display of offensive power and defensive alertness.

A bad Gamecock center snap on its 36 set up the first Wake Forest score. A blocked punt resulted in the next touchdown, while a long return of an intercepted pass set up a third just before the half.

A 15-yard punt return deep in Gamecock territory and another pass interception led to two more scores in the third quarter. The fourth-period final tally came after Wake's recovery of a South Carolina fumble on the Gamecock 25.

Aggies Stun Texas With 14-14 Tie

Austin, Tex., Nov. 25 (U.P.)—Downtrodden Texas A. and M., a Southwest Conference doormat that hadn't won a game all season, lashed out with two fourth-period touchdowns today to tie heavily favored Texas, 14 to 14 before 68,000 stunned fans.

That knocked the lethargic Longhorns out of the race for the conference co-championship. They had nursed an outside chance for a tie with Southern Methodist before they ran into the rambunctious Aggies.

It was a breath-taking scoring 72-yard pass from Buryl Baty to End Charlie Wright in the last three minutes of play that drew the Aggies to within reaching distance of the two-tochdowns-favorded Texas eleven, and then Guard Herb Turley kicked the extra point to make the tie.

Texas had scored in the first period today and nursed a 7-0 lead into the final 15 minutes. But then the audacious Ags cut loose, and tied the count early in the fourth with an eight-play 25-yard surge that ended when Halfback Bob Goode drove the final yard. The conversion made the count, 7-7.

Texas didn't give up easily. The Longhorns came back after that Aggie score with a 54-yard touchdown march, climaxed by Paul Campbell's 9-yard touchdown pass to H. J. Shands.

And thus, with only three minutes left to go, Texas seemed assured of that victory which the forecasters so glibly promised. But from his own 28, Baty faded back for a do-or-die heave. Defenseman Bubba Shands deflected it slightly, but Wright pulled the ball out of the air, and pranced gleefully over the goal line. Turley booted the extra point and the score was tied: Texas A. & M. 14, Texas, 14.

Bonnies Beat Frisco, 20-14

Olean, N. Y., Nov. 25 (U.P.)—Little, but ambitious, St. Bonaventure, generally considered just a pin-point on the Nation's gridiron map, celebrated Thanksgiving and Coach Hughie Devore's thirty-eighth birthday at once today with a hard-earned 20 to 14 intersectional victory over San Francisco University.

The St. Bonaventure final score was made at the eight-minute mark of the third quarter when Lovuolo sprinted 4 yards on an end around.

In the fourth period, however, after the Bonnies had punted out of danger, the Frisco Flyers opened up with a drive on St. Bonaventure's 29. This time the weary Bonnie line couldn't hold and after a series of running plays Buksar carried over from one yard out for the game's final touchdown.

Heath's Mark Helps Nevada

Wichita, Kans., Nov. 25 (AP).—Nevada University's Wolf Pack powered its way to a 42-to-12 football triumph over the stubborn but outmanned Wichita University today.

A Thanksgiving Day crowd of 14,000 saw Stan Heath, Nevada's pitching quarterback, pass to a new national individual record of 22 touchdown completions.

He tossed two today against the Kansans to eclipse the record of Jackie Fellows of Fresno (Calif.) State, who tossed 21 six-point aerials in 1942.

It was a fat day for records for Nevada. The Wolf Pack brought its season's total net yards by the aerial route to 2,295 and its passing touchdown total to 27—both new records for major college elevens.

The game gave Nevada an even 400 points for the season.

Case Wins First Time in 21 Years Over Reserve, 15-7

Cleveland, Nov. 25 (AP).—For the first time in 21 years, Case won a football game against Western Reserve University today, 15 to 7.

The winners scored on a safety and two touchdowns on passes. Reserve's lone touchdown came on a 49-yard pass play. The team and followers carried Coach Ray Ride and his seven seniors off the field on their shoulders.

The crowd of 13,900 simply stayed in stands after the final gun and yelled while Case students wrecked both goal posts and carried off the remains after a scuffle with league park police.

Mellilo's Old Record

Stirnweiss and Doerr Break 15-Year-Old Fielding Mark

New York, Nov. 25 (AP).—A 15-year-old major league fielding record, set by Oscar Mellilo of the St. Louis Browns, was erased by two second basemen in the 1948 baseball season.

Unofficial fielding percentages for the past season showed today that both George Stirnweiss of the New York Yankees and Bobby Doerr of the Boston Red Sox topped Mellilo's .991 figure for 130 games in 1933.

Stirnweiss, one of the Yankees reported to be on the trading block because of his light hitting last season, fielded at a sensational .994 pace, 3 percentage points above the old record. Doerr's mark was .992.

The stubby Yankee second basemen, aided by a brilliant 71-game streak without an error in the early part of the campaign, committed only four bobbles all season. He handled a total of 694 chances flawlessly in 135 games, and had 338 putouts and 356 assists.

Stirnweiss' stretch of consecutive games without an error established a new mark for second basemen, displacing the old figure of 59 which Doerr set in 1943. However, the record was shortlived, as Doerr reclaimed the laurels later in the season by playing through 73 successive games without a miscue.

Catcher Buddy Rosar of the Athletics and Outfielder Frank Baumholtz of the Cincinnati Reds came close to equaling fielding marks in their respective positions. Rosar made only one error all season. He set the major league standard with a perfect 1.000 in 117 games in 1946.

Baumholtz, after playing through 115 contests without a miscue, committed three in his next eight games to lose any chance he might have had of matching Danny Litwhiler's perfect 1.000 fielding mark in 1942.

Davidson Wins On Pass, 7 to 0

Charlotte, N. C., Nov. 25 (AP).—Sophomore Tailback Auburn Lambeth limped off the bench long enough to pass Davidson to a 7-0 victory over Furman today in the Southern Conference windup for both teams.

The 165-pounder from Decatur, Ga., who entered the game as the Nation's twelfth best passer, sparked a 13-play touchdown drive of 68 yards in the second quarter. He threw three passes with two completions, hitting End Buddy Cheek in the end zone on fourth down from the 16 for the only touchdown.

Furman threatened often, both before and after the Davidson score, but its passing attack failed at critical moments. The final gun cut short a 53-yard Furman drive on the Davidson 8 with a first down coming up.

Paul Stombaugh, brilliant Furman kicker, who was the country's fifth leading punter with a 42.1 yard average for 65 boots going into the game, averaged 42.5 for seven kicks.

Navy Finishes Warmups in Philly Today

Annapolis, Md., Nov. 25 (AP).—Navy gridders got three helpings of football for Thanksgiving.

Coach George Sauer gave his squad no holiday let-up in his all-out preparations for the finale with Army in Philadelphia Saturday.

He had a meeting with the squad this morning, ran them through a play scrimmage this afternoon, and wound up with another discussion tonight.

The squad will leave for Philadelphia tomorrow morning, working out on the game gridiron in Municipal Stadium in the afternoon. They will stay overnight at the Pine Valley Country Club in Clementon, N. J.

The brigade of midshipmen, 3300 strong, will go up to Baltimore by ship Saturday morning and from there to Philadelphia in special trains.

The entire Navy squad, with the exception of Fullback Bill Hawkins, is in tip-top shape. Hawkins worked out lightly yesterday for the first time since he injured his shoulder in the Columbia game two weeks ago.

In the event Hawkins is unable to stand too much play, Coach Sauer said he would shift Al McCully from halfback to the fullback slot. Jimmy Green and Walt Marquardt will handle the right half job in this case with Pete Williams at the other half and Reaves Baysinger quarterbacking.

Coach Sauer can't match Army's two unit system, but he has set up offensive and defensive teams. Playing on both in the secondary will be McCully, Hawkins and Baysinger. Doing double duty in the line will be center Tex Lawrence and Guard Bob Hunt.

A major lineup change for the Army game is at the ends. The veterans, Phil Ryan and Harrison Frasier, will operate on defense while a couple of big youngsters, Tex Carson and Bill Wilson, will handle the pass catching chores.

Friends Provide 'Proper' Burial For Hack Wilson

Baltimore, Nov. 25 (AP).—Hack Wilson, the rollicking baseball slugger of yesteryear, died penniless but not friendless.

The National League of which he was once home run king, friends and fans combined to save him from a pauper's grave.

Wilson's body lay unclaimed in the city morgue after his death here Tuesday. It would have been buried by the city in Potter's Field after tonight.

The National League, in which Wilson still is credited with two records, stepped in today. Ford Frick wired the undertaker a check for $350. Money collected by Hack's neighbors will buy a grave marker.

The funeral, a proper one, will be held Saturday morning. Burial will follow in Druid Ridge Cemetery.

Brown Wins Over Colgate

Providence, R. I., Nov. 25 (AP).—Ed Finn, Brown's senior aerial artist, threw three touchdown passes today as the Bruins routed Colgate, 35 to 7, in their annual Thanksgiving Day duel before crowd of some 20,000.

Finn watched a 7-yard scoring pass to George Paterno at 2:50 of the opening period, a 16-yarder to Frank Mahoney in the second quarter and boosted his scoring-pass total for the year to 13 with a 30-yarder to Chuck Nelson in the final quarter. It was the seventh time this fall that Finn and Nelson clicked for touchdowns.

Colgate matched Brown's first touchdown when Tod McLoughlin flipped to Harry Wiley from the 4-yard line, but once Roger Young ran the ensuing kickoff back 76 yards for Brown the home forces were in command.

Brown scored three plays after that runback, Fred Kozak going over from the seven. The Bruins added one touchdown in the second period and two in the finale, five different players scoring. Joe Condon converted after each.

Married Men Of Utah Spurn Delta Bowl Bid

Salt Lake City, Nov. 25 (U.P.)—Married members of the Utah University football team tonight forced the school to turn down a bid to the Memphis (Tenn.) Delta Bowl after a university spokesman originally announced acceptance of the invitation.

Utah defeated Utah State, 41 to 7, today, and immediately trooped into the dressing room to receive a bid to play William and Mary in the New Year's Day game.

Parry Sorenson, university publicity director, then announced that the team had voted to go to the game.

Later, however, University President Ray Olpin emerged from a huddle with a Bowl representative and announced that the bid was rejected.

"We are in no position," he said, "to accept any Bowl bid since a minority of the squad has voted to reject proposals for a post-season appearance.

Sorensen subsequently revealed that 13 of the players are married, and that they felt playing a New Year's Day game would cut off their holiday celebrations with their families.

Lions Beaten Again, 5 to 2

New Haven, Conn., Nov. 25.—Hamstrung by injuries to three key forwards, the Washington Lions tonight lost a fast 5-2 American Hockey League tangle with the New Haven Ramblers before a holiday crowd of 2200 fans at the Arena here. The Lions play the Cleveland Barons in Washington tomorrow night.

Washington took a 2-0 lead at 7:52 in the middle canto when Harry Frost beat Rambler Goalie Emile Francis with a short pitch shot on the heels of a Norm McAtee-Ten Mutcheson relay from behind the New Haven cage. Frost's tally followed Ken Shultz's first period counter, rapped home at 19:27.

At this point, New Haven, currently in third place in the American Hockey League's Eastern Division, took charge. They rallied for second period scores by Winger Fred Brown and Jean Paul Denis, the latter scoring while Harry Dick was in the penalty box.

New Haven wrapped up the tilt by blasting Gauthier for three more markers in the final. Defenseman Gerry Claude got the third Blueshirt score, Sherm White bashed home the fourth and Brown repeated for the fifth and final one, his second of the fast tilt.

Burley, Corn Bowls Result In 7-2 and 6-0 Struggles

Johnson City, Tenn., Nov. 25 (AP).—The Rams of West Chester, Pa., State Teachers successfully defended their Burley Bowl football title today by turning back the highly-rated Appalachian State College Mountaineers of Boone, N. C., 7 to 2.

A crowd of 12,000 watched the Mountaineers take a first-period lead when Bill Cross, Maryville, Tenn., kicked out of bounds on the West Chester 2. Ram Back Paul Willey was caught back of the goal and he slipped to give the Mountaineers a 2 to 0 lead.

West Chester came driving back late in the second period and Wayne Schneider pitched out to Joe Dalanzo, who passed to Charles Leonard and the latter raced to the Mountaineer 3. Dalanzo pushed to the 1, Waldman drove to the 6-inch line, then slid off guard for the score. Raymond di Sprafino kicked the extra point.

Bloomington, Ill., Nov. 25 (AP).—Gil Baechler, a sophomore back, slipped through the line for a touchdown with one minute to play today to give Illinois Wesleyan a 6-to-0 victory over Eartern Illinois State Teachers College in the annual Corn Bowl football game.

The score capped a 55-yard drive which followed Capt. Curt Brown's interception of a Panther pass.

Eastern battered its way to the 2-yard stripe in the second quarter before time ran out.

Don Larson, Wesleyan fullback, contributed the day's longest run before the 8200 fans, going 51 yards after receiving a flat pass from Baechler. Larson was brought down from behind by Eastern's star sprinter and halfback, Don Johnson.

Bob Finishes Career With 17 for 24

Roanoke, Va., Nov. 25.—Bobby Thomason's fine passing arm had too much snap for Virginia Tech, and VMI lashed out with a 33-7 victory here today.

VMI's most distinguished alumnus, Secretary of State George C. Marshall, was among the 29,000 fans who saw Thomason finish his collegiate career by passing to two touchdowns and setting up the other three. In his day's work, Thomason completed 17 out of 24 passes.

Tech started out fast, bombarding its way 65 yards with Ralph Beard, Bud Fisher and Sterling Wingo carrying. Beard went over from the 3. Ross Orr kicked the conversion and the Gobblers led, 7-0.

The Keydets came back in the second quarter when Bill Leck intercepted a Fisher pass on the Tech 26. Thomason, on passes to Jack Hutchinson and Jack Lowden moved the ball to the 3 where Vince Ragunas bulled over for the tally. Bill Graf's kick was good, and the game was tied up.

Thomson kept his arm warm during intermission, and after the third-quarter kickoff, sent VMI 64 yards on four passes to the 1-yard line. His first three went to Hutchinson for 44 yards. His fourth toss went to Bill Watson. Ray Tamalis bucked over and Orr converted.

Hap Anson intercepted another Fisher pass to set the next VMI score in motion on the Tech 27. Thomason passed first to Pat Patton and then to Watson for the touchdown.

Four Thomason passes, the last to Hutchinson, carried VMI 80 yards to its first fourth-quarter touchdown, with Graf booting the extra point. Thomason's passes brought VMI to Tech's 20 just before the game ended, and Joe Stump scored from there on an end run.

Spiders Edge W. & L., 14-12

Richmond, Va., Nov. 25 (AP).—Brilliant running on the part of Charlie Suttenfield paced the University of Richmond Spiders to a 14-12 victory over Washington and Lee's Generals in City Stadium here today.

Eight thousand spectators watched the Spiders pull from behind twice before they won the Southern Conference battle. After trailing, 12 to 7, at half time, the Spiders came back in the second half with an 80-yard sustained march that ended with Fullback Ed (Sugar) Ralston plunging over from the 1 with five minutes gone in the fourth stanza.

Washington and Lee needed less than eight minutes of the first quarter to break the scoring. After Joe McCutcheon recovered Suttenfield's fumble on the Spider 15, the Generals scored on just four plays. The payoff play was Mike Boyda's pass that Brian Bell juggled just short of the goal, finally pulled in and raced over.

Suttenfield put the Spiders even in the second quarter when he grabbed Boyda's kick on the General 44 and fled down the sidelines to the goal. Frank Thompson's kick that was to play an important part in the Richmond victory cut the uprights perfectly.

The Generals came right back and drove 74 yards to go ahead again. Bell picked up the final 6 yards in three plays, smashing over from the 1. The big blow in that drive was Fullback Charlie Holt's 34-yard dash.

The odd thing about the game was that Walt Michaels, W&L's extra-point specialist, missed both tries for extra point. He'd muffed only 2 in 14 previous placement tries this season.

Export Law Extension to 1953 Is Seen

By The Associated Press

Administration sources predicted yesterday President Truman will ask the new Congress to keep export controls in force throughout the prospective four years of the Marshall Plan.

They said the request would fit in with both United States foreign policy, particularly that related to the "cold war," and the domestic anti-inflation program.

Their explanation:

1. The controls furnish a means by which scarce industrial goods can be channeled to western Europe to aid in its recovery and simultaneously be kept from reaching the Russian sphere.

2. They also furnish a means of preventing foreign buyers from bidding up the price of American goods.

Controls Expire February 28

The ontrols, wielded by the Commerce Department through licensing requirements on shipping abroad, are scheduled to expire February 28 under a "temporary" extension voted by Congress earlier this year.

The informants, who can not be named, said Secretary of Commerce Sawyer has suggested to the President that the control powers be extended through 1952 so they will cover the planned life span of the European Recovery Program.

The original export control law was passed July 2, 1940, shortly after France fell to the Nazis. Since then it has been renewed periodically.

The last Congress wrapped control authority into an act giving antitrust law immunity to firms entering into "voluntary agreements" to ration scarce industrial materials, such as steel. The law set February 28 as the expiration date for the whole business.

Clamped Down Last March

Sawyer's recommendations, Administration sources said, call for separating export controls and the allocations powers, renewal of both and possible standby power for compulsory allocations if the voluntary program breaks down.

Use of export controls as a "cold war" weapon began in earnest last March. A clampdown was invoked then on shipments to the Russian sphere of industrial equipments or other goods that might add to the Soviet's "war potential."

Since March, Russian imports from the United States have dropped to the lowest point in 13 years, while, oddly enough, Russian shipments to this country have been rising. These include Soviet manganese and chrome, two industrial metals the United States is stockpiling against a war emergency.

Adoptions At New Peak Over Nation

Baby adoptions are booming at an unprecedented rate, Government officials said yesterday.

All over the Nation, baby-placing agencies are swamped with requests, mostly from childless couples, for infants abandoned or surrendered by their real mothers and fathers.

Officials said there are at least 10 requests for babies to adopt for every little one available to be placed in a foster home. One Washington placement agency said it had so many demands it had stopped taking applications.

In 1944, when the latest survey was made, the Children's Bureau estimated there were petitions filed for 50,000 children throughout the country. That was more than three times the number 10 years earlier.

75,000 Petitions Estimated

Pending completion of a new survey next year, officials estimated that the 1944 figure has risen at least another 50 per cent to 75,000 petitions.

At the same time, they said it appeared that "the trend is slightly away" from "baby black markets" in which families unable to secure babies for adoption pay large sums to organized rings to get illegitimate babies.

The heavy demand means that would-be foster parents may have to wait two years or more.

But they won't have to own a mansion or have a $10,000-a-year income to get a baby that someone else doesn't want or can't care for.

Miss I. Evelyn Smith, adoption consultant to the Children's Bureau, said that a farmer, a factory worker, a policeman or a plumber can adopt a baby if he can offer it a good home and is willing to wait his turn.

Security Is Big Point

"Financial security of the home, rather than specific income," she said, "is the most important thing agencies look for. If a man has a steady job, a big enough income to support a child and something to show his financial stability, he can probably adopt a baby."

You stand "practically no chance" of adopting a baby if you can have your own, though, Miss Smith said. She noted that some people with all boys may want to adopt a girl, or couples might even want to adopt children to save the difficulty of bearing their own.

"That would deprive those who can't have a baby of a chance for a child," she said. "It doesn't seem quite fair for one family to have all the good things."

So strict are agencies about this, she added, that they usually won't give a couple a baby to adopt until they've been married five years and are certain they can't have their own. The five-year stretch also is a good "testing period" to see if the marriage will last, she explained.

She said most agencies don't require prospective foster parents to have a house. An apartment is satisfactory if there is a separate room for the child, or assurance that a separate room will be provided soon.

"Junior, I've told you a hundred times . . . giraffes don't eat coconuts!"

Polio Heading For Its Second Worst Year

The polio outbreak is subsiding so slowly that 1948 appears likely to be the second worst year on record for infantile paralysis.

The Public Health Service, reporting this today, said the number of cases to date this year total 25,692. While below the 1946 total of 26,000 it is well above the 23,894 cases listed through mid-November of that year.

A total of 261 polio cases have been reported in Greater Washington to date this year, with 132 of them recorded for the District and 129 for nearby Maryland and Virginia. Greater Washington had 56 reported cases this time last year.

The record year for polio was 1916, with 30,000 cases reported. But health service officials say that if the same thorough and detailed reporting methods had been used then the 1916 total probably would have been about 50,000.

One official said the 1948 total may exceed 27,000.

The agency's latest reports show that California with 4869 has had by far the largest number of victims this year.

Agencies Face Task Of Absorbing Cost of Recent Wage Boosts

Heavy pressure is on Federal agencies to absorb the cost of the recent flat $330 pay raise to their employes during the 1950 fiscal year that begins next July 1.

In fact, some agencies, including the Federal Communications Commission and Federal Works Agency, have been informed by letter from the Budget Bureau that the President desires them to soak up this additional heavy cost.

Other agencies that have been ordered to tighten their belts include the Federal Power Commission, Securities and Exchange Commission, Interstate Commerce Commission, Export-Import Bank, Tariff Commission, Federal Trade Commission, Maritime Commission, National Labor Relations Board, Civil Service Commission and the Tax Court.

Representatives of every single agency that have appeared before the budget review board at the Budget Bureau have been asked to absorb the cost of the pay raise bill. Postoffice is reported to be one department that will be given additional funds to meet the higher salaries. Its employes were given a flat $450 each.

A top official of one agency estimates he will be forced to cut personnel about 7 per cent before next June 30 in order to fit his organization to the new and tighter budget.

For the 1950 fiscal year, the President is reported to have ordered slashes in funds for just about every agency to do budget, personnel, auditing and accounting, payroll and purchasing work.

The Budget Bureau has set up work standards for these housekeeping activities—yardsticks to measure personnel in relation to the work to be done. This is a sound idea even though several of the agencies are screaming about the cuts they must make. It's charged the standards are "unrealistic." But if work standards were set up for most Federal jobs the employes in them would know what was expected of them, a healthy condition. Also, the standards are a check on both under and overstaffing.

The question of absorbing the cost of the July pay raise is confined at this moment to the 1950 budget. The remainder of this fiscal year is a different matter. Most agencies already have overspent their congressional-approved appropriations since the pay bill didn't pass until a few hours before Congress recessed and there was no time to consider new appropriations to foot the cost of the pay bill. Therefore, Congress will be asked to approve supplemental appropriations to meet this cost for nearly all agencies.

However, ample warning is being given to all agencies that they must take care of the pay raise cost out of budgets that will actually be smaller, in many instances, for 1950. This means the average agency will have six months to cut down on costs and personnel.

CIVIL SERVICE: Although this commission will be ordered to absorb some of the pay raise cost, it's also requesting funds to enlarge its investigations and loyalty activities. This is the story behind it:

In the President's original loyalty order, he directed full-scale investigations in so-called "sensitive" jobs and of all people who are slated to take them. This program would have cost about 10 million dollars a year and the Congress knocked it out.

However, the Senate Ferguson Committee, after an inquiry into the loyalty program, indorsed this part of the President's program. It pointed out that the same loyalty check was given all employes, the ditchdigger and the possessor of top Government secrets. It agreed with the President that people in jobs dealing with state secrets should be subjected to a more thorough loyalty inquiry. The committee drove home the President's point.

SLASH: The Budget Bureau has ordered a slash of 53,829 Federal workers during the third quarter of this fiscal year that begins on January 1. The directive has little meaning. Actually no lay-offs will be made that hadn't been planned.

For example, Postoffice is given what appears to be a big whack—a lay-off of 40,286 employes. But that number and more will be hired by that department to take care of the Christmas mail rush and they would have been dropped after the holidays, order or no order. The other big lay-offs are set for Agriculture and Interior. Again, these are part-time and seasonal people who knew the ax was coming.

AWARDS: At the Internal Revenue Bureau, cash awards for suggestions have been made to Agnes J. Arnold, Ward Black, Avery Cardot, Herbert Gilmore, Benjamin Goodman, J. B. MacPherson, Mrs. N. J. Special Police To Get Year's Commissions

Answer Queries

Rules Drafted For Reserve Police Corps

Term Is Shortened; Distribution to Start In Week; Standard Uniforms Ordered

By Alfred E. Lewis
Post Reporter

New one-year commissions will be distributed beginning next week to the 1700 special police in the District, it was disclosed yesterday.

These limited commissions, which include authority for the special police to carry pistols on duty, replace three-year commissions for such duty, in use here previously.

The new commissions are effective January 1, and were authorized in September by the District Commissioners, together with a revised set of regulations governing special police. These more restrictive revisions grew out of an incident last June in which a special policeman accosted a man and woman in a parked car, resulting in a fight.

To Standardize Uniforms

Special police are those employed as private building guards, bank delivery messengers, guards at utility plants, etc. This category does not include Federal building guards.

By January 1, a start will have been made on standardizing uniforms of the special police, said Lieut. Harry Blackman, in command of the Police Department's special investigation squad.

He said 1000 of the guards now have blue uniforms, while the 700 others have no standardized uniforms. That date is a deadline for the 1000 to add a light blue stripe to their trousers, while the others have to wear a uniform of dark brown trousers and light brown blouse bearing a shoulder patch with the words, "special police," he said.

Special Police Lectured

Before January 1, 1950, all special police must have the latter uniform, said Lieutenant Blackman, in accordance with an order by the Commissioners to wear distinctive uniforms.

During recent weeks, Det. Sergt. James Hunter has been holding weekly sessions with the special police to acquaint them with other new regulations, which include restrictions on when weapons may be carried.

A special manual of regulations and operating procedure for the new police reserve force is expected to be ready in a few days, Police Superintendent Robert J. Barrett said yesterday.

Major Barrett said the manual for the civilian reserve corps, in preparation for more than a month, will answer many queries about the corps which have as yet gone unanswered.

Inspectors Walter Storm and Lloyd E. Kelly have drawn up a tentative manual for the emergency corps, which is subject to revision and will require approval of the District Commissioners.

Major issues as yet unclarified include the problem of arming the reserves—to number 200 at the outset who can be called out in event of "riot, pestilence, invasion," etc., or to aid in public celebrations such as the coming inauguration ceremony.

Despite the holiday, dozens of new inquiries about the volunteer reserve group were made at police headquarters yesterday, and Inspector Storm said "hundreds" of calls and letters have been received to date. Applications will be sent to these callers.

Major Barrett said definitely yesterday that he believes legislation by Congress will be necessary to provide compensation for any of the reserves injured on duty.

Other police officials indicated this would not, however, delay instituting the training program, noting there is little likelihood of injuries during the 30-day basic training period which will be given the reserves. This, they said, would enable a starting group of about 70 to be trained in time for President Truman's inauguration in January.

In another phase of the programs to bolster police ranks, Inspector Floyd A. Truscott said he hopes to arrange a conference today with Civil Service Commission officials on plans to recruit 80 policewomen.

This recruitment was authorized earlier this week by the District Commissioners at the same time they approved the civilian reserve plan.

Inspector Truscott, chairman of the Police Department's Civil Service Advisory Committee, said several preliminary talks have been held with civil service on how best to enroll the uniformed policewomen as assistant station clerks to relieve policemen for more active duty.

Unlike the civilian reserves, these policewomen will be regular members of the force.

Primary source of these policewomen, said Inspector Truscott, may be a wide variety of junior registers at Civil Service. These list women with some legal, medical, nursing, accounting or similar training, and even women with secretarial training may be sought, he said.

Police, Firemen Help Woman To Leave Work

Mrs. Rose Thompson, 43, of 1108 H st. ne., left work yesterday the hard way—via a 30-foot-high ledge and a fire department ladder.

Police and firemen rushed to People's Drug Store at 1107 Pennsylvania ave. nw., at about 10:30 p. m. in response to a call that a woman was perched on a ledge above the store's marquee.

There they discovered a woman in a leopard skin coat waving her arms and screaming "Help! Get me down. Help!"

Assisted down a 30-foot ladder by Pvts. Clifford Hamilton and Ernest Acker of the Fire Department, the woman identified herself and explained:

"I got locked in when I finished work at the soda fountain and went upstairs to the dressing room. I had to get home some way . . ."

Mother Has Happy Holiday

By Gene Jones—The Washington Post

ALL EYES FOR MOM—Reunited on Thanksgiving Day, thanks to Chief Judge Bolitha J. Laws, this mother and her sons spent a happy holiday. John, 9, and James, 6, sit down to a pie apiece, baked by mom, Mrs. Rose Barbara Moore, of 766 Princeton pl. nw.

Two little boys scampered noisily about the apartment, sniffing eagerly at the pleasant kitchen odors while their mother fixed Thanksgiving dinner yesterday.

For all three—Mrs. Rose Barbara Moore, 39, of 766 Princeton pl. nw., and her sons, John, 9, and James, 6—it was a particularly happy holiday.

At the beginning of the week, it had threatened to be a gloomy Thanksgiving. Mrs. Moore faced a contempt hearing because she had failed November 10 to turn the boys over to her former husband who has their custody. She had been deprived temporarily of the right to see her sons.

Then Tuesday, Chief Justice Bolitha J. Laws decided Mrs. Moore could have her sons for the holiday and dismissed the contempt charge against her.

The boys arrived yesterday at 10:30 a. m. and will stay until Sunday afternoon. With young enthusiasm, they spread their toys over the living room floor, jumping up now and then to run to the kitchen and admire the plump chicken, the spicy pumpkin pie and the fat layer cake.

"We're going to roast chestnuts," they exclaimed with glee, sending a loving glance toward their mother, who is limited in funds but full of plans for a week-end of fun. A trip to the Zoo was scheduled to follow afternoon dinner.

Mrs. Moore, who is a Navy Department clerk typist, signed away the custody of the boys to the father, John A. Moore, 43, hardware executive and gentleman farmer of Mount Airy, Md., three years ago because she lacked money to support them.

On numerous occasions during the last year, she sought to regain but was denied their custody. She has the right to see them only on specified occasions and certain weekends.

Mrs. Moore divorced her husband in Florida in 1942. He has remarried and has three other children.

Isotope Study at Howard U.

By N. S. Haseltine
Post Reporter

Research with radioactive isotopes is being carried out at Howard University here.

Backed by funds from Research Corporation, Howard physicists, technicians and students have meticulously tackled the basic aspects of the new science, the pioneering work for things to come in the atomic age. And they've been doing this without flights of fancy since 1946.

The results show up unobtrusively, and seldom in the public press, as reports in scientific journals, fellowships for continuing work at other universities, Navy contracts, and support from industry, perhaps only passing mention in bibliographies of more publicized papers.

Which is as it should be, said Dr. Lawrence B. Robinson, associate professor of physics at Howard University, who directs the isotope research. A Harvard Ph. D., he coordinates the work and is in charge during sabbatical leave of its director, Dr. Herman Branson, who is now in California on a fellowship granted by the American Cancer Society.

The research program was begun with an initial grant of $7500 from Research Corporation, nonprofit and self-sustaining organization for the support of research for scientific, industrial and humanitarian purposes. A second grant, of $5000, was awarded last year, and recently the corporation supplied another $5000 for the current school year.

The Howard University scientists and students, Prof. Robinson said, are currently studying with radioactive phosphorus the effects of various vitamins on metabolism in chick embryos, and are investigating performance of Kallman scintillation counters in detecting and tracing radioactive substances.

Other investigations have ranged from the tracing of radioactive iodine to learn its effects on thyroid glands to plant research with radioactive phosphorus on corn seeds and seedlings.

Supplies for the experimentations come variously from Oak Ridge, Tenn.; the cyclotron, original atom smasher at the Carnegie Institute of Washington, and from mining companies, who supply radioactive ores found in natural state.

Present isotope research at Howard University is carried on by Dr. Robinson, James B. Drew, instructor in physics; William M. McIntosh, physics instructor and instrument maker, and four graduate students. The last-named group includes Donald T. Jefferson, Paul H. Ware, Charles S. Cook and John J. Hutchinson.

Others affiliated with the research studies are Louise Arrington, a graduate of Smith College, Northampton, Mass., who is delving into metabolism of phosphorus in chick embryos, and Harvey Banks, a Howard graduate.

Since much of the research is so basic, even the instruments for the studies must be fashioned in the physics laboratory at Howard. This work is largely delegated to Instructor McIntosh, school specialist in the craft.

One such machine that had to be built was the mass spectrometer with which studies are now being made with heavy (not radioactive) isotopes in research on ionization of gases. Construction of the spectrometer was guided by Dr. Branson, with students pitching in to aid the instrument maker.

Such work, however, said Dr. Robinson, forms only interludes in the real work done at the physics laboratory, the pioneer research of a new science, radioactive tracings.

Perhaps some day the findings at Howard University will be a brief bibliographical mention of an atomic age wonder, a method of obtaining solar energy, a cancer cure, or—what are the science fiction writers dabbling in now?

Meanwhile, Howard University is proud of its research record to date. At the spring meeting of the National Institute of Science, 10 of the 28 research papers presented stemmed from the Howard project.

Four Negro scientists who have worked on the project have been granted fellowships by the Atomic Energy Commission. Other "graduates" have gone on to important teaching and research posts.

The Atomic Energy Commission fellowships were awarded to Dr. Frank Johnson, physician, and Edgar Williams, physics instructor, and George Ferguson, student, for study at the University of Pennsylvania.

3-Month-Old Baby Died of Natural Causes, Is Report

A three-month-old baby who died from natural causes in Alexandria Hospital will be buried at 3 p. m. today in Fort Lincoln Cemetery.

The child, Susan Martin, was found unconscious in her bed at the Wellington Nursery, Mount Vernon Memorial hwy., on Wednesday night by Mrs. B. R. Ditto, operator of the licensed nursery. Rushed to the hospital, the baby was pronounced dead about an hour later.

According to Alexandria's Coroner Dr. John A. Sims, death was due to asphyxia brought on by natural causes. The baby's mother is Mrs. Mary Martin, of 4004 Bunker Hill rd., Cottage City, Md.

Holiday Traffic Takes 3 Lives In District Area

Woman Pedestrian Killed in District; 2 Killed in Md. as Cars Leave Road

District traffic deaths this year 62
Deaths this date last year ... 67
Total deaths last year 72

Three traffic deaths, one in the District and two in nearby Maryland, marred the holiday yesterday in a day of many traffic accidents.

A woman tentatively identified as Victoria Jones, about 65, address unknown, was injured fatally when she was struck by an automobile at 8:30 p. m. in the 5200 block of Central ave. ne.

Two women companions told police the driver fled. Within four minutes, Scout Car 143 forced a car to the curb at Southern and Central aves. ne. They arrested James Turner Gibson, jr., 32, of 5001 Sheriff rd. ne., as the hit-and-run driver.

Police charged Gibson with hit-and-run and drunken driving and held him for the action of the coroner. They said he is employed by the Federal Works Agency as a carpenter.

The woman was pronounced dead on arrival at Casualty Hospital. Her companions told police they did not know her well, but believed she had relatives living in the 300 block of McLean ave. nw.

Dies of Broken Neck

Carl Zirkle, 30, of 703 Gail ave., Rockville, Md., died of a broken neck when his car failed to make a curve and crashed into a bridge abutment in Maryland.

Scene of the crash was Route 118, the Germantown-Darnestown hghwy, about a mile and a half from Old Germantown. It happened shortly after 7 p. m.

A companion riding with Zirkle, Vernon Mobley, jr., 22, of Derwood, Md., was admitted to the hospital with a possible leg fracture and possible jaw fracture. His condition was undetermined.

The third death was that of Annabelle Mitchell, 25, of 1661 Rosedale st. ne., whose neck was broken when the car in which she

Charter Suit Aimed at Ban On Election

By Roger B. Farquhar
Post Reporter

A lawsuit seeking to block the scheduled charter council election in Montgomery County is expected to be filed today in County Circuit Court at Rockville.

Formal launching of the move heralded by opponents last week, was revealed yesterday by F. Barnard Welsh, legal adviser to the county commissioners who are bringing the action.

Welsh said he would file the suit based on a provision of the Maryland constitution today and, at the same time, he pledged to work for speedy settlement of the legal question before January 6, scheduled date of the election.

Slated for election are seven members of a charter council which would administer county affairs in conformance with the council-manager form of government adopted by county voters on November 2.

Contend It Would Conflict

The suit, Welsh said, will claim that holding of the election would conflict with Article 17 of the State constitution. The provision, he explained, limits elections for State and county officers to a quadrennial basis. The last election for county office holders was in 1946 and another one cannot legally be held until 1950, Welsh claimed.

The provision also states that State and county elected office holders shall hold office for four years and it is believed that will provide additional ammunition to the Welsh suit. The present commissioners have been in office only two years.

No Justification, They Say

Optimism expressed by Welsh that he would win the suit was immediately matched by charter leaders who earlier stated there is "no legal justification for filing such a suit."

James J. Hayden, charter leader and a member of the charter board which drafted the document now under attack, expressed confidence Welsh would lose the suit. The defense will base its stand on the premise that the constitutional provision cited by Welsh has no application to the special charter election, Hayden disclosed.

Col. Norman B. Ames, county charter committee president, declined to discuss the pending litigation. "We are just waiting for them to show their hand and we'll be there," he commented.

Both sides have promised to carry the fight to the Maryland Court of Appeals at Annapolis after a decree is issued by Montgomery Circuit Court.

Both Expect Speed

Attorneys have predicted both the lower and the higher court will give the suit preferential treatment and render prompt decisions. Some observers are predicting a final decree will be issued by County Circuit Court within a week.

It will be the second time constitutionality of the "home rule" document has been challenged in court. Earlier, Hubert A. Schneider, Bethesda attorney, unsuccessfully sought to prevent the November 2 charter referendum.

Only four of the five commissioners will be listed as plaintiffs in the suit which was originally proposed by Welsh. On Tuesday, Commissioner Charles H. Jamison, a Democrat, disclosed he would not go along with his four Republican colleagues. He cited as his reason the fact that the charter had been approved by a majority of the voters.

Defendant in the suit will be the county board of elections. Charter spokesmen say that both the charter committee and the charter board will become voluntary defendants.

53 Fined on Drunk, Disorder Charges

Of the 54 persons to appear in the D. C. branch of Municipal Court yesterday, one one—Johnnie Walker—was not charged with being drunk or disorderly.

Walker, who is 24, and lives at 123 G st. sw., was arrested on a warrant charging him with failing to turn in his driver's permit and operating on a suspended permit. The case was continued to November 30, and he was released under $300 bond.

The other 53 men and women, who appeared before Judge John P. McMahon, received fines ranging from $5 to $15 on charges of drunkenness or disorderly conduct. Forty-eight were fined for drunkenness.

Florists to File Suit Against Hospital Today

A suit asking Arlington Hospital to remove a self-service flower vending box from its lobby will be filed today in Arlington Circuit Court, Attorney John Paul Jones said yesterday.

Suit is being brought by Jones for the Northern Virginia Florists Association, which contends that the box provides "unfair competition" to local florists.

The refrigerated box is operated by Washington florist W. V. Steddom of 2900 14th st. nw. The Arlington Hospital board of directors has refused to have the box removed.

Man Stabbed in Alley

Homicide squad detectives yesterday were investigating the stabbing of Robert Fowler, 22, of 1344 Monroe st. nw., about 12:30 a. m. in an alley alongside 3128 14th st. nw. Fowler, who is in good condition at Garfield Hospital, said a stranger assaulted him for no apparent reason and stabbed him in the abdomen.

Civic Federation to Elect

Ernest F. Harper, 520 23d st. ne., a postal clerk at the City Postoffice, is the incumbent president. He is a member of the Kingman Park Civic Association. No advance slate of candidates has been announced. All nominations will be made from the floor.

Fire Destroys House

Earl Lunsford's one-room frame house at 204 72d pl., Carmody Hills, Md., was destroyed by fire early yesterday. Hillside firemen, who responded to the call, said the blaze resulted from a gas stove explosion. Lunsford and three members of his family escaped injury.

Man Grabs for Turkey, But Eats Steak in Jail

Baltimore, Nov. 25 (AP).—Wellington Dickey had his turkey dinner all picked out for today.

But he got caught picking it out at a market, was charged with larceny and sent to jail. There he had steak for his Thanksgiving Day dinner.

Pair Charged With Cutting, Stabbing Man

A 52-year-old man and his 44-year-old wife yesterday were charged with simultaneously cutting and stabbing a 48-year-old man during an argument Wednesday night.

Police said the husband, Leroy Mitchell Harris, of 205 G st. sw., cut George Briscoe, of 35 H st. sw. on the back of the head and neck with a knife, while, at the same time, Harris' wife Katie Pearl Harris, stabbed Briscoe in the chest with an icepick.

Harris was ordered held without bond in Municipal Court and the case was continued to December 27. Mrs. Harris was held at the Women's Bureau for her appearance today in Municipal Court.

In another assault case, Thomas Weaver, 25, of 1143 42d. st. ne., was ordered held without bond for slashing Henry J. Green, 18, of 4326 Hayes st. ne., in the stomach during an altercation at 44th and Hayes st. ne. Wednesday night. Green is in critical condition at Casualty Hospital.

Weaver told police that early in the evening, Green and two other boys tousled with him on a streetcar. When he aproached the corner of 44th and Hayes sts. ne. about an hour later, the three were waiting for him and attacked him with an umbrella and knife, Weaver said.

VA Grants $9500 To Veteran for Wheelchair House

The Veterans Administration announced yesterday it has made the first grant to a paralyzed World War II veteran for a house for wheelchair living.

The VA said 80 other applications have been rejected among the 1066 thus far received. Preliminary approval has been granted in 123 cases. The other applications are still under review.

The Eightieth Congress authorized grants up to $10,000 each to war veterans with service-connected paralysis of the legs and lower part of the body.

The money is to be used for the purchase of houses or special equipment, including ramps, special bathrooms and other wheelchair accommodations, with the Government paying not more than 50 per cent of the cost.

Applicants must demonstrate they are able to live outside hospitals and can pay their share of the costs.

District Nurse Drowned in West Virginia

A dog that had kept vigil nearly three days led yesterday to the discovery of a Washington woman's body in the south branch of the Potomac, 6 miles north of Romney, W. Va.

Miss Hawkins

State police at Romney identified the woman from cards found in an automobile parked nearby as Miss Guelda S. Hawkins, 45, of 1711 E. Capitol st., a nurse.

The West Virginia police said a pen-written note was found in the car, declaring she was "too ill to go on" and leaving the car, a black 1941 Chevrolet coupe, to a man and a woman identified only by first names.

The body, in shallow water near the shore about 50 yards from the car, was found about 3 p. m., police said, by owner of a nearby tavern who had seen the car parked there for the past three days.

Police said the tavern owner's attention had been attracted by a strange dog, a hound, which kept circling the car and then going to the river bank, barking at passers-by. The tavern owner discovered the body when he finally followed the dog.

Had Visited Sister

Miss Hawkins, a private duty nurse at Prince Georges General Hospital, Cheverly, Md., had been visiting a sister, Mrs. Marjorie Evans, in Frostburg, Md. She was reported to have left there Monday to drive to Washington.

She had been taking cases at Prince Georges General for about three years, authorities there said. She completed a case about two weeks ago.

A graduate of Homeopathic Hospital here, she was carried on the Washington Nurses Registry.

Miss Hawkins had lived at the East Capitol st. address for about 12 years, Paul F. De Lawter, resident manager, said. She had been in ill health and depressed recently, according to De Lawter and a friend, Mrs. Anthony Diaz, of 1729 East Capitol st.

She had exhibited nervous tendencies since an automobile accident about two years ago, Mrs. Diaz said.

She is survived in addition to Mrs. Evans, according to Mrs. Diaz, by another sister, Sergt. Glade Hawkins, Wac, who is now at a California post, and two brothers and a third sister.

Truman Invited To Accept Plane At Smithsonian

President Truman has been invited to accept the historic Kitty Hawk airplane, which workers will begin to assemble today, as guest of honor at ceremonies to be held at the Smithsonian Institution on December 17.

Another guest whom Paul E. Garber, curator of the Smithsonian's National Air Museum, hopes to have at the formal reception is John Moore, the only living man who saw Wilbur and Orville Wright fly the Kitty Hawk on December 17, 1903.

The famous plane, which was in the Kensington Museum in London for 20 years because of controversy between Orville Wright and the Smithsonian, arrived Monday.

Arlington Pair, Wed 63 Years, Agree on Most Everything

The Washington Post

LONGTIME TEAMMATES—Selden G. Hopkins, 86, and his wife, Nettie, 83, mark their sixty-third wedding anniversary today

One of Hopkins' principal interests these days is politics, and that, he says, "means the Democratic Party." During Woodrow Wilson's 1912 and 1916 campaigns, Hopkins was the State Democratic Committee chairman in Wyoming, when the committee twice helped to give the State's votes to the President.

Furthermore, says Hopkins, "my wife's a Democrat—we don't disagree on much of anything." Other factors in the long-marriage formula, he says, are tolerance and patience, and interests in common—such as the walks the couple take together, or their games of rummy.

The couple began their married life together in Plainville, Kans., where Hopkins came from his native town of Lancaster, Wis., to practice law. In Kansas, he also published a country newspaper.

After his service as Wyoming's State chairman, Hopkins was named Assistant Secretary of the Interior under Wilson, and later was a member of the board of appeals of the Civil Service Commission. He retired in 1945.

The Hopkins have three sons—Philip S. of Binghamton, N. Y.; Grant G. of Richmond, Va., and Ralph W., a Washington attorney.

TRAFFIC—From P. B-1

3 Die in Traffic Accidents

was riding overturned in a gully on U. S. 50, the Annapolis highway, at the Ardmore rd. intersection at about 10:25 p. m. The scene is about six blocks from Landover Hills, Md.

She was taken to Prince Georges General Hospital at Cheverly by the Bladensburg rescue squad. Pronounced dead on arrival, her body was removed to Gasch's funeral home in Hyattsville.

Two other persons injured in the accident were taken to Prince Georges General Hospital. They were Kim Williams, 30, of 830 3rd st. sw., who received a fractured collarbone, and Arlene McBride, 30, of 1431 11th st. nw., who suffered a leg injury. They will be transferred to Freedmen's Hospital.

Locally, 10 passengers were injured when a Baltimore-bound bus skidded on a wet street and crashed into a tree on L st., about 50 feet from 12th st. nw., at 5:10 a. m.

All of the injured were released from Emergency Hospital after treatment for minor injuries. They were:

Joseph Logan, 37; Ethel Logan, 29, and Arthur Boyd, 20, all of Nathalian, Va.; Zeb Vance Blackwell, 45, and Annabelle Porter, 45, of Columbus, Ohio; Doris Regan, 40, of East Durham, N. C.; Lula Ellison, 29, of Greenville, N. C.; Homer Hubbard, 53, of Republican Grove, Va.; Gladys Featherlstone, 5, of Walton, Va., and Glady Obie, 33, of Virgilinia, Va.

Police said the driver was Joseph A. Watson, 39, of 716 Decatur st. nw. It was a Gray Lines bus that had been leased by the Trailways bus line to handle extra holiday traffic.

The accident, police said, was typical of a number of crashes that occurred because of the rain and wet streets. The Accident Investigation Unit said there were 39 traffic accidents in the District between midnight and 4 p. m. yesterday.

One of the accidents, police believe, involves a hit-and-run driver. They announced they were seeking such a driver after John Costas, 57, of 1921 Pennsylvania ave. nw., was found at 3:15 a. m. lying in the street in the 2400 block of Pennsylvania ave. nw.

Four persons were injured, none seriously, when two cars collided at 2:48 a. m. at 13th and F sts. nw. Police said the cars were driven by Robert R. Burns, 36, of 1413 Girard st. nw., and John W. Leister, 28, of 9127 Waldron rd., Silver Spring, Md.

Injured were a passenger in Burns' car, Geneva Davis, 26, of 1300 Massachusetts ave. nw., and three passengers in Leister's car, Lola Harvey, 20, of 1313 Rhode Island ave. nw.; Mary McQueeney, 37, of 726 7th st. sw., and Mary J. Small, 39, of 5438 4th st. nw. All were treated at Emergency Hospital for minor injuries.

There was another two-car collision at 12:30 a. m. at Connecticut ave. and Military rd. nw. Operators, police said, were Col. John N. Dick, 45, of 802 Albany ave., Alexandria, Va., and Lewis M. Helm, 17, of 6111 44th ave., Riverdale, Md.

Mrs. Betty Dick, 38, wife of the colonel, suffered injuries to her right side and arm but said she would be treated by her private physician.

A pedestrian, James E. DeVine, 39, of 1611 E st. se., was struck at 2:10 a. m. at 7th st. and Pennsylvania ave. se. He was admitted to Casualty Hospital with a fractured leg.

Police charged the driver, Charles J. Zounek, 34, of 108 Brentwood rd., District Heights, Md., with failing to yield the right of way to a pedestrian.

Two persons were hurt at 12:30 p. m. when autos collided at 12th and V sts. nw. Police said a car operated by William G. Brooks, 28, of 920 P st. nw., was in collision with one driven by Donald W. Mauney, 27, of 1628 Good Hope rd. se.

Mauney was admitted to Freedmen's Hospital for X-ray with a possible fractured right leg. A passenger in Brooks' car, Weldon McAdoo, 24, of 1524 Swann st. nw., was treated at Freedmen's for a lacerated forehead.

Mrs. Emelie Erwin, 64, of 1306 Sheridan st. nw., suffered collarbone injuries about 7 p. m. when she was struck by a car while crossing 16th st. at Sheridan st. nw. The driver, according to police, was Dr. Rodolfo E. Barbagelata, 38, of 1505 Kalmia rd. nw., agriculture counselor at the Argentine Embassy.

Mrs. Erwin was taken to Emergency Hospital.

Police Charge Driver, 23, In Md. Hit-Run Death

Charges of manslaughter and leaving the scene of an accident were placed against Chester Hammond, 23, Olney, Md., last night by Montgomery County police.

Detective Sergt. G. W. Linthicum said the charges grew out of a fatal hit-run accident November 20 on the Norbeck to Norwood rd. Victim was Clarence Wilkerson, 49, of Gaithersburg, Md., who died Tuesday at Montgomery County General Hospital.

Apparently stymied as there were no witnesses to the accident and Wilkerson never fully regained consciousness, police combed a large part of the county looking for a car with a broken windshield.

On an Olney farm, Sergt. James L. Burdette located a 1930 model car which, he said, showed signs of the windshield frame having been recently removed.

Police said Hammond at first denied being the driver of the car, but later admitted his guilt. He led them to a brush pile in a nearby woods under which he had hidden the frame, police said.

A preliminary hearing on the charges was set for December 16 in Rockville Police Court.

G. F. Scherer Dies; Embassy Aide in Mexico

George F. Scherer, 43, first secretary of the United States Embassy in Mexico City, died yesterday in Bethesda Naval Hospital after a short illness.

Mr. Scherer

Mr. Scherer returned to this country in September for hospitalization.

Prior to his assignment in Mexico City, he served in the United States Foreign Service at Ciudad Juarez, Mexico; Havana, Cuba; Bogota, Colombia; Ciudad Trujillo, Dominican Republic, and Buenos Aires, Argentina, serving as first secretary in the latter place. He also was in charge of the Cuban desk at the State Department in Washington.

A native of Chicago, he was graduated from Groton School in 1923 and Yale University in 1927, entering the Foreign Service in 1934. He was graduated from the National War College in 1947.

He was the son of the late Col. and Mrs. Louis Charles Scherer of Washington.

He is survived by his wife, Mrs. Marjorie Palmer Scherer, and a son, Robert F. Scherer, both now staying at the Wardman Park Hotel, and three brothers, Col. Harris F. Scherer, commandant of the Adjutant General's Division School at Camp Lee, Va.; Lieut. Col. Karl L. Scherer, now on temporary duty in Washington awaiting assignment as Assistant Military Attache to the United States Embassy in Warsaw, Poland, and Louis C. Teas for Two

Misses Bassett and Barry Make Bows to Society

By Elizabeth Maguire

FOR HER debut yesterday, Miss Bessie Bassett looked as pretty as the flowers in her old-fashioned bouquet. Her gown was white moire with drop shoulder neckline and hoop skirt finished in net ruching. Carnations of pale pink shaded into white made up her lace-frilled bouquet.

Mrs. Alfred E. Bassett presented her daughter to the guests, while Mr. Bassett and the debutante's grandparents, Judge and Mrs. Kimbrough Stone of Kansas City, assisted in introducing guest to one another. Portraits of Miss Bassett's great-grandparents, the late Senator and Mrs. William J. Stone, graced the walls of either side of the drawing room. Great-grandmother Stone's portrait was over the mantel and was banked with white flowers and greens.

Nearly 300 guests, both old and young, were received by the debutante and her mother between the hours of 5 and 7 o'clock. The good-looking college group were very much on hand for this Thanksgiving Day gathering. Miss Yardley Minnix looked charming in red dress and hat. Pretty Miss Rebecca White, one of the assistants, wore black taffeta ballerina with thin gold belt.

Other assistants were Miss Mary Elizabeth Blakeney, who was last year's debutante, Miss Virginia Wetherill, a debutante of next year, Miss Frances Haynes, this season's deb, and Miss Susan Bassett, younger sister of Miss Betsie Bassett.

Mrs. Bassett had as her assistants for the afternoon Mrs. Eberhart Haynes, Mrs. Charles Wellborn, jr., Mrs. Charles E. Cropely, Mrs. John F. W. Brawner, and Mrs. Cleveland Newton, formerly of Washington, now of Philadelphia.

Mrs. Newton talked with Mrs. Edward Roosevelt Halloran and her debutante daughter, attractive Miss Julia Ann Halloran, who will bow December 29 at the United Nations Club. Mrs. Newton recalled the days when her husband, a Congressman, and Senator Stone served in the Wilson Administration. Cards were received by the hundreds, she said, and every Cabinet lady had her day at home. She likes Philadelphia, but she says she can never see too much of Washington.

Miss Barry Introduced To Friends of Her Parents

WHILE Miss Bassett was surrounded by her young friends, another debutante was presented at a tea strictly for the older group. Col. and Mrs. David S. Barry gave a dance last June at the Chevy Chase Club for their daughter, Barbara, and yesterday they gave a tea to introduce her to their older friends.

The pretty bud wore a ballarina length dress with black skirt and chartreuse top, and she carried a bouquet of green orchids and bouvardia. Mrs. Barry's gown was of brown crepe with off-shoulder neckline filled in with net and topped with a white orchid. Mr. and Mrs. Landon K. Thorne, jr., of Greenwich, Conn., son-in-law and daughter of Colonel and Mrs. Barry were there for the party, and young Landon K. Thorne, 3d, also came to town, principally for Thanksgiving Day dinner.

Miss Barry is one of the most attractive debutantes of the season. She was graduated from St. Timothy's School in Catonsville, Md., and she is now at Smith College. This weekend she is attending the Army-Navy game in Philadelphia. She will spend the weekend with a Smith classmate and return to college Sunday evening.

Patricia Baker, Fiance Feted at Dinner-Dance

SIDNEY'S orchestra played for the dinner dance given last evening at the 1925 F Street Club by Miss Marilyn Himes for Miss Patricia Baker and her fiance, Charles G. Beavers. The couple will wed tomorrow in a ceremony at St. John's Church.

More than 48 were invited for dinner at the F Street Club, and many more came in later for the dancing. Among the guests at dinner were Mr. and Mrs. Eugene Carusi, Mr. and Mrs. William Arnold, Mr. and Mrs. Thad Brown, jr., Dr. and Mrs. B. Miss Jean Dopp Is Married

The marriage of Miss Jean Dopp, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Walter H. Dopp of Wild Rose, Wisc., to Harland Francis Leathers, son of Mr. and Mrs. Emery L. Leathers of Bangor, Me., took place yesterday afternoon in Dopp Methodist Church of Wild Rose. The Rev. Robert Hoffman officiated at the ceremony.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a gown of heirloom satin, made with fitted bodice, choir-boy collar and peplum edged in seed pearls. Her veil of illusion was held by a Mary Queen of Scotts hat, and she carried a bouquet of gardenias.

Mrs. Norman C. Rasmussen of Long Prairie, Minn., was matron of honor, and Miss Nelda Dopp was maid of honor for her sistre. Jeannie Brownlow of Wild Rose served as flower girl.

Mr. Leathers was best man for his son.

Miss Kall Wed To Harry Kashe

Miss Ramona Alice Kall and Richard Harry Kashe were married yesterday at 9 a. m. in St. Matthew's Cathedral, Father Milton Schellenberg officiating. Mrs. Kashe is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John J. Kall of Helena, Mont., and her husband is the son of Lieut. Col. and Mrs. Harry R. Kashe of Landover Hills, Md.

Escorted by her brother, Kenneth A. Kall of Pensacola, Fla., the bride was gowned in silver grey. She wore a pink hat and with her white prayer book she carried a bouquet of orchids. Miss Garnett Lynch was maid of honor, costumed in a royal blue frock and pink hat and carrying an old-fashioned bouquet of pink rose buds. Richard A. Kerin of Washington was best man.

A wedding breakfast was held at Watergate Inn.

U. S. Christmas Celebrations To Be Dramatized at Club Tea

The first Christmas and its observance in four eras of American life will be portrayed at the Silver Spring Woman's Club Christmas tea December 1. The program will begin at 2 p. m. in the social hall of the Woodside Methodist Church, 8814 Georgia ave.

American scenes in the "Chronicles of Christmas" will depict Christmas in Pennsylvania in 1741, Christmas at Valley Forge, Christmas in the Nineties and Christmas in 1948. A program of music appropriate to each period has been arranged by Mrs. R. E. Snesrud, chairman of the music department. Mrs. Clarence Hendershot and Mrs. John B. Hager will act as readers.

The entire club will take part in the community Christmas tree celebration which will conclude the scene of Christmas, 1948. Members are requested to bring gifts for hospitalized veterans in Christmas wrappings for the tree, but reminded that clothing, toys and other gifts to be distributed through the Montgomery County Holiday Exchange Service should be unwrapped.

Club members responsible for the program are Mrs. R. C. Soxman, director; Mrs. R. E. Snesrud, music; Mrs. Mayhew Derryberry, narration; Mrs. Edward A. Baehr, Mrs. Walter S. Bryde, Mrs. George Eastment, Mrs. George D. Nolan, Mrs. William B. Marks, Mrs. John T. Ross, Mrs. Louis B. Schneider, Mrs. Floyd F. Smith and Mrs. G. Harris White.

Hostesses at the tea, to be served following the program, are Mrs. Bernard F. Burdick, chairman; Mrs. Marie Hall Brimacombe, Mrs. Carl W. Brown, Mrs. John I. Brownlee, Mrs. Walter S. Bryde, Mrs. D. C. Buscall, Mrs. Lawrence F. Campbell and Mrs. Edwin R. Covey.

Mary Haworth's Mail

Expecting First Child, Wage-Earning Wife Is Disheartened by Husband's Impatient Reaction to Her Fatigue; Is She Neurotic?

DEAR MARY HAWORTH: I am going to have a child and I know that my health isn't as good as a prospective mother's should be; and my doctor has told me that I should get plenty of rest.

This is impossible, however, as I am employed in a business office; I arise at 7 a. m. to prepare breakfast for my husband and myself, so that we can get to work on time; and of evenings there is supper to prepare, and also washing, ironing and housecleaning waiting to be done.

Ordinarily I am home from the office by 6 p. m. and sometimes I go straight to bed, which is very exasperating to my husband. He says I am lazy and taking advantage of my condition, which I feel is untrue, and yet I realize that my present housekeeping isn't all that it should be.

Feels Disliked by Her Husband

I AM inclined to feel unloved and sorry for myself. I am sure that Harry dislikes me or becomes irritated with me; and yet I keep telling myself that I am being neurotic and selfish in finding fault with his attitude. Although I deeply believe that he isn't properly concerned about me, at times I feel I am being unfair in holding this suspicion.

Is this a morbid state of mind? And is it typical of prospective mothers? If so, will it pass in time? I fear that our married happiness is in danger if I continue to feel this resentment of my husband. He does work hard, and he helps around the house; but in doing so he always reminds me that my laziness drove him to it.

C. N.

Man's Attitude Is Unreasonable

DEAR C. N.: All things considered, your state of mind could hardly be different in the circumstances. However, the tension, misgivings and heavy fatigue aren't induced, necessarily, by the physical fact of pregnancy, which tends to improve, rather than depress, the health and spirits of a reasonably well-loved, well-cared-for wife who is favorably disposed towards motherhood.

Harry's attitude is unreasonably demanding. It is grossly impatient, unsympathetic and unkind. You are fully justified in feeling that it reflects lack of real love and proper concern for you. And this poor showing of his is due, I daresay, to general ignorance of how to play a real man's part in preparation for parenthood.

As a working wife, a partner in wage-earning, who carries, in addition to "office grind," a primary responsibility for washing, ironing, cleaning, cooking, etc., at home, you are entitled to generous exceptional measure of voluntary household help from him during pregnancy,—which indubitably levies a special tax on a woman's energy even in the easiest circumstances.

Man Rejects Real Marriage

THUS if Harry were a manly fellow, with instincts educated to capacity for mature sensible devotion, he would, for example, insist upon serving you breakfast and supper in bed these days, as often as you would accept that flourish from him. Also he would be cheerfully "yours to command" for scrubbing, dishwashing, marketing errands, making beds, etc., and this creative solicitude would remarkably beautify the personality of each and all nuances of the relationship,—assuming you are essentially fair-minded, and I think you are.

Obviously Harry is wretchedly immature; and having married for enjoyment of "romantic" love—i. e., at behest of sex desire,—with mind and emotions unprepared to meet, much less deal cordially, with the unvarnished realities of conjugal teamwork, he feels sore aggrieved at the recent turn of events, which find his erstwhile glamour-girl translated (temporarily) into a tired, dejected, seedy housewife, indifferent to his pleasure and comfort, he thinks.

In brief, Harry went along with you through courtship and through the honeymoon, but now that marriage in the real sense is to the fore, he balks at sharing it. That's the crux of the problem portrayed, and unless he opens his eyes to his backward behavior and strives sincerely to correct it, you can't do much to improve the situation.

Tattle-Tale of Time

Toning Triceps Banishes Sag, Gives Youthful Trim to Arm

By Ida Jean Kain

One way to figure out how to get muscles effectively on the job is to analyze what would happen if you lost the use of those particular muscles. Right now I'm thinking of the muscles on the backs of the upper arms which sag sadly as time flits away, despite the fact that arms are in almost constant use.

The job of the triceps—that's the name of these muscles—is to extend the elbow forcibly. If they went out of commission, you'd have a hard time driving a nail, rowing a boat, beating a rug—or, for that matter, punching somebody in the nose! But how many of the day's activities require vigorous arm extension? Very few, if any . . . and this puts the triceps in the leisure class. That's why the backs of the upper arms droop and tend to take on fat.

Today's column includes special triceps-toning exercises, but the best plan is to work out some movements of your own that get these muscles into action in everyday activities. The technique: a thrusting action, or action with the upper arm in a more horizontal than perpendicular position . . . shoulder level rather than hanging down.

An Excellent Toner

Last summer I found spraying the roses an excellent triceps-toner. Scrubbing floors, shaking out a mop, beating a rug—all help to keep upper arms young and beautiful. Even vigorous hair-brushing with extended forward strokes tones them . . . besides what it does for your hair.

Before starting the exercises, I want to stress one other measure—carrying the arms properly. I've given this before but it bears repeating. Get the knack of holding your arms with inside of elbows toward the body, backs of hands toward front. This position not only looks more graceful but helps ward off upper-arm, flabbiness by keeping the triceps mildly on the job.

Exercise Helps

Movement: As you bend forward at the waist (with abdominal muscles pulled up snugly of course), swing arms vigorously down and up in back as far as possible. Swing back to position and repeat. Keep it up—make those triceps work.

Position: Standing, elbows bent and hands together up near one shoulder.

Movement: Chop downward vigorously, with strong elbow extension . . . up and down forcibly 15 or 50 times, depending on your strength.

After-School Programs Give Children a Break

By Norma Lanum

WASHINGTON'S small fry are fixed up for the winter with a full program of after school and weekend activities.

For tots who bemoan "too much love and too much songs" in today's grown-up movies, there are special children's shows on the calendar.

The perennial stage hit with the young set, "Alice in Wonderland," is scheduled for December 3, 4, 10 and 11 at Roosevelt High School auditorium. The D. C. Recreation Department is sponsor of the show and youngsters from Rose Robinson Cowen's Studios of Speech and Dramatic Arts are producing it.

The same group will present a ballet, "Rackety-Packety House," in February, "Playtime" in March and the Rufus Rose Marionettes in April.

Parents Invited, Too

ANOTHER slate of the kiddies' favorite plays is being presented Saturday afternoons at the Virginia Theater, just left of Mount Vernon blvd. as you enter Alexandria. (Parents can come, too, if they really want to.)

Clare Tree Major's Children's Theater of New York is producing the shows under the auspices of the Children's Museum of Washington. The next one of this series will be "Hansel and Gretel" on December 28.

"The Snow Queen" opened the season on November 20. "The Poor Little Rich Girl" is scheduled for January 29, "Pinnoccio" in February and "Little Women" on April 2.

Saturday Shows

SPECIAL movies and local talent stage shows for the small fry are given each Saturday, 1:30 to 3:30 p. m. at Undercroft Auditorium in Mount Vernon Place Methodist Church.

Tots may audition for the vaudville portion of the bill with Mrs. Pearl Long at the church. If they need some more training before stepping in front of the footlights Mrs. Long will place them in a music, dance or dramatic group, with meetings after school and on weekends.

Highbrow Music

THE YOUNG SET is getting its share of highbrow music, too. The Arlington Civic Orchestra, under the direction of Van Lier Lanning, is giving a series of four programs this season especially for the children at Washington and Lee High School. Mr. Lanning explains the stories behind his selections and also tells his young audience about tone modulation, harmony and other things that go into composition of a symphonic piece. The next concert will be on January 23.

May Join Shoots

THE kids have also been included in the National Rifle Association's winter schedule. Claude Floyd, who manages the range at 10 G st. ne., conducts classes each Saturday for the children. They are taught how to handle the rifles safely, how to set their sights and how to fire from all positions. Floyd prefers that his young pupils bring dad along. For more information call Metropolitan 9346.

Arts, Crafts Taught

SEVERAL places in Washington give instruction to children in arts and crafts. After school classes in painting, drawing and clay modeling are conducted every Monday, Wednesday and Thursday, 3-5 p. m., at Friendship House, 619 D st. se.

The Community Arts Cooperative offers weekly dancing and calisthentics classes for the youngsters each Wednesday, 1:45-5:15 p. m. at Rock Creek Cabin, Beach dr. and Leland dr., Chevy Chase, Md.

Dancing, dramatics and voice lessons are offered at the Jewish Community Center by the junior arts department, and the Young Women's Christian Association also has an extensive cultural and recreational program for the younger set.

For more information about children's activities call the Recreation Department, Hobart 8132.

Missouri Society Dance Sunday

The Missouri Society will hold a dance in the West Ballroom of the Shoreham Hotel on Sunday at 9:30 p. m. Guests will be received by the president of the society, Thomas T. Kenney, who will be assisted by Mrs. Craig L. Reddish, Mrs. Eric Jansson, Mrs. Max Foster; Miss Eva Jane Lewis and Mrs. Claude M. Houchins.

There will be a musical program under the direction of W. Arthur McCoy and Mrs. Clarence McCune. Further information about the dance may be obtained from the secretary, Ralph Fuhrman.

Mr. Larkins and Bride Make Home in Missouri

Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Speer Larkins have made their home in North Kansas City, Mo. They were married on October 24 in this city. Mrs. Larkins is the former Miss Jane Bell, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Elrick Bell of Shaker Heights, Ohio. She was employed in Washington by the Navy Department.

By Henry Rohland—The Washington Post

ALICE in Wonderland will come to life once again when the Children's Theater of Washington will present the classic children's story in the early part of December. Rehearsing their parts for the production are (left to right) Larry Lessin as the Mock Turtle, Maria Girard as Alice, and Joan Sklarsky as the Gryphon. The play, which is being given by the Children's Studios of Dramatic Arts, will have performances on December 3 at 8:15 p. m., December 4 at 2:30 p. m., December 10 at 8:15 p. m. and December 11 at 2:30 p. m. All performances will be at Roosevelt High School Auditorium

Wellesley Alumnae Plan 'Decade' Meetings

The usual fall "decade" meetings of the Washington Wellesley Club will begin Saturday, when the graduates of the years 1900 to 1909 will meet for luncheon at the home of Mrs. Samuel Herrick, 4916 Indian lane, nw.

On Tuesday, November 30, at 8 p. m. graduates of the 1920's will gather at the home of Mrs. David Murray, 3117 35th st. nw. Dr. Julia Greene will be hostess at a luncheon on Wednesday, December 1, at her home at 2726 Quebec St. nw., for local alumnae who graduated during the 1880's and 1890's. Wednesday, December 1, at 8 p. m. will be the time of a meeting of the 1930's at the home of Mrs. Edward R. True, 2450 Belmont rd. nw.

The 1910's and the 1940's have chosen the same evening, Thursday, December 2, at 8 p. m. Mrs. Greene Dugger will be hostess to the 1910's at her home at 2910 R st. nw. at this time, and Mrs. E. Wyllys Andrews, 2029 Waterside drive, nw. will entertain the most recent graduates, the 1940's.

Mrs. George L. Meleney, new president of the Wellesley Club, will visit all these meetings.

What to Do for Stains On New Wallpaper

I spilled some grape juice on new, light wallpaper. I wiped it off as much as I could with a dry cloth. Is there anything I can put on to get the purple spots off? A. J. D.

A household bleach is probably the only thing with which the stain can be completely removed. Make a solution of ½ cup bleach and ½ cup water and apply it to the stain with a small water color brush. Be careful not to apply so much bleach that it runs down the wall. Apply only to the stain. When the color of the juice has been completely bleached, allow the spot to dry thoroughly. The bleach will also remove the wall paper coloring where it is applied, but this can be made less conspicuous by filling in the design with a crayon.

Another solution, since the paper is new, is to sponge away as much of the grape juice as possible with clear water, allow the area to dry thoroughly and cover the spot with fresh paper, being careful to match the pattern.

How can I produce a finish approximating "Pennsylvania Dutch" or "Early American" pine on unfinished wood pieces as sold in department stores, etc.? I want a clear, naturally grained, golden color, not "high gloss" but with a soft, shining polish. E. J. A.

Sand the unfinished pieces until satin smooth. Wipe away all dust and apply a good quality varnish stain in the color you wish the finished piece to be. It may take some experimenting to get a golden color. I would suggest you buy the varnish stain which is nearest to the color you wish and apply it to a part of the furniture where it will not show. If the stain as it comes from the can gives a color too dark add some clear varnish until it is as you wish. Apply two coats of the varnish, allowing the first to dry thoroughly before applying the second. When the second has dried several days, rub the surface with pumice and oil applied by touching a soft cloth to a light oil in a shallow dish then touching it to the pumice in another shallow dish. Continue to rub the piece with this until it has a soft shine then wipe with a clean cloth dipped in the same oil used for rubbing.

What can be done about a scorched woolen skirt? It did not go all the way through. W. H. P.

Seldom can a scorch mark be completely removed from wool. However, you may somewhat improve the appearance by rubbing with an abrasive such as emery paper.

A few years ago I was given a bottle of champagne, vintage 1760. I am interested in selling this item to a collector and therefore would appreciate your advice as to whom I might contact for appraisal and selling purposes. M. J. G.

A qualified appraiser of wines tells me that if you will telephone him and read the label to him he will be glad to give you an appraisal. Call Adams 3868 and ask for Mr. Rosenberg. Because of Alcoholic Beverage Control regulations, you cannot sell it to a store. To find an individual purchaser, you might advertise in The Washington Post.

When I removed some rayon and woolen garments from a plastic storage bag which had been kept in a steaming attic all summer, I noticed some long, brownish-colored worms on the clothes. The worms were dead and after examining the clothes, I didn't find any holes in them. Can you tell me if this was a moth in the worm stage and if so, what should I do to prevent this from happening again? J. F. C.

The worm could have been the worm of the carpet beetle or buffalo moth, which are ¼-inch long and a bright brown with a tuft of hair at the tail. The worm of the clothes moth is about ½ inch long, white, with a dark head. If you should see one of the worms again, you could have it positively identified by sending it to Insect Identification, South Building, United States Department of Agriculture.

The fact that the worms were dead and there was no damage would indicate they were killed soon after the garment was stored, perhaps by a moth preventative you used in the bag with the garments. To prevent damage from worms of moths or carpet beetles, have the garments moth-proofed or dry clean them before storing to kill any worms or eggs, then seal immediately in a tightly closed container with a good moth preventative.

What can be done for waffle irons that have had waffles stick and burn? The sections are not removable and usual methods do not clean between the crevices. F. T. R.

Use a very stiff brush to remove the burned parts of waffle from the iron. When all, or at least most, of the crumbs have been removed, place unsalted shortening on the iron and heat. If all of the crumbs were not removed with the brush the first time, this fat should soften the remaining ones enough so that they can be brushed away when heated. When you have brushed away all of the crumbs, add more unsalted fat and heat the iron to baking temperature, turn off and let cool. When you are ready to use the iron, be sure the grills are well covered with unsalted fat before adding the batter. Also, be sure the iron is at baking temperature before putting in the batter. It may be necessary to discard the first waffle because of excess fat. Be sure the batter you use has plenty of fat in it.

How may I remove paint spots on a plastic shower sheet and curtains, dropped by the painters while they were working in my bathroom? W. M.

You may be able to loosen the spots by rubbing them gently between the fingers. When the surface of the paint is broken in this way, sponge with turpentine. If the paint doesn't all come off, let the turpentine stand on the spot for an hour or so to soften and then try rubbing again. It may take several treatments, but with persistence it should all come off.

Cooking Cues

A delicious topping for cauliflower may be made by sauteeing the dry bread crumbs in melted butter or margarine over low heat until they are golden brown; stir the crumbs constantly as they brown. Sprinkle the buttered crumbs over the cauliflowerets (cooked and drained) just before serving.

A sauce for holiday puddings may be made by creaming a half cup of butter or margarine with one and a half cups confectioners' sugar; an egg is then added and the whole thing beaten well. Next mix in a tablespoon or two of boiling water and a half teaspoon of vanilla.

Cream butter and add lemon juice, finely chopped parsley, salt and paprika; mix well and serve over broiled or baked fish.

A simple cocktail sauce for seafood is made by combining catchup, chili sauce, lemon juice and horse-radish; chill well before serving.

Fold grated cheese or finely chopped parsley into a puffy omelet for a flavor change. Serve with crisp potato sticks (packaged) and a green salad. Add hot biscuits, homemade preserves and coffee for a delicious easily-prepared supper.

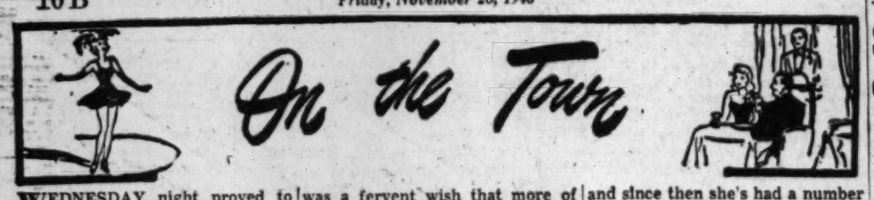
Fuchs PREFERRED Furs
1325 Connecticut Avenue



WEDNESDAY night proved to be one of the most amusing that we've enjoyed in many a moon. It was opening night at the Statler Embassy Room for Peter Lind Hayes and wife, Mary Healy.

We gave you rather a complete biography of Peter, his antics and actions earlier and this is a well deserved follow up hoot. Our reaction to Hayes and his humor was a fervent wish that more of the comics that hit this town could reach his heights. Not that a lot of the boys aren't good but they all lack that little something that makes a really good showman and comic. His timing and material fairly reek of the polished performer. And speaking of performances, Peter's wife, Mary Healy, is no slouch. Her satire on Hildegarde makes her look more like that particular chanteuse than the real thing. Nothing short of a broken leg should keep you from seeing this couple, and if perchance you do have a broken limb the laughs you'll get from the show are sure to make you forget the handicap. In other words, they're tops.

The King Cole Room has just wound up its first 12 years in the nitery business and is looking forward to the next 12. During little more than a decade the room has helped a couple of gals get well on their way. Evelyn Knight used to sing there and is now on a Coast to Coast radio show. Dona Mason wasn't too well known either until she entered the K. C. and since then she's had a number of out-of-town engagements in good spots, plus a radio show or two. Not a bad record for 12 years.

THE Casino Royal buzzed with a pre-Thanksgiving show earlier this week which featured three acts. Eddie Tierney, billed as a "sensational novelty act," manages to keep five Indian clubs flipping around in the air at the same time. Later in the act he puts two hoops on his legs, two on his arms and one around his neck, then gets them all spinning at once. The redhead sez: "Humph, you should see me juggling the budget."

The Claire Sisters, who recently finished a tour with Louis Prima, do, of course, a sister dancing and singing act.

There's a new line in the Casino, too. They're called the Mildred Ray dancers, and somewhat on the cute side.

Dolly Dawn sent a wire from New York saying she was in the hospital and unable to make it down here for her Tuesday opening at the Crossroads. The Crossroads called us yesterday saying they'd received another wire having to do with valiant efforts, quick recoveries and doctors' OK's. At any rate, she's now at the Crossroads.

The Club Bali is keeping up a record of bringing in the name acts when it opens Pearly Bailey, the "tired" girl. She's at the club for a limited engagement, and at the prices they have to pay nowadays we can understand it. In addition to bringing in the new show, Owner Caldwell has opened the spot for dinner nightly and has switched back to a dancing policy. The Bali used to have dancing some years back, but discontinued it.

Duke Ellington's is featuring Buddy Rich and his orchestra. Buddy, who used to make a deal of noise with his drums and had his band do its best to surpass him, has toned down because he believes that's what the public wants.

Mott and Cook Schools to Vie On 'Quizdown'

Teams from Mott School and John F. Cook School will be heard matching their knowledge of facts on "Quizdown" — sponsored by The Washington Post—from 10 to 10:30 a. m. Saturday.

The weekly series of quiz shows, with teams from different schools, is broadcast each Saturday at the same time. This Saturday's show was transcribed at Garnet Patterson Junior High School, 10th and U sts. nw., because of the Thanksgiving weekend holiday in the schools.

Representing Cook, P and First sts. nw., are the following: Eleanor Bryant, 9, 4-B grade; Benjamin Riley, 9, 4-A; John Risher 10, 5-A; Mildred Francis, 10, 5-A; Annice Robinson, 11, 6-A; and Donna Anderson, 11, 6-A.

Representing Mott, Fourth and W sts. nw., are: Alvin Douglass, jr., 8, 4-A grade; Jeanne Wheeler, 8, 4-A; June Johnson 9, 5-A; Barbara Reason, 10, 5-A; Alva Allen, 10, 6-A, and Roscoe Lewis 3d, 9, 6-A.

Alternates for Mott: Patricia Williams, Lawen Thompson, fourth graders; Esther Harris, Ann Branch, fifth graders; Irma Anderson and Alexina Martin, sixth graders.

Alternates for Cook: Ruby Saunders, Leroy Hall, fourth graders; Mildred Hales Joyce Hart, fifth graders; Rosabelle Staley and Shirley Wilson, sixth graders.

Questions used on Quizdown are selected by a committee from among those submitted by grade school students.

The winning school each week is awarded a 19-volume set of the World Book Encyclopedia, and the losing school a Rand McNally International Edition Atlas. Both schools receive an Emerson table model radio.

Ball point pens are awarded to members of the winning team, and automatic pencils to the losers.

Grant to Fulfill Promise He Made To Frat in 1898

Tonight Maj. Gen. U. S. Grant, 3d, will fulfill a promise he made 50 years ago.

Back in 1898, when he was a 17-year-old national officer of Lamda Sigma Fraternity, Grant agreed to come here from his home in New York to install a newly organized chapter at Central High School.

Spaulding

But before he could get here, Grant was called to Puerto Rico to join his father who was stationed there with Spanish-American War occupation troops.

Tonight Mu Chapter of Lamda Sigma marks its 50th anniversary with a dinner at the National Press Club at which Grant will hand over to Col. Thomas M. Spaulding, founder of the local unit in 1898, a time-faded charter.

More than 50 of the 500 Central students who have been members of Mu chapter during its 50-year history will attend the dinner.

Fisheries Fight Rate Increase

People in many parts of the country may be unable to buy fish in their markets if rate increases sought by the Railway Express Agency are granted, the National Fisheries Institute said yesterday.

Raymond E. Steele, Institute general counsel, said fresh fish and some frozen fish may be priced out of the market. In addition, he said, small fish dealers "face the prospect of being driven out of existence."

Steele protested the Railway Express Agency's request for permission to charge the fishing industry an extra 25 per cent over present rates for icing fish in transit.

"We are already paying a 25 per cent icing charge on fish we ship—more than enough to cover the added expense," he said.

Top Program In Cathedral Caps Holiday

By Paul Hume

The Thanksgiving holiday was capped last night in Washington Cathedral with a noble concert for strings and organ.

Presented under the auspices of the Recording and Transchiption Royalty Fund of the American Federtion of Musicians, the program was directed by Paul Callaway.

Wayne Dirksen, associate organist of the Cathedral, was soloist with the 40-piece orchestra. Callaway's program was rich enough for any holiday bill of fare. There were sonatas of Mozart, a concerto by Corelli, and Vaughan Williams' fantasy on a theme of Thomas Tallis.

Four American composers were honored during the evening. Arthur Foote, Walter Piston, and Daniel Pinkham, all of Boston, and Ellis Kohs, native of Chicago, placed all warranted emphasis on music of our own country.

Callaway drew radiant tone from the strings and, for the most part, good rhythmic precision. Intonation was pure and accurate. His conducting has acquired a plasticity of expression in classic works such as the Corelli, and the sensitivity of Vaughan Williams' Fantasy.

It was a concert where music was of paramount interest. Of Corelli and Mozart we need not speak in praise. The Foote suite is a fine work, sired by an American born in 1863 and trained exclusively in this country.

Daniel Pinkham is a maturing student. His sonata was telescoped into a single movement, with solid themes rather undeveloped. Ellis Kohs' Passacaglia has been heard here before. It grows in meaning with added acquaintance and has the mark of keen craftsmanship. Both of these are surpassed, naturally, by the maturity of Walter Piston's writing.

His prelude is sound and the allegro an exciting example of organ and string technique. Leaving Vaughan Williams to the last, we can only praise the radiance of the fantasy's double choir and solo quartet lines.

We are indebted to the musicians' union and to Paul Callaway for so outstanding an occasion.

Greek Premier, 88, Suffers Second Heart Attack

Athens, Nov. 25 (AP).—Premier Themistokles Sophoulis had a second heart attack today.

Doctors said the 88-year-old Premier may recover.

A bulletin issued early tonight said the crisis of the second attack was receding.

Bogdanov Given Death

Belgrade, Nov. 25 (NYHT).—Asen Bogdanov, convicted as a notorious war criminal who collaborated witn the Bulgarian occupation forces in Yugoslavia in World War II, was sentenced to death by hanging tonight in Skoplje.

James Mason a Father

Hollywood, Nov. 25 (AP).—A 7-pound 14-ounce daughter was born today to Pamela Kelline, author-actress wife of British Actor James Mason. Their first child, it was named Portland, after Portland Hoffa, wife of Radio Comedian Fred Allen.

LIZA! THAT'S ABSURD! I FORBID IT!
LET ME REMIND YOU, DAN PEARSON, THAT I'M OVER 21, EVEN IF YOU WERE MY GUARDIAN ONCE. SINCE YOU'VE PAID MR. TEMPLAR WITH MY MONEY, I'M GOING TO INSIST THAT HE EARNS IT!
A VERY FAIR PROPOSITION, I SHOULD SAY.
VERY WELL THEN, LIZA—WE'LL SEE WHAT THE SOURCE OF YOUR MONEY HAS TO SAY ABOUT IT!
WELL, SAINT, I'VE MADE MY PRIVATE DEMONSTRATION. I'M SORRY IF IT EMBARRASSED YOU, BUT YOU CAN STILL BACK GRACEFULLY OUT.
ON THE CONTRARY, I'M JUST GETTING INTERESTED. TELL ME, WHAT IS THIS "MYSTERY DEBUTANTE" BUSINESS?
THAT'S WHAT I HOPED YOU MIGHT HELP ME TO FIND OUT.

MARY WORTH
I LOST MY HUSBAND A YEAR AGO, LINK!--I'D HAVE TOLD YOU--EVENTUALLY--BUT YOU WERE SO WARY OF GALS WITH THAT ORANGE-BLOSSOM GLINT IN THEIR EYES---!
I--I GUESS I'M THE ONE WHO SHOULD APOLOGIZE! --AND I DO---!
TO YOU, FOR INTERRUPTING A CONFERENCE, MR. ZAZZMAN!--TO YOU, FOR AN UNDESERVED PUSHING AROUND, MR. JASON!---AND TO YOU, MISS BRICKER, FOR MAKING MYSELF RIDICULOUS AND EMBARRASSING YOU BEFORE THESE PEOPLE! GOODBYE!
ONE THING ABOUT HOLLYWOOD, MR. ZAZZMAN--A FRIENDSHIP NEVER LASTS LONG ENOUGH TO GET BORING!--YOU'D HAVE TO MEASURE THAT ONE WITH A STOP-WATCH!

REED, IF YOU CAN'T TEAM UP WITH STEVE CANYON — THEN JUST WHAT DO YOU HAVE IN MIND TO DO?
I PLAN TO BECOME A PRIVATE BODYGUARD
THAT'S NOT SO SHOCKING — BUT IT SEEMS AS IF YOU'D NEED MORE SPECIALIZED TRAINING FOR SUCH A JOB
THE MAIN THING IS TO BE DEVOTED TO THE PERSON YOU'RE GUARDING
OBVIOUSLY! BUT YOU MIGHT GET HURT...
I DON'T MIND PHYSICAL HURT — AND I DON'T THINK YOU'D HURT MY FEELINGS!
ME?
OH, YES — IT'S YOU I'D BE BODYGUARDING!

IT WAS PROBABLY THE GREATEST THANKSGIVING DAY THAT RED WILL EVER HAVE, TOM!
YEAH! DID YOU EVER SEE ANYBODY'S FACE LIGHT UP THE WAY HIS DID - WHEN FERRET SAID HE WAS TAKING HIM TO FLORIDA?
I LIKED THE WAY HE THANKED YOU AND MICKEY - AND THE KIDS - FOR HELPING HIM!
HE'S OKAY, SERGEANT! HE SURE APPRECIATED THAT TRAVELIN' BAG WE GAVE HIM, TOO!
INDEED HE DID! SAY, IS MICKEY GOING OVER TO WHERE RED'S BEEN WORKING — TO EXPLAIN WHY HE'S LEAVING?
OH, SURE! THAT'S WHERE HE WENT THIS MORNING!
AND THE BEST OF LUCK TO YOU, RED!
THANKS, MR. BROWN!

Some Second Thoughts On Amateur Cops

The whole complexion of our Police Department is about to change. We'll have amateur cops, lady cops and older cops.

Or should we just start taking up a collection now, and have it ready for the first innocent victim who is "accidentally" shot?

Entrusting your safety to an amateur policeman must be something like flying with a student pilot. He may mean well, but you never know what kind of trouble he'll land you in.

I'd just as soon let a freshman at barber college shave me. Maybe I'm being stuffy about it, but I just don't like to live dangerously.

However, I'm very much in favor of putting women in uniform, so long as they keep them off the traffic detail.

Incidentally, there's absolutely no truth to the scurrilous rumor that the policewomen will be armed with rolling pins.

Service revolvers and brass knucks may be all right for male policemen but the women will probably do right well if they're just armed with nice long hatpins.

If they turn out to be young and pretty, what citizen would be cad enough to be "guilty of resisting an officer?"

THANKFUL

I'm thankful for the chicken, Lord,
That I ate yesterday.
I'm thankful for my Government
And for my raise in pay.
* * *
I'm thankful, too, that I can be
A District resident;
And that my neighbor down the street
Is still the President.

George A. Fisher
1442 Spring rd. nw.

A very fine poem, George, but permit me to point out that:

I, too, am thankful that I'm here
'Mid statesmen of great note.
But I would like it even more
If they'd just let me vote.

MAIL BAG

Dear Bill:

The 3-cent stamp commemorating the Oregon Territory centennial shows an ox-drawn covered wagon heading eastward, instead of westward.

D. P. Van Gorder
120 11th st. ne.

Dear Mr. Van Gorder:

How can you tell—because it's going to the right, which would be "east" on a map?

Maybe it was designed by a Republican who just didn't want to be connected with any leftist movements.

Bill

P. S.: I suppose you've heard the philatelist's reaction to the election? "They won't put Dewey on any postage stamps because he's taken enough licking already."

GIVE-AWAYS

"Housetrained male kitten." (Franklin 2491).

"Mother cat and three beautiful, healthy, playful kittens, 6 weeks old." (Woodley 0764).

PERSONAL NOTES

Jake Wise, Gaithersburg, Md.: You're probably right. Thanks. P. S.: Is it true what they say about a word to the Wise, Jake?

DEFEATIST

In words that speak the voice of doom
We read and hear the note of gloom
So prevalent today.

The pessimist is running rife;
He's sure from all this verbal strife
That war is on the way.

I wonder if this doleful kind
Can in his heart some reason find
For our Thanksgiving Day.

BIG JOB AHEAD—Dorothy Kilmer takes her first typing lesson at Washington Sanitarium, so that she can answer some of the letters she's been getting, and later on hold down a typist's job, after District Liners put her back on her feet. Left to right: Instructor L. L. Murray, Miss Kilmer and Leon Wienraub of the Leon Typewriter Co., 400 6th st. nw., who gave Dorothy a new typewriter and is providing for the lessons.

Leonard Lyons . . .

NEW YORK.—When Senator Kilgore made campaign speeches through West Virginia he told all his audiences: "I'll give $5 to anyone here who can prove he was polled by Gallup, Roper or Crosley." Senator Kilgore vows that not once did he have to pay the $5.

Cosmopolitan magazine will publish an article describing one of New York's best known nightclubs as a fire-trap . . . Eddie Albert did two shows for Ford last week: He did "Joy To The World," for Ford's television program, which required three weeks of rehearsal. He also did "The Male Animal" for Ford's radio show; it required two days' rehearsal. His fee for both shows was the same.

MGM bought a movie story from Cecil Brown, the commentator and author of "From Suez to Singapore," at one of the highest prices the studio ever paid for an original story . . . Paul Small, the agent who sold the Brown story to MGM, also is the producer of Ed Wynn's "Laugh Carnival," which opened in San Francisco. Unlike out-of-town press agents who demanded that they be kept on when the show reaches New York, the press agent for "Laugh Carnival" insisted that he'll work any place except in New York. He's Ned Alvord, the advance man who was born to the circus. "I hate working in New York," he says. "New Yorkers are the real hicks of the Nation" . . . Karsch, the noted photographer, will do front covers for Newsweek magazine.

George Solotaire, the ticket-broker who styles himself "Pleasure Insurance" because his specialization is seats-up-front, was asked by a customer for seats in the second balcony. "I," Solotaire replied, "do not handle 'Nose-bleeders'" . . . Virginia Field will never miss a performance in Moss Hart's "Light Up the Sky," because Mrs. Hart—Kitty Carlisle—is up in the part, from having watched so many rehearsals . . . Ludwig Bemelmans just moved back to New York, ordered a phone and was told by the company he'd have to wait. After three months Bemelmans canceled the order, because he found a phone-less existence delightful.

Merry-Go-Round

Marshall To Stay on As His Duty

By Drew Pearson

No. 1 upshot of the hour-long conference between President Truman and Secretary of State Marshall was that Marshall agreed to remain in the Cabinet for an "indefinite period" after January 20.

Pearson

Marshall tactfully reminded his chief he hadn't had a vacation in years, except for a few days that he and Mrs. Marshall spent together in Honolulu following his mission to China in 1947. He said he needed a rest badly.

However, the man who vetoed Truman's proposed Vinson mission to Moscow and who has thwarted Trumans ideas on Palestine said he considered it his duty to stay on the job "as long as you need me."

He added that he hoped this would not mean serving the full four years of Truman's term of office. The President quickly responded that this wouldn't be necessary.

"But I can't spare you now," Truman said, in effect.

"With the international situation as it is," the President added, in effect, "I can't take a chance on putting someone else in your place until we begin to see daylight in Europe. Otherwise, I would not impose on you."

Whenever the clouds over Berlin start to clear and our economic-aid program has western Europe safely out of the woods, Truman said, Marshall would be free to step out with a presidential blessing.

Whether this means six months, a year or longer, neither ventured to guess.

Ku Klux Klan

Down in Macon, Ga., a group of American Legionnaires and church leaders are trying to head off a huge Ku Klux Klan demonstration scheduled for December 10.

The klan has engaged the city auditorium for that date and Grand Dragon Green, at secret meetings in Atlanta, has boasted that the Macon cross-burning would be one of the biggest in klan history—bigger than the gatherin on Stone Mountain.

However, many Macon citizens, opposing the klan, have introduced an ordinance before the city council forbidding men to hide their faces behind masks when meeting publicly. This would force the klan either to abandon their Karnival in the auditorium, or to meet unmasked.

The big question is: Will the city council be pressured by klan influences not to pass the ordinance? A lot of people will be watching the decision.

Unity Dinner

The Rev. Dr. Dan Poling, editor of the Christian Herald and father of one of the four chaplains who gave up their life-belts on a sinking war transport so GIs might live, has just written an editorial about the importance of national unity.

"Why not," asks Dr. Poling, who has done more for unity than most men I know, "hold an all-American dinner honoring the President of the United States on the night of his inauguration? Let's make it a unanimous vote for all the world to see, hear, and understand, a vote for world security and peace.

"Perhaps no other people of the world would or could stage such a demonstration, but an Americans-all dinner on this next inauguration night would be a master stroke to help bind free peoples and all who would be free into a dynamic unity.

"I suggest the following for a national committee on arrangements with the only living former President as chairman and including all living former presidential candidates and the widows of our former Presidents: Herbert Hoover, chairman; Herbert H. Lehman, treasurer; Gov. Thomas E. Dewey, John W. Davis, James M. Cox, Alfred M. Landon, Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt, Mrs. Calvin D. Coolidge and Mrs. Woodrow Wilson.

"But recognizing the fact that an idea such as this can die before it is fully born, why not you and I make it come alive in our own homes and organizations? Here is a time for a man to practice what he preaches and having talked it over with my associates at Christian Herald magazine, we shall have our Americans-all dinner on January 20, 1949. Representing in our organization every faith, every color and every racial strain, we qualify for the occasion! We shall come together and honor our President.

"And we shall do something more. In the spirit of the occasion we shall bring a gift for the 230 million neglected and suffering children of the world. To date the United States has miserably failed to answer the United Nations' appeal for these children."
